Daring Eaton Heist

Bandits Get $377,000

VANCOUVER — In one of the most daring daylight robberies in Vancouver history, two men held up two armed guards and made off with $377,000 in cash and cheques from the downtown Eaton's store Monday afternoon.

The two bandits, one armed with a submachine gun, the other with a revolver equipped with a silencer, captured the two Loomis Armored Car Service guards and an Eaton's employee shortly before 3 p.m. in the store at 701 Granville.

They coolly asked another store employee the way out of the store after grabbing their loot.

Vancouver police Insp. Frank Rayner said the holdup was "obviously the work of real smoothies . . . they knew exactly what they were doing."

Police said that of the total amount taken $150,000 was in cash and the remainder was in cheques.

The Loomis couriers had just picked up a bank deposit on the fifth floor of the store and were taking the freight elevator to the ground floor when two men suddenly appeared from behind some boxes at the back of the elevator.

"They really had the drop on our men," he said.

The robbers disarmed the couriers and handcuffed them to the floor of the elevator, covering them with a plastic tarpaulin.

Rayner said as the elevator was descending it stopped at the second floor where store employee Steven Erdelyn stepped in, ignoring warnings from the man at the control not to enter. When the door closed the man pushed his revolver into Erdelyn's face and ordered him to get on the floor where he was handcuffed beside the other two.

Rayner said the elevator stopped again at the main floor where another employee, Bob Sutherland, 23, was waiting.

Sutherland told police two men came out, each carrying leather sample cases, and asked directions how to get out of the store.

Sutherland pointed and the men left. When he went to get into the elevator he discovered the three persons under the plastic.

Sutherland ran to the Robson Street exit where he'd seen the men heading but could not find them in the crowd.

Eaton's loss prevention manager Frank Battershill said the deposit bag contained about $150,000 in cash, the rest in cheques. The pickup was one of several Loomis couriers carry out each day at the store.

Eddy said it was only the second time in the 49 years Loomis has been in Canada it has been the victim of a successful robbery. The other occurred in Vancouver, too, several years ago.

The suspects are described as between 35 to 40 years of age. One was heavy set and wore a dark brown suit with open collar.

PEDEN

Doug Peden, sports editor of the Victoria Times and rated as one of the most versatile athletes in the history of Canadian sport, has been elected to the Canadian Sports Hall of Fame.

Others honored in the announcement Monday by Hall of Fame chairman Harry E. (Red) Foster are diver Beverly Boys, jockey Nick Wall and two builders — Howard Firby, one of the founders of the Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver and now coach of the Juan de Fuca Cohos Swim Club of Victoria, and the late George Beers, recognized as the father of lacrosse.

Peden excelled as a professional in three sports but earned titles and respect in at least six others.

As a bike racer, he teamed with brother Torchy in the six-day races of the 1930s and helped his brother set a world record for victories in those events.

The Peden brothers won six times and placed second nine times in the 35 races they entered together. He partnered Torchy in all but two races. Doug, who set a record by finishing all 37 races he entered, won another race with American star Cecil Yates as a partner.

Individually, he won the Canadian pro sprint championship in 1939.

In basketball, he was on two Canadian championship basketball teams, the 1934-35 Blue Ribbons and the 1945-46 Dominoes. He led Canada to a silver medal in the 1936 Olympics and then played professionally with Buffalo Bisons of the Eastern Pro League in 1940-41, and Vancouver Hornets from 1947-48.

He also played baseball professionally and was considered a major league prospect by Pittburgh Pirates, who signed him to a contract in 1942 before the Second World War interrupted a

City Jobless Down Slightly

Statistics Canada figures released today showed a jobless rate of 9.6 per cent, down from 10.4 per cent in February.

Local Canada Employment Centre manager Wally Pickering said the trend was normal for Victoria at this time of year.

Employment prospects will increase faster than the provincial rate during the warm months, he added.

In B.C., the total number of unemployed declined in March to 104,000 from 112,000 the previous month.

Country-wide, the number of unemployed in March rose to 976,000 from 954,000 in February.

But the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate — which takes seasonal employment patterns into account — remained unchanged from a month earlier at 7.9 per cent.

Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark and NDP Leader Ed Broadbent pointed to the higher numbers of unemployed and criticized economic policies of the Trudeau government.

But Bud Cullen, minister of employment and immigration, said the unchanged unemployment rate is evidence the country has come through the tough winter months without the problem worsening.

Clark said in a statement from southern Ontario

Israelis Hit Back After Bomb

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli planes streaked into southern Lebanon and pounded two Palestinian guerrilla bases today, just hours after a terrorist bomb blast killed one Israeli man and wounded 22 other persons in an open-air market in Tel Aviv.

The raid was Israel's first against Palestinian targets in Lebanon since the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty March 26.

An Israeli army official said the planes struck bases at Damour and Ras el-Ain, near Tyre, and that all returned safely.

There were no reports on casualties in the air attack.

The Israelis often launch air strikes into southern Lebanon in their eye-for-an-eye war with Palestinian guerrillas who infiltrate across Israeli borders to plant bombs in populated areas.

The Tel Aviv bomb exploded at a fishmonger's stall in the open-air Carmel market, crowded with shoppers preparing for Passover, which begins Wednesday. Five of the injured were severely wounded, police said.

Officials said the blast, latest in a new wave of bombings in apparent retaliation for the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, was almost prevented.

A municipal inspector noticed a suspicious package under the stall at the Carmel market and asked whether it belonged to anyone. "but before they checked it out, there was an explosion," said Tel Aviv Mayor Shlomo Lahat.

Police commander Moshe Tiomkin told Israel Radio that about 15 Arabs have been detained — he called it "preventive arrest" to protect them from angry Israelis as well as to investigate them as suspects.

A Palestinian spokesman in Beirut, meanwhile, claimed that Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese leftists fought a battle with Israeli gunboats along the southern Lebanese shore Monday night and foiled an Israeli attempt to land amphibious troops.

200 Reported Dead In Blaze

Witnesses saw people jumping from third-storey windows of the five-storey structure, and there were unconfirmed reports that at least 200 people were either dead or injured.

Government officials did not disclose any details on the number of those killed or injured. But witnesses said they saw scores of ambulances rushing victims from the scene.

Witnesses said the blaze may have been caused by welding work on the store's second and third floors. Others reported a malfunction in the motor of an escalator. The fire quickly spread to the upper floors of the store's five stories, witnesses said.

Fire department headquarters rushed all available engines to the building on one of the city's busiest intersections, across from the Romanian Bank for Foreign Trade.

Times-VI*90 Prize In Judges' Hands

And this morning the judges of the the *Victoria Times-VI*90* radio Visit the Stars contest were feverishly checking through more than 5,000 entries to find winners eligible for the grand prize of a weekend for two in Hollywood — travel via CP Air, stay at a first-class hotel and tour of the Universal Studio.

Those who chose Jane Fonda as best actress, John Voight as best actor and The Deer Hunter as best film will be eligible.

The grand prize winner will be selected in a draw at a theatre party Wednesday at the Towne Cinema with the audience made up of entrants in the contest whose names were drawn at random. Five runner-up prizes of a night on the town — dinner for two at the Empress and tickets to the Towne Cinema — will also be drawn from entries with the correct choices in the three categories.

Barking Dogs Get Limit

If Saanich dog owners want to stay within the law they'll have to ensure their animals don't bark for more than nine minutes, 59 seconds.

One second over and the dogs would have used up their legal quota and be liable for prosecution, under an amendment to Saanich's noise suppression bylaw recommended by the bylaw enforcement committee Monday night.

Committee members weren't unanimous in backing the 10-minute rule.

Ald. Irene Block said the period of grace is too long because five minutes of interrupted sleep at 3 a.m. is as much as any resident should have to endure.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier wanted to extend the time to 15 minutes, to reduce the possibility of quarrelsome neighbors abusing the bylaw and bringing petty prosecutions against each other.

The latest Saanich move against barking dogs is modelled on a Richmond bylaw, but in that municipality mutts can woof away for half an hour before a charge is laid.

Municipal solicitor Chris Nation said the advantage of the system is that anyone, a police officer, poundkeeper or single resident, can testify a dog barked for the required period.

There would be no need to prove that the dog had actually disturbed the neighborhood, he stressed.

Previously, for a charge to succeed the testimony of at least two neighbors was required.

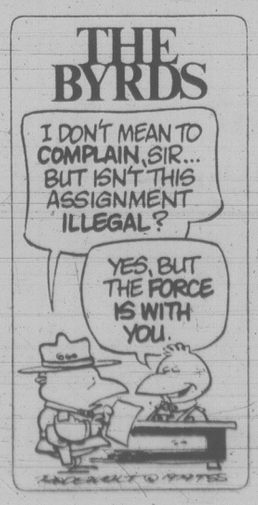
Residents Still Out

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of northwestern Florida residents were barred from returning home for the third consecutive day as disaster crews tried to salvage wrecked railway tank cars laden with deadly chemicals.

Twenty-eight tank cars derailed Sunday morning as a 116-car Louisville and Nashville (LN) train passed through an area six kilometres west of this city.



Stephens to Bare Tory 'Rot'

There's something rotten in the federal Tory campaign in B.C. and provincial leader Vic Stephens said today he's no longer going to sit idly by and watch it contaminate his campaign.

Stephens has called a press conference for Wednesday when, he says, he's going to name the names of those in the federal Tory party whose loyalty is suspect.

Today, Stephens would only say: "I'm going to lay the facts on the table and people can draw their own conclusions."

The parallel federal and provincial election campaigns — the province votes May 10 followed by the national ballot May 22 — have created problems for all parties, but none so serious as for the Conservatives.

Much federal Tory support comes from those who are Socred provincially, and Clark and his federal candidates apparently don't want to alienate those voters by openly backing Stephens.

Because of that, Stephens has been somewhat on the defensive recently. But, he indicated today he's going to come out fighting.

"I'll admit I've not been happy with myself this past week. I got a shock when I met with Joe Clark that I could have done without."

Stephens said he has always tried to be outspoken on issues he believes to be true and he's no longer going to bear the burden of silence on this issue.

He said it won't be easy for him because of the loyalty he feels towards the party he's worked with for so many years.

The Oak Bay MLA said the problem lies with Clark's workers — the ones who are not Tories.

One of the people Stephens says he will be talking about at Wednesday's press conference is federal Prince George Tory candidate Lorne McCuish, who earlier said all that Stephens is accomplishing provincially is ensuring an NDP victory.

McCuish said most federal Conservative supporters are happy voting for the Socred party provincially.

"Words like conspiracy don't do much for me. They may be true, but that's not my language."

Stephens said the problem is Clark's, not his.

"He's got some problems within his ranks and he's going to have to solve them. My ranks are solid."

The provincial Tories plan to try and field candidates in 40 of the 50 ridings.

"We've never been stronger and we've never been more united, so if Joe Clark has his problems, I'm

Planes Blast Kampala

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Tanzanian planes, artillery and rockets blasted Kampala today in the heaviest attacks of the war, smashing downtown buildings, disrupting electricity supplies and sending thousands of persons scurrying for cover.

Some residents said they spotted low-flying Tanzanian MiG-21 warplanes bombing the outskirts of the city as Tanzanian ground troops unleashed a furious barrage of artillery and "Stalin-organ" rockets against the capital throughout the day.

There was a direct hit on a mission school on Rubaga Hill in Kampala which blew out the school windows but none of the girls and boys or the nuns inside were hurt. They immediately left the building.

Other rockets and artillery slammed into exclusive Kololo Hill and other sections of the city.

Despite the "noise and thunder," initial reports indicated there were few casualties with most people immediately scurrying off the streets for the nearest shelter.

There was no word on the whereabouts of President Idi Amin who Monday was reported at new field headquarters at Jinja, a few miles east of Kampala.

Throughout the day Kampala was peppered with the artillery and rockets.

"It's like heavy rain pounding on a tin roof," said one resident in Kampala's exclusive Kololo Hill area housing many embassies. "There are non-stop explosions and detonations, very big ones. It is the heaviest artillery attack on the city so far."

Electricity to neighboring Kenya, which gets up to 30 per cent of its power from Uganda, was also briefly interrupted and the whole country — including airports, hospitals, private homes, businesses and even links to the Indian Ocean communications satellite — was affected for a short time.

Socred President Running

The president of the B.C. Social Credit party said today he will seek the party's nomination in the new riding of Coquitlam-Moody to run against Stu Leggatt, former New Westminster NDP MP.

Les Keen said he is not resigning as party president, but is turning over the party to vice-president Dan Hanuse.

"I've had many phone calls in the last week urging me to seek the nomination," said Keen.

"I've decided to do just that and have the full support of the premier."

The 50-year-old president of a Vancouver collection agency was constituency president in Coquitlam in 1975 when unknown George Kerster of Social Credit upset then NDP premier Dave Barrett.

The Coquitlam riding was eliminated under redistribution and Kerster will seek the nomination in Maillardville-Coquitlam.

Cameron Wins NDP Nod

The seat is currently held by Conservative Donald Munro.

Cameron, a 36-year-old teacher at Mount Douglas Senior Secondary beat Jack Groves in the two-way fight for the nomination at the meeting in St. Phillips church hall.

In gearing up for the May 22 federal election, Cameron told his supporters the only time any real social progress has been made in Canada was during minority governments where the NDP and its predecessor the CCF held the balance of power.

Now there is danger of some of those gains being eroded away. Neither provincial Conservative governments nor Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberals are doing anything to stop doctors across the nation from opting out of medical care programs, he said.

Grits Promote Pipeline

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau promoted a new oil pipeline today but backed off on an expected announcement of a massive infusion of federal investment.

Trudeau told the Petroleum Club here that Ottawa has recommended to the U.S. that an oil pipeline be constructed from Skagway, Alaska, running through Western Canada, to serve northern states. The oil line would be parallel to a natural gas pipeline approved by the two countries to move Alaskan gas to other U.S. states.

Before the speech, Trudeau aides had been hinting that the prime minister would announce $4 billion worth of new energy projects. But the aides later said there would be no promises of new federal funds.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie was to announce new measures later in Ottawa.

Trudeau told the Petroleum Club a new Liberal government would continue tax concessions for a fourth project in the Athabasca oil sands of northern Alberta. These concessions would be similar to ones already promised to the Alsands project which is currently before the Alberta cabinet.

Trudeau began his speech by comparing himself to a Christian in the lion's den. Throughout his campaign he has criticized oil companies and the Alberta government for seeking energy policies he considers detrimental to the national interest.

Trudeau said he regretted he has been pictured in this campaign as trying to pick a fight with everybody.

Another U.S. N-Plant Leak

Times News Servuces

MILTON, N.Y. — A leak of a radioactive coolant at the Kesselring site of the Knolls atomic power laboratory was contained within one building, a spokesman for the secret facility said Monday.

John Vanselow of the Schenectady-based laboratory confirmed Monday that there had been "a minor leak" about 10 days before at the Kesselring site in West Milton in Saratoga County.

Vanselow would not comment on the nature of the leak, the type of reactor involved or how the laboratory disposes of radioactive wastes, but said the leak resulted in no release of radioactivity into the atmosphere and resulted in no contamination of personnel.

The leak developed in a valve in a reactor that had previously been shut down, he said, adding that the valve has since been repaired.

Meanwhile, Senator George McGovern introduced a bill Monday which would ban operating licences for future nuclear power plants until a three-year independent investigation of nuclear safety problems was completed.

The South Dakota Democrat said there have been 10 serious nuclear reactor accidents over the last four years, including the one at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

McGovern said President Jimmy Carter appeared to be abandoning his campaign promise to provide strict safety requirements for nuclear plants by proposing legislation to speed up nuclear plant licensing.

"Despite the president's previous commitments to improved nuclear safety, and despite the fact that the taxpayer has invested billions of dollars in agencies for this purpose, it is now up to the Congress to develop legislation providing independent oversight, and to assure that any progress toward a nuclear future be predicated on the greatest safety American technology can provide," McGovern said in a statement.

Hodgson's Choice Was Shank's Pony

Because of the vastness of the Northwest Territories Stuart Hodgson did a lot of flying and little walking during 12 years as commissioner of the territories. But Hodgson, 55, had an unexpected walk shortly before leaving the North for his new job in Ottawa. He walked about 1½ kilometres along a road to Yellowknife after the government car he had been driving ran out of gas. Hodgson's 22-year-old son, Eugene, said his father started the day by visiting his office on the sixth floor of the government building in Yellowknife. He later decided to drive to Detah, an Indian community about 27 kilometres away. His car ran out of gas on the return trip. Rather than wait for someone to come along, Hodgson starting walking. . .

Feminist Kate Millett says she was "expelled from Iran by brute force and terrorized in the process," and nobody told her why. She told a Los Angeles news conference Monday she was kept under police guard in Tehran for 24 hours during which time she was "terrified and terrorized, living in a state of panic under armed guard." But she says she'll continue to fight for women's rights in Iran.

Rolling Stones' lead singer Mick Jagger did not appear for a divorce hearing and a Los Angeles judge said he would need to hear further arguments before deciding whether to issue a bench warrant for the singer. Marvin Mitchelson, a lawyer for Jagger's wife Bianca, told Judge Marvin Freeman on Monday that the singer was served with a subpoena last week in New York. The judge said he is not certain his jurisdiction extends into New York and deferred his decision on the requested warrant until after another court hearing later this week or early next.

Academy Award-winning actress Liza Minelli and television executive Jack Haley Jr. have been divorced in Santa Monica, Calif., after a year-long separation. Miss Minnelli, 32, and Haley were married Sept. 14, 1974, and they separated Feb. 1, 1978.

Actor and political activist Paul Robeson finally had a star bearing his name placed on Hollywood's Walk of Fame Monday on what would have been his 81st birthday. The walk selection committee, an arm of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, rejected a request by actors' trade unions eight months ago to include the black singer-actor's name on the walk, but denied its decision was connected with Robeson's left-wing politics. Following protests from former child film star Jackie Cooper, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and others, an aide to the committee said the group had received additional information and had awarded Robeson a star.

Trident Missile Misfires In Test

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — A Trident I missile burst from beneath the Atlantic today in the first sea launch of the new weapons system. But 30 seconds after launch, the submarine missile went off course and was destroyed, space officials said.

"The launch from the sub was normal and the missile fired its first stage as planned," said U.S. Air Force Capt. Roland Raab. "But a malfunction during the first-stage flight caused the missile to veer off course and it was destroyed by the range safety officer."

Raab is spokesman for the air force's eastern test range. The range safety officer has the duty of destroying — by sending a radio command to on-board explosive devices — any missile that gets out of control.

Raab said it is not immediately known what caused the malfunction.

Texans Vote For N-Power

Times News Services

AUSTIN, Tex. — Voters here have approved the future use of nuclear power for their city, in the first U.S. referendum on the issue since the Three Mile Island nuclear-reactor accident.

The vote was a stunning defeat for anti-nuclear forces, who had hoped for a sizable defection to their cause from the city's affluent white voters after the reactor accident in Pennsylvania.

Complete but unofficial returns show that a proposal authorizing the city council to sell more than $215 million in revenue bonds by the city-owned electrical system to finance further construction of the four-city South Texas Nuclear Project passed with a 53.1 per cent majority.

Another proposal authorizing the city council to sell the state's 16 per cent share in the project failed by a narrower margin, the nays getting 50.9 per cent of the vote.

Perhaps no one in Austin was more surprised by the victory than the committee's campaign manager, John Rogers. While the polls still were open Rogers had gloomily predicted defeat by a 58 per cent vote or more.

He said a series of last-minute radio and television ads by Austin's popular mayor, Carole McClellan, was a decisive factor in the pro-nuclear victory.

McClellan and anti-nuclear organizers both agreed that the Three Mile Island accident had less effect on the referendum than did local issues.

In a related development, results of a poll released today show that 23 per cent fewer Americans favor nuclear power plants today than in July, 1977.

The poll, sponsored by the New York Times and CBS, was conducted last week.

The survey showed that only 46 per cent of Americans now favor further development of nuclear power, compared with 69 per cent who responded to the same question in 1977, the Times said today.

Asked whether they wanted a nuclear plant in their community, only 36 per cent said yes compared with 56 per cent two years ago.

A trial balloon

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm is flying an interesting trial balloon with his suggestion that county commissions should be the new form of local government in B.C.

Until the minister is willing to provide some more details, however, a trial balloon is all the suggestion can be. So far Vander Zalm has told us only one specific item about the new commissions — they would replace all local school boards.

He has not told us how they would be elected, what responsibilities they would have other than education, or how they would relate to other forms of local government — city, municipal and village councils or regional boards.

These would, it appears, be highly complex matters. Would county commissioners be elected by all the residents of the county, or would some be appointed? If appointed, by whom? The provincial government? The local governments contained within the county? The difficulties with all these systems have been well-illustrated by the history of regional district boards in B.C. over the past dozen years.

How big would counties be? B.C. now has counties for legal purposes, but these are obviously much too large to fit into Vander Zalm's scheme. Victoria, for example, is contained in the county of Vancouver Island which stretches all the way to Port McNeill and Port Alice. It's ludicrous to think of one board running the schools for the whole Island.

Would counties then be as big as regional districts — on average, almost three times as big as B.C. school districts are now? Or would they be reduced to be the same size as school districts or a little bigger?

How would they fit with the current regional district set up? Since it would be so obviously hopeless to have both regional boards and county commissions, it must be presumed that the counties would replace the regional districts. In that case, how does Vander Zalm propose to solve the existing problems of regional districts — problems so severe he has previously suggested abolishing regional districts altogether?

The list of questions could go on and on.

Before Vander Zalm begins work on the details of the system, however, one basic question should be asked: whether a county system would meet the minister's goals of improving relations between government and those they are supposed to govern.

Vander Zalm believes it might because it would reduce the number of levels of government and hence the amount of irritating bureaucracy that people have to put up with. This may well be true, but a multitude of governmental bodies is surely only one of a number of causes of people's alienation from government.

Equally important is the remoteness of government, a factor that might well be increased by large counties with commissioners with a wide variety of responsibilities. One large, remote bureaucracy isn't any more appealing to the citizen than several smaller bureaucracies.

Before Vander Zalm goes to a lot of trouble putting his trial balloon into permanent orbit, he should ensure it's going to be more than just another piece of hardware cluttering up governmental space.

Moving the problem

The liquor distribution branch found a novel solution last week to the problem of drunks and prostitutes bothering the customers of downtown liquor stores at night — it decided to shut down the liquor stores at 9 p.m. instead of the customary 11 p.m.

Presumably, from the branch's point of view, this has solved the problem. It has moved it someplace else. Drunks and hookers will now spend from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. each day bothering people going into bars or beer parlors, or people using public washrooms, or people just minding their own business on downtown streets, rather than bothering people going into liquor stores.

Liquor stores are far from being an essential service, and it certainly won't hurt Victorians to have to buy their booze before 9 p.m. or else drive several miles to the nearest open liquor store.

If early closing was actually going to solve some of the social problems associated with alcohol, that would more than compensate for the inconvenience to residents and tourists alike. But the inconvenience outweighs any benefits associated with early closing hours — if there are any.

It's a complex law enforcement issue and a social problem, not something which can be swept away by closing two hours early.

BARBARA McLINTOCK

He still has a certain magic

Victorians may not like Prime Minister Trudeau. They may have spent the past 4½ years saying how much they wanted to get rid of him. They may not have voted for him last time; they may not be going to vote for him this time.

But when Trudeau comes to town, they are still drawn to him.

Trudeau came to town on Friday for a quick three-hour stop as part of his current campaign tour. The stop consisted of nine blocks of mainstreeting (from the Empress Hotel to Centennial Square) followed by an outdoor rally in the square — a routine sort of itinerary for a prime ministerial tour.

ELECTION DIARY '79

Crowds swarm behind Trudeau along Yates Street.

Yet from the moment Trudeau stepped out of the official green car onto the Empress lawns (half an hour behind schedule), it was not a routine visit. In nine blocks of mainstreeting, it seemed it was not a politician who had come to town, it was the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

Crowds came en masse

The crowds surrounded Trudeau in waves. They stopped to talk to him, to wave at him, to try to touch him. And they followed him.

The group of 100 that met him at the Empress (90 reporters and 10 Liberals) soon grew to 150, to 200, to 300. All along Government Street, and Fort, and Broad, the office workers on lunch breaks, the shoppers, the mothers with children joined the parade.

It was not the Trudeaumania of 1968. Many of those who talked to him disapproved of his policies; some were downright hostile. These people were not surrounding Trudeau as the new hero who they believed would lead Canada out of its troubles; they knew better.

Many probably could not have said why they were following this man and the accompanying microphones and television cameras through Victoria. Like the citizens of Hamelin, they simply followed, even those who wanted him to tell them why the economy was in such a terrible mess, even those who simply stood at the back of the crowd shouting rude remarks.

In some places the gathering crowd became so large that Trudeau's aides hastily changed the route of the mainstreeting to avoid them so the itinerary wouldn't fall even further behind. "Do you know how long it would take us to get him through that?" muttered one aide. "He'd still be talking to them when we were supposed to be in Campbell River [the next stop]."

The crowd at the rally was a magnified version of the mainstreeting crowd. Official estimates of its size range from 2,500 to 3,000 — a broad mixture of businessmen in three-piece suits, of young people in blue jeans, of senior citizens in whatever they could afford. There were at least three groups of organized protesters — a group opposed to nuclear energy, some angry public servants and a bunch of angry postal workers. In addition, there was a sprinkling of unorganized hecklers, some carrying posters with such low-level messages as: "Go home, creep."

Trudeau loved them. He plays on hecklers as on a well-tuned instrument. Indeed he got the loudest applause of the day when he turned on the protesting postal workers, telling them they were lucky to have jobs at all.

Give Trudeau credit also for not pulling his punches. In B.C., in the heart of provincial-rights land, he came on strong on the need for a strong central government, on the need for the provinces to co-operate with each other within the federal system, on the need for national unity. The applause was not as loud as when he squelched the postal workers.

The most interesting moment of the speech, however, had nothing to do with the federal election at all. It came, rather, when Trudeau, in an apparent throwaway line, mentioned the name of "your premier, Bill Bennett." The crowd broke into a loud, spontaneous chorus of boos. It was the only time Trudeau looked taken aback during the entire trip. When Trudeau mentioned the name of Dave Barrett, the cheers were louder than for anything he said himself.

May be significant

It wouldn't have been significant at an Ed Broadbent rally. Coming at a Liberal rally, it well may be.

When the rally finished, Trudeau worked his way through the throng to the McPherson Theatre for a half-hour break before going on to Campbell River. When he went to leave for the airport, a hundred people or more were still pressed against the theatre windows, straining for a last glimpse of the prime minister.

The man may not have the ability to lead Canada in the 1980s. He may not even have the stuff to get re-elected, but he does have a kind of magic that no other Canadian politician does.

Ombudsperson

In his letter of March 30 on the subject of a patient-representative (ombudsperson) for Victoria General Hospital, Alan Patterson, chairman of the hospital board, states that my "current assertions in the press are both premature and without foundation." I am mystified as to how they could be both simultaneously.

Be that as it may, other statements by Mr. Patterson are even more confusing. He writes that my "allegations that the board has ignored explicit instructions from the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society could not, in this instance, be further from the truth." Maybe Mr. Patterson could not find allegations further from the truth. I had no such difficulty.

On Feb. 22 the board (with Mr. Patterson himself deciding the issue) failed to pass the following resolution: "Resolved — that the board agree to the establishment of the position of ombudsperson as per the resolution of the society of Sept. 21, 1978." Note no mention of salary, referral to this or that committee, etc. A simple and straightforward statement designed precisely to clear the air of the various manoeuvres by opponents of the ombudsperson idea, and to permit the board to confirm its obligations to the society.

The society resolution itself, overwhelmingly passed, simply asked the board to establish an ombudsperson responsible to the board. Therefore, had the board simply confirmed the society's resolution it would not have committed itself by that action to any specific salary or precluded work by any of its committees. No amendments were offered to the confirming resolution; it was simply defeated.

The movement among board members to render meaningless the society's mandate continues. Now (perhaps viewing the April meeting of the society with some anxiety) the board has moved toward the adoption of a proposal which would, in my opinion, seriously hamper the entire ombudsperson concept while pretending to implement it. This involves creating a "traffic map" through the hospital bureaucracy for patients with complaints, and the designation of various hospital staff (who would continue to work in their present positions) as temporary, part-time ombudspersons. The entire concept of patient advocacy rests on a representative who can end-run a complaint around the bureaucracy and who is, moreover, responsible to the patient only.

I hope that the society, at its April 26 meeting, will reaffirm its position and prevail on the board to honor it in a truly meaningful way. — Eugene Kaellis, member of the Board of Management, Victoria General Hospital.

They care

I would like to express my appreciation to Eaton's on Douglas Street in Victoria and to let people know that there are still business people with a heart.

On March 26, my elderly mother, Mrs. M. J. Hawkins, and I were shopping in Eaton's store when she collapsed. The staff were most helpful; one got a glass of water, another brought a chair and the staff nurse was called. She was most kind and reassured me that rest was probably the thing most needed. She had a wheelchair brought and a taxi ordered, and Eaton's footed the bill for the fare to my mother's home.

All this kindness made an upsetting episode much easier for my mother and me. So many business people seem to care little for their customers nowadays. I give credit where it is due, to a store with a heart and a kind staff. — Mrs. H. E. Mathias, Cranbrook.

Denticare choice

Health Minister Bob McClelland has lately sounded off a good deal on the value of preventive measures as compared with the more costly (in dollars and suffering) programs of dealing with illness and disability. Regarding the government's promise of denticare, in the field of public health measures to prevent dental disease, B.C. has the worst record in the country. Nowhere else is the per capita water fluoridation rate so low.

Never has there been a more controversial public health measure and never has one been studied so thoroughly. Water fluoridation to reduce dental decay has been demonstrated to be the most effective, safest, and, in terms of dollars saved, cheapest public health measure ever carried out. Studies to the contrary are based on painfully (deliberately?) unadjusted data with regard to major variables and have been flatly contradicted. By ignoring this vital aspect of dental health the provincial government will continue to throw good money after bad teeth.

A credible and meaningful denticare program might have the following features:

- Subsidize a low premium public insurance dental plan similar to the B.C. Medical Plan, perhaps limited in scope by coverage and age.
- Negotiate the premiums which residents of particular municipalities or regions would pay based on the projected degree of dental disease in each municipality or region. Naturally, those areas with good dental health education and water fluoridation would be entitled to substantially lower premiums. This is simply an application of the basic principle of risk, an important factor in all insurance schemes.
- Set up training programs and facilities for the development of qualified dental auxiliaries. Such auxiliaries in the current Saskatchewan program have shown how well, after a relatively short and inexpensive preparation, they can handle about 75 per cent of children's dental care.
- Allow people a choice in services covered. However, to reflect the difference in the cost of education let the fee schedules differ but the payment made by the insurance carrier remain the same, so that if a person chose a dentist rather than an auxiliary then that person would have to pay, let us say, 25 per cent above what the public dental insurance would pay.

This plan would offer British Columbians a much greater freedom of choice than those they have now which are: pay for private dental insurance, get your employer to pay for private dental insurance, be on welfare and unemployable, cough up the fee or let your mouth and your children mouths remain untreated. Not only would such a plan expand choices but create valid and realistic consequences attached to each choice.

Further public health measures could include labelling of the sugar content in processed foods, a tax based on such content (which could help finance the plan just as booze tax helps finance alcoholism programs), and, of course, more intensive education.

A denticare program which just reduces the immediate and obvious cost to some people is probably worse than none at all because it might effectively inhibit the development of a real, courageous, and comprehensive dental health program for the people of B.C. — B. Patrick, 2549 Dowler Place.

Run more pictures

Coming upon a picture of a mother seal and the remains of her slaughtered pup in your newspaper suddenly made me feel very ill indeed.

"Why do they have to have pictures like that?" said a friend.

When I got over the first shock I told her you should run more pictures like that. Then perhaps if enough people decided this annual slaughter cannot go on any more, we could get it stopped. Too many people just close their eyes to anything unpleasant.

And I really cannot see why other people who write letters against abortion or something have to get in a nasty swipe at people like me who are concerned about seals.

We do not all have one-track minds, we can be concerned about other things too, but you do your thing and I'll do mine and don't call me on the phone and tell me I'm being unconcerned about humans. — E. Wakefield, 576 Simcoe Street.

Poor bookkeeping

Referring to the B.C. budget highlights of April 2, the fourth item (the announcement of a $26.2 million payment as the first in a series of 10 to wipe out the provincial government's deficit) implies that this province has been carrying a certain debt load in excess of $200 million since 1975. It is assumed that this debt has accumulated charges. Using a minimum rate of seven per cent, this debt has grown by at least $42 million.

We are now to start paying $26.2 million a year for the next 10 years to discharge this obligation. Considering that we have had a very sizable surplus in the bank for some time, it is a pity that repayment of the alleged debt was not started sooner.

What sort of fiscal responsibility is this? Are our tax dollars to be spent on needless debt charges? Are we going to be treated to another demonstration of bow and arrow bookkeeping? — H. Shergold, Victoria.

Schools do matter

Manchester Guardian

Do children's experiences at school have any effect on either their behavior or their educational attainment? Does it matter which school they go to? Thousands upon thousands of parents will not be the least bit surprised to learn that the answer to both questions is yes. They will not be surprised either to learn that children benefit from going to schools where they are praised and given responsibility, where expectations of them are high, where they can see they are valued by the displays of their work on the walls and the care taken of their surroundings, and where teachers know how to conduct lessons and how to administer disciplines sparingly but firmly. They may be rather more surprised to learn that it took a painstaking and lengthy study of children in 12 inner London secondary schools to bring these lessons home.

But when Professor Michael Rutter and his colleagues say that what goes on during the 15,000 hours of compulsory schooling matters to the present happiness and future prospects of children, they are, after all, questioning some powerful prevailing notions. Their finding that differences in the children's families and homes areas could not explain the differences in how they did at school runs directly across the new orthodoxy that familial influence sets a pattern which cannot be changed. Schools can make a difference to children's lives.

Children should not have to wait for that to happen, either. This study's measures — of behavior, delinquency, attendance and attainment — were not affected by either the size of the school or its age. They were not affected — pace the National Union of Teachers — by the overall pupil-teacher ratio or by the number of pupils per square foot. New, small, uncrowded schools may be nice places to work in — although it seems that in fact the working conditions offered to teachers don't affect the children either. But, on this evidence, there is, in the end, no substitute for good teachers — and there are pointers enough on what qualifies them as that.

There are lessons too for the policy makers. Previous studies have looked at social mix within schools and found, like this one, that it is not of great importance to the children. The academic mix, however, by these findings, matters more. These 12 schools were already deprived of the brightest pupils of the primary schools. Rutter and his colleagues found that those among them with a substantial number of children of at least average intellectual ability tended to produce better examination results; they found that delinquency rates were higher in schools with a high concentration of less able children.

FEIFFER

DOUGLAS FISHER

While I share the cynicism about such gifts, the kind of cynicism which has persisted, I suppose, since the first Parliament dissolved in 1872, the awards or gifts or recognitions — however you upgrade or downplay them — are a binder of people to party.

For example, Doris Anderson, a former editor of a women's magazine, was persuaded to run with only a ghostly chance in a by-election last October in Mitchell Sharp's old seat. She was crushed, like so many sacrificial candidates. Her loyalty to the Liberals may have been tested. One doubts it. She knows the party. She knew it wouldn't forget her and it didn't. Last week she was made president of the Advisory Council on the Status of Women, a $1.2 million-a-year operation (with 13 "person-years" authorized). The salary budget is about $300,000 so it's likely the post Anderson fills is remunerated at about $48,000 a year.

It's not the salary solace for the devastated candidate which stands out in this appointment: It's that Trudeau bounced the former president, Yvette Rousseau, into the Senate just to find a place for Anderson, a militant feminist. The objective of the Advisory Council is "to promote equal opportunities for women in all spheres of Canadian life." Rousseau was also a loyal Liberal and long-time worker for the party.

When a party looks after its own that nobly, is it any wonder it has a steady intake of fresh talent?

There's the further example of what happens to good loyal Liberal MPs who mind their Ps and Qs. Ralph Stewart didn't demonstrate the kind of loyalty and restraint appreciated within the Liberal Party. This was long before he crossed the floor to join the Tories (and subsequently failed to get the Conservative nomination in his riding). Indeed, he seems to have made the move largely because the award or reward offered him was inadequate. While he hesitated, maundered and sounded off embarrassingly for the party about the Middle East, no reward was forthcoming.

What object lessons the Stewart-Anderson cases are for party loyalists! What encouragements to discipline and sticking with the winning team!

ANDERSON

STEWART
. . . paid the price

Stewart did not have a distinguished career as a Liberal backbencher but neither did Joe Flynn (Kitchener) nor Jean Roy (Timmins) nor Gaston Clermont (Gatineau) nor Jacques Trudel (Montreal-Bourassa) nor Fernand Leblanc (Laurier) nor Albert Bechard (Bonaventure).

Each of them got a plum with an annual salary of $35,000 to $50,000 a year until pension time. Of course, they will have dual pensions: those they earned as MPs; those they earn now as government officials.

The other night in several TV snippets on four stations I saw, variously, senators Davey, Frith, Marchand and Graham in Liberal crowd scenes. Again, they are living, readable symbols; they make the Liberals the "blue chip" party in which to invest your political enthusiasm.

This is not written in anger, frustration or disillusion. Successful political parties reward their own well and thoroughly, and no federal party has even come near the Liberals' success. And those rewarded remember and work.

There is a footnote necessary to some of these appointments. If (unbelievable!) the Tories should win the election, their cabinet would have to be most uncomfortable with the likes of Anderson in high, open posts.

Just as a practitioner in political journalism I'm fed up with the jibes from the worthy-minded about the feebleness of the coverage of the campaign or its overconcentration on TV presentation.

There are few citizens who can't afford a couple of bucks a week for papers and magazines which will give them more than they can read about the issues, policies, parties and politicians. Buy two of any major city dailies. Pick up the weekend editions. Read Maclean's. To complement, even to supercede such print stuff, there is some fine coverage on Canadian radio, especially CBC Radio.

Last week Richard Gwyn (Toronto Star) and Gretta Chambers (Montreal Gazette) told Pat Watson they depended a lot on CBC Radio-News for their political information. It is a superb service, especially for federal politics. It's my advice to readers who carp about the media's treatment of the campaign to try the World at 8 and the World at 6. You get fair, smart reporting from Terry Hargreaves, Brian Kellener and Carol McIvor. In contrast neither CBC-TV News nor CTV News seems as sound, fair or thorough to me. However, both networks are letting all of us see much of the leaders in action. Perhaps that's what's rubbing the beefers.

As a footnote to that, it seems to me that the CBC has two fresh failures before our eyes and theirs, most nights of the week, in Knowlton Nash as newsreader and David Halton as chief political correspondent.

Nash seems wispy and without weight; more important, he's not as clear and convincing a reader as Jan Tennant or Peter Kent or several others in the corporation.

Halton is obviously a fair and earnest man but his interpretations are usually dull and always banal. What's also odd about CBC-TV's federal coverage is that while they have twice the Ottawa-based reporters that CBC-Radio has, a less adequate job is done in both news coverage and interpretation.

'A hell of a way to run a country'

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE
Toronto Star

The charge that the Liberals are making against Joe Clark, that he is "too friendly" with the provinces, might seem at first glance to conflict with the Liberals' own tiresome insistence that only they stand for national unity.

But not if you understand the terms. For the Liberals, national unity has always meant one thing, preserving their own popularity in Quebec and thus winning virtually all Quebec's seats, about a third of the country's total.

Conservatives' popularity in the rest of Canada, so the Liberals argue, doesn't help to unite the nation, but divides it. This is especially true of the west. Western Tories and the national leaders they send to Ottawa — Diefenbaker, Joe Clark — are out to dismember the country.

Despite a bit of shadow-boxing now and then, Prime Minister Trudeau in this election will not be running against Rene Levesque. His enemies, already identified, are Alberta and Ontario. Premier Lougheed is cast as the Ayatollah of the foothills, bent on hoarding his oil and gas and the royalties therefrom, even if it means the rest of the country starves or freezes.

And so we have had federal huffing and puffing over oil "shortages", and the new purchasing role given to the government-owned PetroCanada.

By hook or crook, Ontario will be made to seem selfish, narrow, anti-French, and linked with Joe Clark in an unholy alliance to destroy the central government and turn Canada into a warring collection of independent states. Who speaks for Canada? Guess who.

Running against the provinces, or a province, is nothing new for federal Liberals. Mackenzie King waged some of his most successful campaigns in the '30s and early '40s, not against Meighen, Manion or Bennett, but against Mitch Hepburn, the mercurial premier of Ontario, who happened to be not only a Liberal himself, but a former protege of King's.

King was helped in this by Hepburn's equally opportunistic policy of running, not against the provincial Tory Opposition, but against King's Liberals. The high point of foolishness in this campaign of Hepburn's came early in the Second World War when he got his majority in the legislature to pass a vote of non-confidence in the way Canada's war effort was being conducted by King's government.

King, a little later, preserved "national unity" by enacting a non-conscription conscription bill that made both the French and the Anglos mad, but not mad enough to turn him out in the first post-war election.

Since Trudeau would look foolish posing as the man who has kept Quebec happy within Confederation, national unity this time will mean something else, namely, protecting Canada from the machinations of those notorious Tory nation-wreckers, Bill Davis and Peter Lougheed.

As in King's day, it's a hell of a way to run a country.

PM wrestled down by winter

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM

WINNIPEG — In a world suddenly gone white, Mad Dog Vachon still outdraws that other fellow from Quebec, Pierre Trudeau.

If it is culture shock for a Liberal prime minister to enter this hostile territory, it is trauma verging on paralysis for a four-wheeled reporter to discover mid-winter in April after hearing nothing but chirping birds and chattering politicians from Halifax west to this meatchopper of a town.

While great clouds of steam emanated from the manholes on Portage Avenue and the temperature dropped to 24 below zero, Mr. Trudeau drew 1,500 to a high school auditorium while his francophone rival for the affections of Manitobans, the aforesaid Mad Dog, pulled in 5,000 of his devoted disciples to the Winnipeg Arena for yet another display of his professional wrestling skills.

To understand Winnipeg, it is necessary to examine both Mad Dog Vachon and the weather. Only then can you fathom the politics.

The rest of the country resounds to the smack of softball in a schoolyard mitt. In Winnipeg, it is still — on April 6 — the king-of-the-castle with kids tumbling one another from the high perch on snowbanks six feet high.

There have now been 93 straight days with the temperature below zero in the worst winter since 1936. This reporter, his veins filled with the warm fluid of coastal lotusland, tends to break out in tears when he finds the doors of his car frozen shut, since he doesn't have the faintest idea what to do and isn't in the practice of carrying a spare can of Sterno in his hip pocket. It is not for nothing the place is known as Winterpeg.

There is, also, the factor of Mad Dog, the most popular wrassler in the most crazy pro wrassling town on this or any other continent. The grunters average 7,000 voyeurs every stop here, the highest per-capita attendance of any city in Canada or the U.S.

The referee is Merv Unger, who recalls he was once in the ring with Gene Kiniski (one of the four or five "world champions" who operate under the territorial imperative) when someone lammed a full bottle of beer into the ring. "The top was off, so Kiniski drank it."

That's Winnipeg: practical, sardonic, a survivor. When winter lasts into April, you don't worry about niceties. If a free beer lands at your feet, you drink it.

It is, of course, why the elegant Pierre Trudeau from the slopes of Mount Royal has never been able to grasp the essence of this opening to the prairie mystique. In one of several astonishing gaffes in his first campaign week he flippantly told a Creditiste audience in Quebec's Beauce that all farmers are complainers.

The effect in Quebec may have been minimal, but that was front page shock treatment in Winnipeg and — one assumes — right across the prairies. Shades of the endlessly-misquoted "Why should I sell your wheat?"

"That puts the last nail in," says a youth whose lank hair dribbling down his neck indicates he is long gone from a tractor. "I figure with that remark he's written the West off and is going for the urban vote."

Winnipeg, as the centre of the country, the dividing line between those playing tennis in Toronto and the plains where the struggle from ice to thaw to possible flood is still worrying, had a nice sample the past two days of all three party leaders, their paths casually missing, their campaigns nicely contrasted.

Here is, at the Boni Food Coop in St. Boniface, the controlled and increasingly confident Ed Broadbent, practising "the politics of joy." One carefully-orchestrated "TV event" early enough each day to make the national evening newscasts.

One senses that the tightly-knit NDP strategists have the best sense of the public boredom level over a ridiculous eight-week campaign and are pacing themselves casually with their eyes on the stretch run. Ottawa scribes on board are grateful for the leisurely pace, knowing what lies in the future.

'Chaos' if School Boards Scrapped

B.C. '79

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm's proposal to eliminate provincial school boards will boost property taxes and create chaos in municipal governments, NDP leader David Barrett said Monday.

Vander Zalm had said during a recent campaign stop in Port Alberni that the government should consider eliminating school boards in favor of a system used in Alberta where counties incorporate the function of school districts.

"The system, if adopted, would be the end of school boards in B.C.," Vander Zalm said.

He did not say how the county system would affect regional districts, also under the jurisdiction of provincial government.

"I don't know if it is feasible or advisable, but our main criterion is to produce less government and less bureaucracy," Vander Zalm added.

He said he hadn't discussed the matter with the B.C. education ministry, but asked for public discussion on the suggestion. He said he would contact municipalities for their view.

Barrett said if the province intends to arbitrarily establish county commissions, then Premier Bill Bennett's motives must be questioned.

Barrett said the Social Credit Party government has never consulted with the municipalities and regional boards about changing local government, something which must be done before any changes are made.

Greater Victoria School Board chairman Carrol Pickup, an unsuccessful NDP candidate in the 1975 provincial election, said Education Minister Pat McGeer has also questioned the value of school boards in the past.

"The name of the game of this government is control. They don't want local autonomy," Pickup said. "I am glad Vander Zalm is honest enough to come out with what this government wants to do."

There are school trustees on county boards in Alberta where cities have both a public board and a board for education.

Alderman Criticizes Slapdash Park Work

Saanich council's parks and recreation committee wants to see all maintenance on Mount Douglas Park undertaken by Saanich staff because it is dissatisfied with the work now performed by the city of Victoria's parks personnel.

The committee recommended Monday night that the city be approached concerning the suggested takeover of maintenance responsibilities, on the basis that present cost-sharing arrangements remain unchanged.

The move followed complaints by Ald. John Mika and a spokesman for the Saanich Greenbelt Association about the present state of the park.

Mika said maintenance is carried out in a slapdash way and described the trail work as atrocious.

"The city isn't interested," he claimed. "For them it's a lark — a couple of days out in Saanich for the crew."

Hal Knight, president of the greenbelt preservation group, warned that if council doesn't make a commitment toward Mount Douglas Park its future will be one of continued neglect.

He said the association would like to see the park taken over entirely by Saanich, or failing that to be included in the regional parks system.

Mount Doug Park was given to Victoria by the province in 1882 but for the past 28 years Saanich has paid half the operating and maintenance costs.

Mika pointed out that because of the distance city crews have to travel with their equipment from the parks yard at Beacon Hill Park, maintenance costs are bound to be higher than if Saanich crews did the work.

In other business Monday night the parks and recreation committee:

—Recommended phased development of a cricket pitch at Cadboro-Gyro Park, in response to a request from the Saanich Cricket Club;

—Agreed to discuss with Greater Victoria school district representatives a proposal by the Vancouver Island Field Hockey Association for upgrading the hockey pitches at Lansdowne junior high school and providing better facilities and maintenance.

Victorian Charged

Gary David Kane, 22, of Victoria was charged Monday with two counts of pointing a firearm in a weekend incident near Duncan.

Kane was arrested Saturday after two RCMP officers failed to convince a man carrying a handgun to surrender. One of the officers fired a shot and the man was wounded and disarmed.

Kane, who will appear in provincial court here Wednesday, is under police guard in hospital. He is in good condition with a wound to his wrist.

Monday Postal Service Limited For the Holiday

There will be no rural delivery, counter or letter carrier postal services Easter Monday April 16, the post office announced Monday.

However, there will be at least one collection from street mail boxes. There will be access to lock boxes in post office lobbies where staff is on duty. Major receipts and despatch services as well as special delivery will be provided but on a Saturday service basis only.

Hardest Thing Is Smile

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Taxidermist Jake Ediger says getting a natural expression on an animal makes all the difference to the finished product.

Ediger, who has been a professional taxidermist here for 44 years, says his first experiment in taxidermy ended in disaster.

When he was 12, he found a dead hawk on the road. He stuffed a block of wood inside the hawk and sewed it up, but it dried up and shrank.

With the help of outdoor magazines, Ediger then began experimenting with dead birds and animals. In 1934, he decided to expand his hobby and took a correspondence course in taxidermy.

Today, he has orders stacked up. His business comes mostly from local trade, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. The most common trophy is sheep, followed by goats and deer, and he usually has orders for 12 to 18 caribou a year from sportsmen.

Cost of mounting a deer head is between $150 and $175, while moose heads cost between $250 and $375.

Nomination List Grows

Okanagan North — Jerry Winters, NDP.

Langley — Steve Duguid, NDP.

North Vancouver-Capilano — Angus Reid, SC.

5 YEARS OR 80,000km

This Chrysler option protects you for 5 years or 80,000 km on the power train. Two years longer than any other North American car maker's Plan.

You begin to appreciate what Chrysler engineering means when you compare how long we're willing to stand behind the most complex, and costly, engineering system in the entire car or truck: the power train. The Chrysler Canada 5/80 Protection Plan for 5 years or 80,000 km, whichever comes first, gives you longer coverage than GM or Ford by two full years.

Protection covers all major power train components.

When you buy the Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan, you get coverage that includes both the cost of parts and labour for repair of major components in your vehicle's engine, transmission or transaxle, drive axle, and drive shaft. You pay only the first $50 of the total cost of repairs made to these power train components during a repair visit.

The only other requirement adds up to just plain good sense: use your car or truck in a normal way and give it the routine maintenance called for in your Owner's Manual. Do this, and the major components of the entire power train are protected from expensive repair bills for 5 years or 80,000 km from the time you take original delivery of your vehicle.

Available to buyers of new 1979 Chrysler Canada cars and trucks.

The Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan is available to original individual retail buyers of most new 1979 Chrysler, Dodge and Plymouth vehicles purchased for personal use starting April 10, 1979. And the same low suggested retail price applies whether you lease or buy your car or truck. You can pay in a lump sum, charge it, or as with any other option, you can include it in your monthly payments.

You have up to 60 days to make up your mind.

You can buy your Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan at the same time as you buy your vehicle, or up to 60 days after. However, if you wish, you can cancel within 60 days of purchase and you'll still get a full refund from Chrysler Canada.

Your protection includes coverage for towing, car rental, even a toll free number to call for help.

If you have a problem with a component covered by the Plan causing your vehicle to be out of use overnight while being repaired, you get a car rental allowance that starts when you Purchase the Plan: up to $15 a day for up to 5 days per repair visit.

Should your vehicle need to be towed because of a problem with a covered power train component, you'll be reimbursed up to $25 per tow starting after your new vehicle warranty period expires.

And if power train trouble occurs while you're on the road, you can call a Chrysler Canada operator for assistance, toll free, seven days a week. Toll free numbers for Canada and the U.S. are listed on the back of the Ownercard which you will receive with the Plan.

CHRYSLER PROTECTION PLAN

It's Chrysler Canada's contract with you. You can call over 5,000 Dodge and Plymouth dealers all over Canada and the U.S.

Because this is a manufacturer-backed Plan, you have over 5,000 Dodge and Plymouth dealerships to call for assistance. If you are travelling and are unable to let your selling dealer service your vehicle, just take it to any Dodge or Plymouth dealer, show him your special Ownercard with your Vehicle Identification Number, and you'll be taken care of.

Today, with inflation and the costs of repairs almost constantly on the rise, the price you pay for Chrysler 5/80 Protection could very well be recovered by only one visit to your dealer! That's an indication of Chrysler Canada's confidence in the engineering of our products, and of the quality you can expect in the new Chrysler, Dodge or Plymouth you buy.

Passenger Cars and Station Wagons	Suggested Retail Price
Colt, Arrow	$196
Aspen, Volaré	$232
Diplomat, Caravelle, LeBaron, Cordoba, Magnum XE	$257
Newport, New Yorker Fifth Avenue	$281
Light Trucks and Vans
Dodge D50	$226
Dodge Pickup (2-wheel drive)	$257
Compact Vans and Wagons, Sport Utility (2-wheel drive)	$289
Cut-Off Van ("MB" Model)	$398
All 4-wheel Drive Trucks	$459
Motor Home Chassis ("M" Model)	$489

NOTE: DEALERS MAY SELL FOR LESS

Chrysler Canada protection gets stronger and stronger.

1. You're protected by the Chrysler 12-month/20,000 km warranty that applies to every new car or truck.

2. You're protected by the Chrysler 36-month Anti-Corrosion Warranty for perforation caused by corrosion, with no limit on the distance you drive.

3. And now you can be protected by the Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan, the longest offered in North America.

SPECIAL NO-CHARGE INTRODUCTORY OFFER

From now until May 10, 1979, the optional Chrysler 5/80 Protection Plan will be yours at no extra cost when you buy or lease a new 1979 Dodge Aspen or Diplomat, Plymouth Volaré or Caravelle, Chrysler LeBaron, Dodge Van or 2-Wheel Drive Domestic Pickup.

See your participating Dodge or Plymouth Dealer for more details.

School Board Supports Program for Star Students

The Greater Victoria school board is expected to give the green light to a tailor-made program for gifted students.

The board gave overwhelming support Monday night to the proposal, sketched by Esquimalt secondary principal Keith Bickmore.

The matter will be reviewed by the board again tonight and a resolution to establish the program at Bickmore's school is almost certain to be passed.

Bickmore told the trustees he sees the program as offering gifted students a three-year "package" that would take them up to first-year-university level, give professional experience opportunities, and provide extra cultural activities and instruction, including possible overseas travel.

He said the program would be an alternative to the Swiss-based International Baccalaureate Program which was rejected by the board last week.

Bickmore said his model would instead emphasize Canadian studies and be geared to local needs.

Although details of the program have not yet been worked out, Bickmore said he hopes it will be ready to start by September. The first class would consist of about 25 Grade 10 students. Applications are expected to be sent out to junior high schools in the district before the end of the current school year.

Bickmore said schools are offering special programs for slow learners but up to now, there has been little for students at the other end of the scale.

He emphasized the program will not be an accelerated program but rather one which would enrich gifted students.

"I don't believe children should be taken out of their peer groups," he said in an interview later.

2,4-D Refusal for Hydro

B.C. Hydro has been refused permission to use 2,4-D to stump-treat deciduous growth on rights-of-way between Tahsis and Gold River and areas between Gold River and Black Creek.

Wayne White of the B.C. Pollution Control branch in Courtenay said, however, B.C. Hydro could re-apply despite the decision.

The original plan drew extensive protests from the Comox Valley nuclear responsibility group and Comox-Strathcona regional directors planned to meet with Hydro to reiterate a standing motion against the use of 2,4-D.

Hydro planned to treat 70 acres between Gold River and Strahtcona and 35 acres north of Black Creek.

Meanwhile, the B.C. presticide control branch has approved four applications by Canadian National Railways to use herbicides at various rail properties in the Cowichan Valley.

Approval was given for the use of hyvar (bromacil) for right-of-way weed and brush control subject to 15 conditions. Among them is one requiring a pesticide-free zone of 10 metres around all wetlands and bodies of water.

3 New Cutters Set for Coast

Three new cutters each capable of a speed of 24 knots will be put into operation on the west coast in the next two years.

H.O. Buchanan of Vancouver, regional director of marine services for the department of transport, says a 70-foot cutter should begin operating out of Prince Rupert before the end of 1979.

A second 70-footer, to be based at Campbell River, should be in operation in 1980 and will replace the Relite.

The third cutter, a 40-footer, will be based at Kitsilano, replacing one of the two crash boats now in use, the Mallard and Moorhen.

Buchanan said the department will go to tender on the construction with construction time expected to be eight months per vessel.

The three new vessels are part of a $9.5 million Coast Guard program covering the building of seven such craft in order to improve search and rescue capabilities on both the east and west coasts, the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

Recreation Centre In Salt Spring Plan

A five-year master plan for development of recreational facilities on Salt Spring Island recommends construction of $773,800 worth of facilities, including tennis courts, baseball fields, a curling rink and recreation centre.

The plan is outlined in a 69-page report commissioned by the Salt Spring Parks and Recreation Commission and prepared by Professional Environmental Recreation Consultants of Surrey. It took nine months to complete.

Total cost of the report was $11,500; of which $2,500 was offset by volunteer help and a B.C. government grant. The findings were based on an analysis of existing recreation facilities and a survey of 1,248 residents.

SERVING BRITISH COLUMBIA SINCE 1894

Plant modernization and expansion are going forward in the pulp and paper industry; new tree harvesting equipment and new ways of doing things are possible because profits in the industry have improved. That means more jobs all around.

Profit: jobs

New investment in pulp and paper production is creating new jobs for Canadians in the industry and among suppliers. Better profits are starting to make things happen. There is more money to spend on advanced equipment, environmental controls and more efficient production techniques. Improved productivity will help Canada compete in tough international markets. And that matters: the forest industry supports one out of every ten Canadian jobs.

In Stephenville, Newfoundland, lunches will be packed again and Thermos bottles filled when around 650 people start back to work in a rebuilt paper mill and in woodlands operations.

In British Columbia, plant expansion in Powell River will create 700 construction jobs and 100 new, permanent jobs in the mill when construction is over.

Across Canada, forest products companies have announced plans to invest in modernizing mills, increasing manufacturing capacity, introducing new processes and harvesting equipment. This new investment adds up to billions of dollars over the next several years.

This job-making activity is happening because profits in the pulp and paper industry have improved.

The lion's share of Canada's pulp and paper is sold in the United States. The use of newsprint and other pulp and paper products has risen south of the border, so our industry has been going at full speed. These Canadian exports are paid for in American dollars, which have been worth considerably more than our own, increasing pulp and paper company profits in an unusual way. This increase in profits is beginning to help the industry catch up on the lean years just behind. But the industry cannot build a future on temporary exchange advantages.

Growth money

To compete with all comers in the global marketplace, the Canadian industry will have to invest hundreds of millions of dollars every year. Modern harvesting equipment, high productivity mills, new ways of doing things must be developed to help hold costs down. One year's good profit is not enough to achieve all these ends. Sustained healthy profit is necessary to support sustained healthy growth.

The pulp and paper industry is Canada's largest manufacturer: it brings in more export dollars and contributes more money to Canada's standard of living than any other industry — about $1,000 a year for each Canadian family.

The forest industry, directly and through its thousands of Canadian suppliers, creates one job in every ten in this country.

promising career. He later managed professionally in the Eastern Shores League and only once did he bat under .300.

He also starred in rugby, soccer, tennis and track and field. He was a provincial junior tennis champion when he was 15 and turned down a chance to join the junior Davis Cup program. In rugby, he became the first player to score a try against a touring New Zealand team in 1936; and in track and field he was the grand aggregate winner as a student at University School and in the Army Pacific Command meet in 1945.

His selection unites the Peden brothers in the Toronto-based Hall of Fame. Torchy, now living near Chicago, was elected to the hall several years ago.

Firby, 54, former coach of Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, was elected as a builder in recognition of his contribution to the development of Canadian swimming.

A commercial artist by trade, Firby's involvement with swimming began 33 years ago. During his career as coach of the Dolphins and, later, as a technical director with the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, he coached 11 of the 20 Canadians who broke world records. Under his guidance, Tanner won two silver medals in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

In 1956, Firby helped form the Dolphin club which, during the 11 years he was coach, won the Canadian team title six straight times. During the same period, he was Canada's national coach.

He moved to Victoria in 1974 to concentrate on coaching age-class swimmers with the Juan de Fuca club.

Boys, former resident of Pickering, Ont., was one of Canada's top divers for nearly a decade. From 1966 until her retirement in 1977, she won 34 Canadian championships in springboard and platform competition.

Boys, now living in Montreal, won three Commonwealth Games gold medals, two in Scotland in 1970 despite a serious ear injury and the other in Christchurch, New Zealand, in 1974.

She compiled a strong record in three Olympic Games. In 1968 she finished fourth, just a few points short of the medals, but she had the satisfaction of completing the best dive of the competition. That was a difficult 1½ somersault with a triple twist from the 10-metre tower.

In the annual Canadian Press poll, she was voted Canada's female athlete of the year in 1968 and 1969.

Wall was the youngest child in a family of 14 that resided in the Placentia Bay area of Newfoundland. He became a jockey in 1924, consistently weighing less than 100 pounds, and was the leading money-winning rider in the United States in 1938.

His most spectacular victory came in 1938 when he rode Stagehand to victory over Seabiscuit in the Santa Anita Handicap. During his career he had 11,164 mounts, of which 1,419 were winners.

Beers, a Montreal dentist who died in 1900, is regarded by many as the most significant developer of sport in Canada.

He is best known for taking the wildly unorganized Indian game of baggataway and transforming it into lacrosse by devising a simple and clear set of rules.

Canadian Dollar Cracks 87-Cent U.S. Mark

Times News Services

In New York at noon today the Canadian dollar was up 4-25 at 87.25 cents U.S.

The dollar moved up strongly against its U.S. counterpart Monday and broke the 87-cent U.S. barrier as money markets closed.

The Bank of Canada has been exerting continued pressures to slow the dollar's progress, since a quick rise can mean an erosion of Canada's competitive edge in exports.

"If it hadn't been for the Bank of Canada acting to level it out, we would have gone a lot further," a banker said.

Bank traders had predicted earlier this year that the Canadian dollar would not pass the 87-cent U.S. mark in 1979.

where he is campaigning that Prime Minister Trudeau has only offered insults to the unemployed, a reference to Trudeau telling jobless in Vancouver to "get off your ass" and work.

"I am determined to get Canadians working again," the Progressive Conservative leader said, reiterating a pledge last week to lower the unemployment rate to 5.5 per cent by 1985.

Statistics Canada said the unemployment rate for men aged 15-24 increased slightly to 14.5 per cent in March from 14.4 per cent in February. The rate remained unchanged at 4.7 per cent from men 25 and over.

The unemployment rate for women 15-24 dipped slightly to a seasonally-adjusted 13.1 per cent from 13.4 while the rate for women 25 and over increased to 7.3 per cent from 7.2.

Newfoundland, which has the highest unemployment rate in the country, showed an increase in the rate again to 17.6 per cent from 17.1 per cent.

There was a sharp increase in the unemployment rate in Prince Edward Island, to 12.2 per cent from 10.8 per cent.

The rate in Nova Scotia increased to a seasonally-adjusted 11 per cent from 10.5 per cent and it was up to 12.1 per cent from 11.6 per cent in New Brunswick.

The rate increased to 10.6 per cent from 10.2 per cent in Quebec and to 6.7 per cent from 6.6 per cent in Ontario.

The seasonally-adjusted rate declined to 5.2 per cent from 5.6 per cent in Manitoba, to 4.2 per cent from 4.7 per cent in Saskatchewan, to 3.7 per cent from 4.2 per cent in Alberta and to eight per cent from 8.5 per cent in British Columbia.

Pilot Unhurt

A pilot escaped injury about 7 a.m. today when his Helio Courier single-engine plane crashed while taking off from a private airfield north of Duncan.

RCMP identified him as Keith Fraser, 38.

A police spokesman said cause of the crash was believed to be engine power failure.

going to make damn sure they're not mine."

In Ruthven, Ont., Clark avoided a direct answer Monday to questions concerning a possible deal between the federal Conservatives and federal Social Credit party to go easy on each other in Quebec ridings where either party has a strong candidate.

"To the best of my knowledge," Clark said, it was only "coincidence" that Flora MacDonald, the Tory constitutional affairs critic was in Quebec City last Thursday meeting with new Crediste leader Fabien Roy after he announced his resignation from the Quebec National Assembly.

According to reports from Conservative officials in Quebec, Roy and MacDonald met a second time during the weekend, either in his Beauce constituency or in Montreal.

But the officials revealed the deal between the two parties has not yet been agreed because they cannot decide what constituencies should be included.

Cowichan Bay, one of 65 Bamford paintings on exhibit at Art Gallery

Offspring Retrace Roots To View Artist's Work

Farflung descendants of a pioneer Victoria artist whose canvases captured many familiar local landscapes have retraced their roots to see an exhibition of his paintings at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Kin of painter Thomas Bamford came from as far afield as Houston, Texas, and San Diego and Ventura, Calif., for the exhibition which opened Feb. 28 and runs to April 15, assistant gallery director Robert Amos said Monday.

Among those present at a family reunion banquet Saturday night was Hal Bamford of Seattle, one of six children raised by Bamford and his wife Violet in their James Bay home.

Born in Liverpool, England, Thomas Bamford emigrated to Boston and travelled to Oregon before settling in Victoria in 1882.

His landscape subjects included Victoria's Inner Harbor, Beacon Hill Park, the Saanich Peninsula, Goldstream, Cowichan Lake and the Gulf Islands.

Amos said there has been keen interest in the 65 works exhibited, which are mostly in local private ownership and came from more than 20 different sources.

"As far as prices in this town are concerned, I rarely heard previously of one being sold for more than $35, yet a number of people have told me they would willingly pay much, much more today for the pictures they own."

TOWN TALK

Very puzzling was the real estate ad in the morning paper under the commercial-industrial property section.

With the heading "Harbor View" it reads: "Office building with harbor view for sale. Former head office of Mining, Forestry and Resource firm. Also business office of many Social Service organizations. Possible heritage designation. 501 Belleville. Dan Campbell agent. 387-6200."

Three points to note: The address given is that of the Legislative Buildings, the phone number is Premier Bill Bennett's and Dan Campbell works out of the premier's office, responsible for inter-governmental relations.

Until the provincial election campaign, Elwood Veitch's devastation of the English language was fairly well hidden up in the legislative precincts.

"Under Social Credit, everyone can strive for success with nothing to hold us back but our own volition."

And looking ahead, Elwood said "tomorrow is here, now, in British Columbia."

A couple more :"We've got to develop the programs that are planned and that development plans on you."

"I know you're going to be fitting to the task. I know you're going to spread out your arms with all other British Columbians and sweep the field."

And finally:"As it happens in London, the more we rebuild the city the less they forget the war."

Despite what it says on the application form, children will still be allowed to participate in the Victoria Day parade this year.

Complaints began to come into city hall today when it was discovered that application forms for the parade stated that all participants who were to walk the route must be at least 15 years old.

However, Ald. Robin Blencoe, who checked into the matter, said the statement on the form is an honest mistake, and anyone over the age of six can take part in the parade.

Included in the so-called paracourse are such things as a balance beam, "log hop" and chin-up and vault bars.

Work on the 18-station circuit is to start immediately and it is hoped the course will be ready for use by July 1, the parks and recreation committee was told Monday night.

Aldermen thanked the service club for providing the facility.

Two committee members, Ald. Howard Sturrock and Ald. John Mika, said they had used similar fitness circuits in North Vancouver and Port Alberni and found them excellent.

Veteran federal enumerator Elaine Larose has some questions about the provincial enumeration. What she wants to know is where the provincial government is getting its list of registered voters.

She duly received a card in the mail on Monday, saying her name was on the list and telling her where to vote. However, she also received a card to the same address for her son, who hasn't lived there for months, and one for her married daughter who has never lived there at all.

With such efficiency, she wonders, can cards for those who have died be far behind?

The Election Hot Line Is Busy, Too

At least they named it appropriately.

The so-called Victoria hot line for voters to check whether their names are registered for the provincial election is so hot most of the time it's almost impossible to get through.

Callers have to have superhuman patience and determination and/or lots of time.

A Victoria Press switchboard employee who wanted to find out whether her own name was on the list tried all day Saturday, each attempt frustrated by the busy signal.

And the Times has fielded several angry calls from other Victorians who have been trying in vain to call 387-5909 or 387-1953, 54 and 55 before the voters list is shut off Wednesday.

But — you guessed it — his line was busy all day Monday.

The office, at 933 Yates, is open until 11 p.m. tonight and midnight Wednesday.

Those eligible to vote are Canadian citizens or British subjects resident in B.C. for six months and 19 years old and up on May 10.

The chief electoral officer said the voters' list, compiled in a house-to-house enumeration in the fall of 1978, is being updated and will be closed off at midnight Wednesday.

Morton said nominations would close at 1 p.m. Thursday, April 26, and the advance poll would be from May 3 to 5.

The vote is restricted to Canadian citizens by birth or naturalization, or British subjects, who will be 19 years old or over by election day, and who have been residents of Canada for a year and in B.C. for six months. About 1.6 million voters had been enumerated.

Man Held In Rooftop Break-In

Police went to the co-op after the caretaker reported a man with a ladder on the roof shortly after midnight.

A police spokesman said the man entered through a skylight and used the ladder to drop to an upstairs storage area.

He made his way into the co-op office where a safe had been broken open when officers converged.

The suspect gave himself up without struggle. He was to appear in provincial court later today charged with breaking and entering and theft.

Area Schools In Crummy State: Trustee

As far as Victoria school trustee Mark Fisher is concerned the state of the schools in the district is "crummy, crummy, crummy," and likely to remain that way to the year 2000 unless the public wakes up.

Fisher told a board meeting Monday the only way the problems will be solved is if some schools are closed.

He said planners are forecasting a drop of 10,000 in enrolment in the district over the next 10 years and if this happens, a third of the school facilities will become redundant.

"Until the people of Victoria are prepared to accept the concept that some schools should be closed, we'll go on spending our $15 million in a piddly way," he said.

"We'll continue to have crummy schools with crummy washrooms with each individual school having crummy blacktop and dirty driveways."

Board chairman Carol Pickup, however, reiterated the majority position of the board to keep neighborhood schools open.

"If (the people) want neighborhood schools, it's obviously going to cost more," she said.

Their comments came after two school groups appeared before the board to complain about school conditions.

A student delegation from Lambrick Park secondary led by Heather Alexander asked the board for more support in getting provincial funds for improvements to their school, including a second floor of classrooms which was included in the original building design.

They were followed by a parents' group from George Jay elementary school who complained that the school district is neglecting proper maintenance and renovations at the 70-year-old school.

The Lambrick Park students said the school's inadequate heating and ventilation system is so bad the smells from chemistry experiments nearly drive the whole school outdoors.

They said the 550 member student-body lacks a lunch room.

"Our cafeteria at present is a small table."

The library quarters are so small an ordinary class of 30 can barely fit, in, they said. And the temporary annex at the back of the school is inaccessible to students with physical handicaps.

The board sympathized with the students but several trustees pointed out a request for capital funds had been turned down by the provincial ministry of education and because of that, their hands were tied.

The board, however, agreed to investigate George Jay complaints of leaking gutters, peeling plaster and a heating system that parents' association spokesman Jean Taylor described as antiquated, inefficient and wasteful.

Sign Workers Walk Off Job

Management and union representatives were meeting today in a bid to end a walkout by employees in the highways ministry's signs shop in Langford.

The employees, members of Local 1001 of the B.C. Government Employees Union, were parading outside the shop on Jacklin Road.

The unidentified employee was origianlly given a three-day suspension.

The picketers refused to return to work today after the suspension was shortened to one day.

A spokesman for the 14 workers said the incident is only one of several which have caused poor working conditions in the shop.

Lottery Fund Aids Hospital

Q. I have been making a study of war memorials. Can you tell me which is the oldest one in England and where it is situated?

A. One of the huge windows in Gloucester Cathedral is regarded as the nation's first war memorial. It was installed in 1346 in memory of some of the men who fought in the battle of Crecy in France. The window contains the weapons of some of the fighters.

Pair Held After Chase

The men are to appear in provincial court charged with breaking and entering and theft and possession of stolen property. The 26-year-old driver also faces charges of dangerous driving and driving without a driver's licence.

An Oak Bay police spokesman said the truck, owned by the federal department of health and welfare, was stolen overnight from Dunsmuir Shell Service, 1321 Yates.

The chase began when an Oak Bay officer noticed the pickup speeding on Foul Bay Road at 12:45 a.m. and tried to pull it over.

A second Oak Bay patrol car joined the pursuit and followed the truck down Oak Bay Avenue and onto Fort. The driver of the truck attempted to turn onto Morrison but lost control and crashed into a tree.

Police said the driver and a 19-year-old passenger received minor cuts and were treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital before being lodged in police cells.

Angry Exodus Over Septic Dump Plan

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

About 150 angry View Royal residents stormed out of a public hearing Monday night after telling the Capital Regional District they won't stand for septic tank dumping in their area.

The walkout came after former regional director Pat Massey asked how many residents have to go on record as opposing the proposed dumping facility at 58 Helmcken Road before the regional board is convinced.

The mass exodus was triggered by one man who stomped out, saying, "View Royal is not in favor of this damn thing."

The unidentified man said it was unfair after residents had voted for adequate sewers and a new hospital to have a garbage dump foisted on them.

From the time the meeting began the crowd was belligerent and determined.

"How stupid do you think the people of View Royal are?" said one man who described himself as a landscaper.

"It's going to take five to 10 years before you get anything that looks like that. Meanwhile, people driving up and down the road and people going into the hospital are looking at that stinking hole in there and knowing what it is for."

When Howard said he did not think the facility would affect property values the CRD was accused of block-busting.

The CRD was accused of ignoring the Advisory Planning Commision and View Royal regional director Al Beasley's objections to the proposed single-storey building that would house storage tanks for septic tank effluent prior to dumping into the Macauley Point system.

The CRD has an option on 1[illegible] acres across from the proposed hospital site, just off the Trans-Canada Highway.

Beasley said after the meeting he will resign if the regional board continues processing the rezoning bylaw over the overwhelming opposition of View Royal residents.

Numerous briefs were presented.

One from R.E. Preece, 18 Stillwater, said: "This is prime residential land. We who were pro-sewer advocates have fought for years to have sewers installed with the enthusiastic encouragement of the CRD and, whem we were finally successful, to have the CRD propose this obscenity is worse than a slap in the face."

The crowd applauded when Thelma Dawson said: "The arrogant disregard of the View Royal community plan shows the public how powerful regional boards have become. Were I the minister of municipal affairs I would be watching most carefully to see that my authority was not being undermined. It seems to me that the Capital Regional Board, who are supported by our taxes, are not supporting our interests."

She said if the bylaw is passed View Royal residents are prepared to take their case to the cabinet of the provincial government.

OUT AT HOME is Bruce Bochte of Seattle Mariners, who slide in to home plate but was beaten by Oakland Athletics' pitcher John Johnson in American League baseball game Monday at Seattle. PLAYOFFS OPEN ON FOUR FRONTS

'Loose' Is Word For the Canucks

By The Canadian Press

An oddity of this year's pairings in the first round of Stanley Cup playoffs is that none of the eight teams involved has ever met its current opponent before in post-season play. And few of them have impressive playoff records.

Philadelphia Flyers, the most recent winners of the cup among the eight, having sipped champagne from it in 1974 and 1975, open their best-of-three series at the Spectrum tonight against Vancouver Canucks, who have made only two previous playoff appearances in nine years, both of them brief.

The Canucks and Atlanta Flames, who entertain Toronto Maple Leafs tonight, share the woeful experience of never having won a playoff series — Vancouver in two tries and the Flames in four.

One might figure Vancouver Canucks to be a little light-headed and wobbly-kneed as they head into the battle with the Flyers.

The Flyers finished the regular season with 32 more points, 15 more wins and 17 less losses than their guests from the Canadian west.

However, Canucks' coach Harry Neale says the proper description of his charges is "loose."

"Since everybody expects us to lose, we're coming into Philly loose," Neale said. "We have nothing to lose. I would think the pressure's on the Flyers. It's their building. They're expected to win."

Also, Bernie Parent is still nursing an eye injury and Rick MacLeish's suiting up is doubtful following his hospital bout with the "gonk," a skin rash which, inexplicably, afflicts hockey players.

Pittsburgh Penguins, who open their series in Buffalo against the Sabres, have done a little better in playoffs. But not lately.

The Penguins got as far as the semi-finals in 1970, their third year in the league. Since then, they have missed the playoffs entirely four times and bowed out in the first round on three other occasions.

Los Angeles Kings, who tackle New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden, were semi-finalists back in 1969 and haven't duplicated the achievement since.

The Sabres' finest hour was a memorable Stanley Cup final against Philadelphia in 1975, which they lost in six games. Then they were losing quarter-finalists three years in a row.

The two oldest Toronto players, Ron Ellis and Garry Monahan, were around when the Leafs won their last championship in 1967. But the Rangers haven't hoisted a Stanley Cup pennant since 1940. That's two years before Phil Esposito was born.

Milestone or Not, Brock Plans to Quit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lou Brock, St. Louis Cardinals' base-stealing king, says he is retiring from baseball at the end of the season whether or not he reaches another milestone, the 3,000-hit mark.

His boss, Cards owner August A. Busch Jr., told a news conference to announce the retirement plans Monday that records have never been Brock's prime objective.

"Earlier this year, when Lou personally informed me of his decision, he made it very clear that while he would love to get 3,000 hits, he was interested only in helping the team become a winner," Busch said.

Brock is still 100 hits away from the 3,000-Hit Club, but he already has the single-season and all-time major league stolen base records locked up.

He topped Maury Wills' single-season record of 104 in 1974 with 118 and now has 918 for his career, 26 more than Ty Cobb's 892.

Although there has been speculation about a permanent place with the Cardinals organization, Brock said "nothing has been firmed up."

Busch said he personally will be in charge of a Lou Brock Day on Sept. 9.

Cougar Task Gets Tougher After a Dramatic Playoff Win

The weekend in review and Victoria Cougars have finally made it into the Western Division Western Hockey League final. Saturday's win over New Westminster was a dramatic windup to a confusing playoff in which few seemed to know just what tie-breaking format was in effect until the double-round robin was all but completed. It never was properly spelled out and Monday's explanation of reading from the wrong book is hardly a valid excuse. However, all's well that ends well, I suppose, and Gary Lupul, just as he has been much of the season, was the deserving emergent hero of the piece.

And good luck to the men of Jack Shupe in the final against Portland. They'll need it. They have given good value this season, witness the capacity crowd at Memorial on Saturday and, given a break or two, they will have a chance. But the task is formidable as the Winter Hawks, easily the class during the season, must be rated the prohibitive favorite.

Speaking of playoffs, the first-round National Hockey League pairings are set and how they came about, as a reader correctly suggests, wasn't properly explained either. Okay. Division runners-up and the four wild card teams, regardless of division, are the teams in the first round with the team with the best record (i.e. Philadelphia) playing the team with the worst record, regardless of division (i.e. Vancouver), with the second best playing the second worst and so on ... and that's how it goes until next week when four teams will have been eliminated.

New York Islanders came of age by finishing on top of the over-all standings. But even before the Canadiens got headed, reports that the Montreal dynasty was showing signs of crumbling were emanating from the Eastern press along with the rumors that coach Scotty Bowman doesn't plan on being with the club next year. These rumors were circulating last year at the same time. But this time there appears to be more substance to the stories and, so far at least, nobody has come right out and denied them. Be that as it may, the Canadiens are still No. 1 until someone proves otherwise, and that's more easily said than done.

But it sure looms as a dandy, doesn't it, if the Islanders and Canadiens can get together in the final series.

★ ★ ★

The opening playoff round may produce some surprises — it usually does — but don't count on the Canucks to be one of them. Although at their peak now, they appear to be in too deep against Philadelphia. The Rangers on the other hand could have trouble with Los Angeles Kings. Pittsburgh-Buffalo looms a toss up, and it would be no surprise here if Toronto Maple Leafs get by Atlanta. If they do, look out, as goalie Mike Palmateer, in this book, is one player who might turn the playoffs around for the Leafs. In Toronto they think so too. The new game for a new hero is putting his name to lyrics as Jim Proudfoot penned in The Star a few weeks ago, one going like this:

Hey, and if the golfing guys aren't careful, the gals are going to grab more of the weekly television glory. That was an excellent article in The Times last week explaining the lack of identity that has hit the men professionals. On the other hand, there certainly has been no identity crisis in women's ranks the past few weeks and I'll wager more than a few husbands have been sneaking a peak at Nancy Lopez, Joanne Carner, Sandra Post, et al. Yes, the gals have come a long way and, when it is realized attendance at the Dinah Shore classic was up 25 per cent over a year ago, it figures.

But it's okay guys, now the Masters. That'll bring all the heroes back and perhaps point up a couple of new ones. Just by the magic of the name. It always does.

Speaking of golf, time marches on and Laurie Kerr will be the first to acknowledge that fact. In the Island Open qualifying round on Sunday, three 76s were drawn in and Laurie was one of them. But this was the handicap division, Laurie's gross was 81, and yes, it was that long ago that Laurie was in the top group hereabouts and also in the province. Golf was a loser these past few weeks with the deaths of George Kerr, 81, father of Laurie, and a walking, talking encyclopedia on the game for an aspiring journalist; and Johnny Wren, a fixture at Uplands for half a century. My, the stories they could tell, and did, about the early days. But now those links are gone and will ne missed. And then there was Monday's late flash that Sports Ed Doug Peden had been elected to Canada's Sports Hall of Fame. Congratulations are due and we gave him the day off.

Bombers Sign Schultz

WINNIPEG (CP) — Import quarterback Eddie Schultz, who played college football at Moorhead, Minn., has signed a contract with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference.

Schultz, 24, six-foot-two and 200 pounds, holds 19 Moorhead State passing records, seven Northern Intercollegiate conference passing marks, and two U. S. national passing records.

The Bombers also announced the signing of import defensive back Rondy Colbert, who has three years of professional experience.

Reuss Quick To Thank Dodgers for The Favor

By The Associated Press

Hint: It wasn't Terry Forster.

Give up? Would you believe Jerry Reuss?

Surely you remember Reuss, winner of 108 major league games. However, only three of those victories came last year when Reuss was the forgotten man on the Pirates' staff, appearing in only 23 contests.

In case you missed it, Reuss was traded to Los Angeles over the weekend for pitcher Rick Rhoden. The Dodgers promptly put him to work. The six-foot-five southpaw hurled four scoreless innings, allowing one hit, to preserve Bob Welch's 2-1 triumph over Houston Astros.

"My attitude has always been just give me the ball and I'll pitch," Reuss said. "Lasorda (manager Tom Lasorda) told me before the game he might need help in the bullpen and that I'd be first up. I said fine.

"I wanted to stay in Pittsburgh, that's why I signed a no-cut contract. But I wasn't going to get the ball in Pittsburgh this year, so I'm glad I came to a team that's a contender where I'll get a chance to pitch."

In the only other National League game, Tom Seaver struck out 10 in eight innings and also hit a home run as Cincinnati Reds whipped Atlanta Braves 9-4.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers downed Kansas City Royals 7-3 and Seattle Mariners beat Oakland A's 5-2.

Seaver got his 10th career home run in the fourth inning. Johnny Bench also homered for Cincinnati, while Gary Matthews and Barry Bonnell connected for Atlanta. Seaver allowed seven hits in eight innings.

Ruppert Jones drove in two runs and scored a third as Seattle handed the winless A's their fourth consecutive defeat.

Roughriders Sign Three

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League have announced the signing of veteran Steve Mazurak and two Canadians. Defensive tackle Lorne Degroot, 22, and linebacker Rick Dundas, 24, are the others.

Jansch May Play Tonight

Winger Bob Jansch, one of the hardest shooters with Cougars, might be back in the lineup tonight when the Victoria team visits Portland Winter Hawks for the opening game of the best-of-seven Western Division playoff final in the Western Hockey League.

Jansch was sidelined Mar. 28 with a badly-bruised leg and has been skating for several days.

Manager-coach Jack Shupe said Jansch might play tonight but added that defenceman Todd Morton, out since mid-March with a knee injury, is still "doubtful".

The series continues Wednesday and Friday at Memorial Arena and returns to Portland on Saturday. If further games are needed, they will be played Sunday in Portland, Monday at Memorial and Tuesday in Portland.

In the only league game Monday, Gord Williams scored three times to lead Lethbridge Broncos to a 9-7 win over Calgary Wranglers in the opening game of the best-of-seven Central Division playoff final.

Lethbridge, which trailed 3-1 after the first period, fired 41 shots at Wafren Skorodenski while Greg Dumba and Lee Pickett faced 37 Lethbridge shots. Te teams were tied 4-4 after 40 minutes.

Lethbridge took six of 11 minor penalties and each team picked up three majors. Calgary got the game's only misconduct.

The two teams meet again Wednesday evening in Lethbridge before the series switches to Calgary Friday and Saturday. If necessary, they meet in Lethbridge Sunday, Calgary Monday and back in Lethbridge Tuesday.

Rutherford, McCourt Head Team Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The two men primarily responsible for depriving Montreal Canadiens of first place in the National Hockey League are mainstays of Canada's entry in the world hockey championships which start in Moscow Saturday.

Goaltender Jim Rutherford of Detroit Red Wings, who blanked Montreal Canadiens 1-0 in their final game of the NHL season Sunday night, and centre Dale McCourt, who scored the winning goal, permitted New York Islanders to squeeze past Montreal by one point in the league standings.

With Detroit out of the Stanley Cup playoffs, Rutherford and McCourt were free to board a plane Monday for Goteborg, Sweden, where they and 18 other members of eliminated NHL teams begin training today for the eight-country international competition.

The team's 22-man roster limit is likely to be filled with two World Hockey Association players when the WHA's playoff picture is determined. No players will be added from teams eliminated in the first round of NHL playoffs.

The 20 men who left for Sweden Monday were:

Picard, who was chosen for the NHL team that lost to the Soviet Union in the Challenge Cup series last February but did not see action, said he and his team-mates are looking forward to the competition.

"The team is young and spirited and most of the guys have something to prove," he said. "Most of these guys are winners. We just play on losing teams.

"This, for me, will be a chance to show what I can do against the Russians. This is how the whole team feels. We think we can be competitive, do what we did last year."

"We're a year older now, a little more aware of what to expect," said Charron, a member of the 1978 team, who scored 70 points for Washington.

Picard, who has a broken nose and sore shoulder, is one of a number of players suffering from minor injuries but is expected to be ready for the team's first start against the United States Saturday.

One absentee among the original choices is Colorado defenceman Barry Beck, who has a strained knee and was replaced by his team-mate, Johansen.

The Canadians will play an exhibition game against the Swedish national team Wednesday before proceeding to Moscow, where their opponents in the preliminary round will be the U.S., Czechoslovakia and Finland.

Loud Putter Noises On Quiet One's Return

Among the Victoria professionals who have chased after money on the golf trails, Bob Beauchemin stands out as the quiet one.

Very opposite to Bill Wakeham, the unabashed extrovert who now runs things at Cowichan, and unlike Cec Ferguson, who sprinkled confidence with meticulous organization when he set out.

If you want to measure his personality with another, then "The Beau" is more like John Morgan. Like Morgan, Beauchemin went after the gold ring without much fanfare.

Whereas Morgan, Ferguson and Wakeham all started touring with sponsors, Beauchemin began with only his money in his pocket. That's the hardest way to go but the 24-year-old southpaw survived.

"I didn't make much money," Beauchemin said shortly after his return from Australia at the weekend, "but then I didn't lose much."

His second visit to the Australia-New Zealand circuit was satisfying.

In 10 tournaments, he finished fourth twice and was fifth in another pair. He finished in the top 10 in six tournaments all told and missed the top 20 only once.

"I was pleased with my consistency," said Bob. "While I didn't win any tournaments, I was always there."

The Beau also was pleased when he received the "Order of Merit" from the Australian PGA. That means Beauchemin is exempt from qualifying for any tournament next winter, if he decides to return.

Beauchemin, who picked off medallist honors in the Vancouver Island Open's qualifying test at Glen Meadows on Sunday, is undecided about his future, "except that I'll stick around here for a few months."

"There's a lot more to being successful on tour than just hitting a long ball," he said. "And I feel a learned a lot in Australia."

There is more to learn, he inferred, and he hasn't given up on the idea of giving the U.S. tour a try.

If the putting touch he enjoyed Sunday stays with him, he might try for his (USPGA) Approved Players' Card sooner than even he expected.

In capturing Sunday's medal with a two-under-par 70, Beauchemin displayed superb control of his drives, except for one instance, but was most happy with his putting. He had seven one-putt greens, 29 in all, and that was one aspect of his game that did not please him "Down Under."

"I had problems putting," he said, "but if I putted like this in Australia, I'm feel I would have had a chance to win a tournament or two."

City Rowers Win Silvers in U.S.

SAN DIEGO — Two oarsmen from Victoria were on the list of British Columbia medal winners at the San Diego Crew Classic rowing regatta here at the weekend.

Bruce Ford and Pat Walter of the Victoria City Rowing Club finished second to two former United States national team members in the double sculls while crews from Vancouver won and placed second in two eights events.

Burnaby Lake Aquatic Club won the gold medal in the women's event and Vancouver Rowing Club finished second in the men's race.

Baseball Trade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers have obtained pitcher Jerry Reuss, 29, from Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for pitcher Rick Rhoden, 25, in a National League baseball trade.

Trottier, Dionne Take Major Scoring Honors

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders, the first player from a National Hockey League expansion team to win the individual scoring title collects $1,000 as over-all winner and $500 as first-half leader.

Trottier, a 22-year-old native of Val Marie, Sask., ended the season with 134 points, including a league-leading 87 assists. He had a four-point lead over runner-up Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings.

The scoring champion of the previous three seasons, right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens, finished with 129 points — one fewer than Dionne.

This marks the first time since 1974-75 that the scoring leader was not either the second-half leader or runner-up. Dionne led in the second half with 69 points. He was also the leader in 1974-75 when Bobby Orr won the title.

Dionne collects $500 as over-all runner-up, plus $500 as second-half leader, while Lafleur receives $250 as first-half runner-up.

Michel Bossy, right winger on the Islanders' line of Trottier, Bossy and Gillies, was runner-up in the second half of the seasons with 66 points and receives $250.

Bossy became the first rookie to score at least 50 goals in a season last year when he scored 53. This season he was tops in the league with 69. That was the second-highest total recorded.

Phil Esposito recorded 76 while a member of Boston Bruins in 1970-71. Included in Bossy's total were a league-leading 27 power-play goals, one shy of Esposito's 1971-72 record.

Four players reached the 50-goal total. In additiona to Bossy, Dionne has 59, Lafleur 52 and Guy Chouinard of Atlanta Falmes 50.

Seven players attained 100 or more points, including Denis Potvin of the Islanders. Potvin became the second defenceman ever to reach or better that mark. He had 101 points, including 31 goals. Orr reached the 100-point mark six straight seasons while with the Bruins.

The other 100-point scorers were: Bossy 126; Bob MacMillan, Atlanta 108; Chouinard 107. The last time there were as many players with at least 100 points was in 1975-76 when nine reached the figure.

The Vezina Trophy was won for a fourth straight season by Montreal Canadiens.

Ken Dryden, who led the league in shutouts with five and had the best personal goals-against average of 2.30, has now had his name on the Vezina five times, one short of the record by two former Canadiens, Bill Durnan and Jacques Plante.

Dryden and Michel Larocque, who shared the award with Dryden the previous two seasons, combined to give Montreal a goals-against total of 204 — 10 goals fewer than Glenn Resch and Bill Smith of the Islanders.

The winners share $1,500 as over-all champions, plus $250 for each half in which they led. Resch and Smith share $750 as over-all runnersup.

A's Take Third Big Six Title

Bryan Preston scored at 19:36 of the second sudden-death overtime period Monday at Memorial Arena to give Victoria Athletics a 4-3 win over Western Homes Buckaroos and the South Island Big Six Hockey League playoff title.

The win, which gave Athletics their third consecutive playoff crown, came during the deciding game in a best-of-seven series.

John Entzminger scored two goals to lead the Athletics and the other single was added by Gord Neilson.

Steve Leatham, Norm Allen and Murray Kennett scored for Buckaroos, who were ahead 2-1 going into the final period of regulation time.

Saanich Clubs Find Success

Saanich Hornets, Saanich Vampires and Juan de Fuca Tigers opened the Vancouver Island Junior Bantam Football League on a winning note Sunday.

Hornets, sparked by the three-touchdown performance of Doug Waldic, trounced Oak Bay 42-12. Vampires edged Nanaimo Pirates 14-6 in the Up-Island centre and Juan de Fuca downed Cowichan Patriots 21-1.

Willard Takes 'B' Squash Title

VANCOUVER — Dale Willard of Victoria Racquet Club collected the British Columbia men's "B" class title by defeating Vishnu Singh of the host Vancouver Racquet Club 3-1 at the weekend.

Steve Lawton topped David Thomas 3-2 in the all-Calgary "A" final.

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League have announced the signing of import running back Jimmy Rogers, 23, formerly with the University of Oklahoma. Rogers is 184 pounds and stands five feet 10 inches tall.

Juan de Fuca Club Tackles French Team

International rugby will make its first-ever appearance at Juan de Fuca Recreation Centre on Saturday.

Appearing at the Colwood pitch will be Maison La Fitte, a touring French side that will tangle with Juan de Fuca Vampires, who are playing their first season in the second division of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union.

Game time is 2 p.m.

DRIVE AWAY.

IF YOU NEED A PERSONAL LOAN FOR A CAR, OUR BANK CAN HELP.

If you're planning to borrow for a car, consider a personal loan from the Commerce. And while you're thinking it over, pick up your free copy of Our Bank's helpful booklet on personal loans at any Commerce branch across Canada. It contains basic information about loan eligibility and the range of Commerce personal loans. Here's just a sample of the information in our booklet:

THE COMMERCE TREATS PERSONAL LOANS PERSONALLY.

Every Commerce manager or Loans Officer is trained to judge your eligibility for a loan on the basis of your individual situation. We'll ask you some basic questions about yourself, such as, how long you've lived at your present address, worked at your job, whether you rent or own your home, if you have any outstanding loans or accounts and, of course, the purpose of your loan. This kind of information helps us select the best type of Commerce personal loan for you.

DON'T DISQUALIFY YOURSELF.

Don't prejudge your eligibility for a personal loan. Whether you're married or single, male or female, you're treated as an individual. Our policy is simple and straightforward. What we look for is your ability to manage the loan you need; to make the required payments while still meeting your other commitments.

DON'T LET THE IDEA OF A CREDIT RATING UNNERVE YOU.

We'll ask your permission to check your credit rating. Keep in mind that a credit rating is simply a point of reference. The decision to lend you the money you need is based on careful consideration of every aspect of your situation.

THE COST OF A COMMERCE PERSONAL LOAN.

Together we'll work out repayment terms suited to your budget, so that you don't get in over your head. For example, the repayment plan, and interest rate on your loan will be established according to the type of collateral offered and your cash flow. Interest rates on Commerce personal loans are competitive and, in most cases, life insurance, at no extra cost, will be a feature of your loan.

YOUR CAR MAY BE USED AS COLLATERAL.

You may pledge the car you purchase with your loan as security on the loan, itself. Or you may have stocks, bonds, equity in your home or another form of approved collateral to pledge against a personal loan for a preferred interest rate. However, the most important "security" on the loan is your personal commitment to repay it in accordance with the terms of the loan agreement.

HOW LONG DOES IT TAKE TO GET A LOAN?

If it's a Carplan loan, in most cases, you can have the money that day. Or if we've agreed that another type of loan makes more sense for your situation, it may take slightly longer. In either case, you can take the money with you in the form of a cheque or have it deposited in your Commerce account.

WHETHER OR NOT YOU'RE A COMMERCE CUSTOMER, COME IN AND TALK OVER A PERSONAL LOAN TODAY.

Buying a car is just one good reason to talk over a personal loan with us. If you need to borrow for any worthwhile purpose, a Commerce personal loan can help. Our Bank will welcome you at more branches than any other bank in Canada. And don't forget to pick up a copy of our booklet.

We make it our business to help you meet your financial needs in every way we can.

"Personal loans–another reason we're calling the Commerce ours."

Filly Repeats Victory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Very Knowledgeable won on opening day last season and the four-year-old filly came back for a repeat performance in the $6,000 United Way Purse Monday as the 108-day Exhibition Park thoroughbred meeting got underway.

Very Knowledgeable, ridden by Danny Williams, came from slightly off the pace to win the six furlong event by two lengths over fast closing Persian Goddess. Country Kitten, longest shot in the field of nine fillies and mares, was third.

The winner, owned by Ca-Ro-Li Farms, paid $11.70 to win, $6.10 to place and $4.70 to show. Persian Goddess returned $8.90 and $6.60 and Country Kitten $7.60.

Ken Gold, a newcomer from Alberta, was the riding star of the 10-race card as he won with the first three horses he rode.

He won the first with Ship Ashore, the third with Lawder's Pride and the fourth with Pacific Gold. He finished third on his only other mount.

Longest priced winner was Breezy Magic, who returned $41.10 after winning the second race. Combined with Ship Ashore the daily double returned $230.80.

The crowd of 10,204 wagered $811,814. Both figures are down from opening day one year ago when jockey sensation Steve Cauthen made a special appearance.

Judo Titles

KERKRADE, the Netherlands (CP) — Brad Farrow of Montreal and Gary Hirose of Vancouver won gold medals in the Dutch Open judo championships during the weekend. Hirose took the under-86 kilogram crown and Farrow earned the under-65 kilogram title.

Boos Rouse Ring Champ

Jorge Lujan battered Cleo Garcia in the late rounds and stopped the outclassed challenger from Nicaragua in the 15th Sunday at Las Vegas to retain the World Boxing Association bantamweight championship.

Lujan knocked down Garcia in the 14th round and Garcia appeared ready to fall again when the bell saved him. The 24-year-old champion from Panama came out punching in the final round and when Garcia sat down in a neutral corner, apparently intentionally, referee Dave Pearl stopped the fight. The time was 2:29.

Lujan, stunned by boos from a crowd of 5,000 at Caesars Palace, began to step up the pace in the eighth and was in charge of the fight from then on.

Lujan was far ahead when the referee stopped what was his third defence of the 118-pound title he won Nov. 19, 1977, by beating Alfonso Zamora in the 10th round in Los Angeles.

Zamora originally was scheduled to fight Lujan on Sunday but pulled out, saying he was sick. So, the title shot went to the 21-year-old Garcia, who was ranked No. 2 by the WBA despite a record of 20-10-1 before Sunday.

In a 10-round preliminary, Panama's Roberto Duran, who gave up the world lightweight title because of weight problems, battered Jimmy Heair, a Memphis, Tenn., minister's son, and scored a one-sided 10-round decision.

In another WBA title battle Sunday, Yoko Gushiken of Japan knocked out a challenger for the sixth consecutive time, flooring Panama's Alfonso Lopez with a right hook at 2:17 of the seventh round in Tokyo and defended his junior flyweight championship for the eighth time. Gushiken, who won the title in 1976, remained undefeated. He has 18 victories, including 13 by knockout.

Title Surprises Sylvie

QUEBEC (CP) — Sylvie Daigle of Sherbrooke, Que., may have been more surprised than anybody else when she won the women's title at the world short-track speedskating championships during the weekend on a 110-metre oval at a sparsely-attended meet in the Colisee.

A two-day total of 2,904 in paid attendance showed up to see an eight-skater Canadian team compete against athletes from seven other countries.

"I certainly didn't expect to win," said Daigle, a 16-year-old schoolgirl who won four gold medals at the Canada Winter Games at Brandon, Man., in February.

Daigle won the 500 metres Saturday, was second in the 1,000 and 3,000 metres Sunday and finished third in the 1,500 Saturday to earn a total of 13 points by the system in which the four finalists are awarded points on a 5-3-2-1 basis.

Cathy Turnbull of Regina also earned 13 points, but finished second on the basis of a lower finish at the greatest distance, 3,000 metres. Daigle was second in that event behind Miyoshi Kato of Japan, who was third over-all.

Hiroshi Toda of Japan won the men's title with 14 points. He won the 1,500 and 3,000 metres, was second in the 1,000 and finished fourth in the 500.

Louis Baril of Quebec City was second over-all and Nick Thometz of Minneapolis was third.

Including the relay events, Canada won five gold medals, five silvers and seven bronze medals, while Japanese skaters captured four golds, one silver and one bronze.

Australia had one gold and one silver. The United States earned three silvers and Britain one bronze.

Bonneau Captures National Indoor Title

RICHMOND (CP) — Second-seeded Stephane Bonneau of Quebec City turned back Arnold Kettenacker of Vancouver 6-2, 6-2 to win the Canadian national indoor junior boys' tennis championship Sunday.

Kettenacker had turned giant-killer Saturday when he upset top seed Laird Dunlop of Vancouver 7-5, 3-6, 6-0 in the semi-finals, while Bonneau was disposing of Simon Bartram of Burlington, Ont., 6-4, 7-5.

Things went more to form in the girls' division as top-seeded Karen Dewis of London, Ont., defeated second seed Fatima Ravat of Toronto 6-2, 6-3 in the final.

Dewis had downed Jill Hetherington of Brampton, Ont., 6-3, 7-6 in one semi-final Saturday, while Ravat got past Diane Blondeau of Quebec City 7-6, 6-1.

Gorge Pair Earn Buttons

Bruce Fortune and Lou Sargent of Gorge Vale won the weekly seniors gold buttons competition by defeating Bert Davies and Jim Milbrath of Glen Meadows on the 16th hole Monday at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Trophy Returns

Evergreens are the new holders of the Bridgman Cup, which has returned to its original place on the Greater Victoria women's field hockey scene.

First presented in 1937, the Bridgman Cup in its early years was the top prize in an annual women's invitational tournament. Later it was used as an award to the winning team in an annual tourney for high school girls' squads, continuing in that function until it was tucked away on a shelf following the 1974 event.

Rescued from storage, dusted and polished, the Bridgman Cup was back on display last weekend, once again the symbol of victory in a women's tournament.

Evergreens, earning eight points on four successive triumphs, captured the trophy in a five-team, round-robin event for second-division squads at the University of Victoria. Port Alberni and Sanderlings, each with four points, tied for second, followed by Sailors (3) and Rebels (1).

Swim Record

POTSDAM, East Germany (Reuter) — Sergei Koplyakov of the Soviet Union has broken the world 200-metre freestyle swimming record for men. Saturday.

Koplyakov, competing on the second day of a Soviet-East German meet, clocked one minute, 49.83 seconds to beat the former mark of 1:50.29.

ESSO* AND FIBERGLAS CANADA ANNOUNCE

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON INSULATION AND FUEL OIL.

The fact that proper insulation can reduce your heating bill is no surprise.

In fact depending on your current level of insulation you could realize a saving in fuel oil consumption of 1/3 or more for years to come.

But now – here's the news – a fuel oil supplier and insulation manufacturer get together to offer a whole energy saving, money saving package.

When you buy Fiberglas Canada pink batt or roll insulation for your home from the building supply outlet of your choice, Esso will credit 10% of the cost of your FIBERGLAS insulation to your Esso fuel oil account.

CALL YOUR LOCAL ESSO FUEL OIL DEALER.

He'll be able to answer any questions you have about the program and tell you where you can buy FIBERGLAS insulation. He can also provide you with helpful brochures and information on government home insulation grants.

If you're not already an Esso customer, we'd like you to become one and take advantage of this offer.

1 BUY YOUR FIBERGLAS INSULATION.

Properly complete all blanks on the coupon from this advertisement and have your insulation supplier validate it. (Additional coupons are available from participating building supply outlets and Esso fuel oil dealers.)

2 SEND THE COUPON TO FIBERGLAS CANADA.

Send the coupon and a copy of your purchase invoice along with 10¢ (to comply with legal requirements) to Fiberglas Canada Limited, P.O. Box 2005, Station Q, Toronto, Ontario M4T 2V5. Fiberglas Canada will then return your purchase invoice and will also send you a certificate entitling you to 10% of the retail purchase price of the insulation to be applied to your Esso fuel oil account.

If you are an Esso customer you can submit the certificate to Esso as cash to be applied against your next payment. If you are not an Esso customer, Esso will contact you to arrange an account and ensure you get your credit.

BONUS SAVINGS THROUGH GOVERNMENT GRANTS.

Governments offer insulation grants to encourage conservation. If you qualify for any of these grants your Esso fuel oil retailer has the information to assist you.

For example, the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) offers the following:

If your home was built before 1946 (before Sept. 1, 1977 in the Yukon and N.W.T.) and is not located in a building of more than three storeys, you may be eligible for a grant covering 2/3 of the insulation materials cost. (To a maximum of $350.00).

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE OF HOW YOU COULD SAVE.

FIBERGLAS purchase (example only)	$200
Less CHIP rebate (2/3 total)	−132
Actual cost	$ 68
Esso fuel oil purchase (example only)	$ 85
Less 10% rebate †	−20
Actual cost	$ 65

So in this example a total saving of $152 could be realized by taking advantage of the CHIP rebate and Esso/Fiberglas offer.

Bogart's Challenge

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Can a Pulitzer Prize-winning Broadway play that won an Oscar in its film incarnation become a television classic 43 years later?

That's the assignment given Paul Bogart, who is directing You Can't Take It With You, the George F. Kaufman-Moss Hart comedy that wowed Broadway for many years.

The play and the film were quite different. Capra made many changes in the plot and story line in addition to subtle shadings in the characters.

The Broadway play starred Josephine Hull and Henry Travers, who gave way to Spring Byington and Lionel Barrymore in the picture. The two-hour May 16 television movie also boasts a pair of heavyweights in the leading roles, Jean Stapleton and Art Carney.

Bogart — no relation to the late Humphrey — is a natural choice to direct the wacky comedy, having directed in the theatre, movies and TV. For the past four years he was the sole director of All In The Family.

Yet Bogart has never seen You Can't Take It With You on stage or screen.

"I've read the play many times," said the bearded, middle-aged Bogart, whose actress daughter, Jenny, is married to Elliott Gould.

"It never occurred to the network or Warner Bros., which owns the rights to the play, to do the movie version for TV. Our script is based entirely on the play as it was written for the stage.

The play will be taped from beginning to end in sequence almost as if it were being filmed from a proscenium. In the fifth act there are 17 persons on camera.

Vietnam, Duke Oscar Hits

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It was a fine bit of Hollywood irony — John Wayne and Vietnam. Duke, the legendary superpatriot, and a war Hollywood had ignored for a decade.

They were the heroes of Monday's 51st Annual Academy Awards presentation, with two Vietnam films winning the big Oscars and Wayne making an emotional first public appearance since cancer surgery Jan. 12.

Coming Home, a film depicting the physical and emotional wounds of Vietnam, earned best acting Oscars for Jon Voight and Jane Fonda, who portrayed a paraplegic veteran and the officer's wife who falls in love with him. Miss Fonda had won a previous Oscar playing a hooker in the 1971 film Klute.

The Deer Hunter, a violent depiction of the war's effects on three young Pennsylvania mill workers, was picked best picture by the Academy's 3,400 voters and won best director honors for Michael Cimino.

Special Delivery, a production by the National Film Board of Canada, won an Oscar for best achievement in short animated films.

Virtually shut out in the competition was Warren Beatty's comedy-fantasy Heaven Can Wait, which had nine nominations but won only for art direction.

Wayne, 71, thin but tanned and jaunty, received a thunderous ovation from the audience at Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, then presented the makers of The Deer Hunter their Oscars. Wayne, the Hollywood personification of the tough-guy patriot, starred in Hollywood's last Vietnam movie prior to 1978, the hawkish Green Berets in 1968.

Wayne presents Best Picture award

Coming Home won three Oscars — the top acting awards and a screenwriting Oscar for Waldo Salt and Robert C. Jones.

Maggie Smith was the only winner of a top Oscar not involved in one of the Vietnam films. She was named best supporting actress for her role as an actress who loses her bid for an Oscar in Neil Simon's California Suite.

The Oscar show was not as lively as some in the past but there was some controversy stirred by The Deer Hunter and a bit of backstage warfare between the principals of the two Vietnam films.

Several protesters demonstrated outside the auditorium, carrying signs decrying what they considered racism and a distorted portrayal of Vietnamese in The Deer Hunter. Thirteen were arrested on a variety of charges.

Miss Fonda said many of the protesters were her friends and that she agreed with their position, although she admitted she had not seen The Deer Hunter.

"They (the protesters) are people who spent many years of their lives trying to end the war in Vietnam," she said backstage. "They feel that . . . The Deer Hunter portrays a racist, stereotyped, Pentagon view of the war."

Deer Hunter director Cimino said: "I think this is the proper place to remember we're movie makers, we're not making newsreels . . . Deer Hunter is a movie, it is not an attempt to write history."

Wayne's appearance was typical Duke — he ambled down the stage stairway, smiled gratefully at the warm reception and announced:

Miss Fonda was ecstatic over her victory. She reportedly used her Klute statuette for a bookend but with her victory for Coming Home, she bounded to the stage and exclaimed: "I'm so happy!"

"I wanted to win very much," she said, "because I'm so proud of Coming Home. I want many people to see the film." She explained that the film was conceived eight years ago, in the days of the anti-war movement.

Miss Fonda said working on the film made her more aware of the plight of the handicapped and she gave part of her acceptance speech in sign language, for the benefit of hearing-impaired viewers.

Disney Tour NFB Reward

MONTREAL (CP) — The two National Film Board animators who won an Oscar Monday night at the Academy Awards will celebrate by touring the Disney animation studios in Hollywood today.

"We'll be getting a little red carpet treatment," said Eunice Macaulay in a telephone interview from Los Angeles after a sleepless night.

"It's absolutely marvelous. It's just so exciting," she said of winning the award with John Weldon for their seven-minute animated film, Special Delivery.

"It's very difficult to express how it feels — we're both just so happy," she said.

"I haven't slept properly all night. I was talking to John at about 6:30 and he can't sleep either."

The two animators plan to return to Canada by early Wednesday to celebrate their award with friends and colleagues.

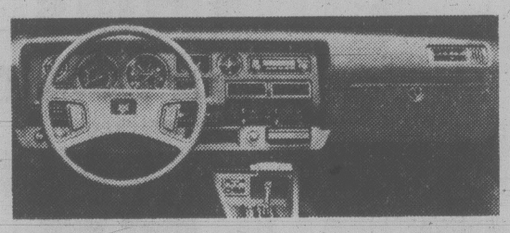
Toyota Celica Supra.

THINK JAGUAR, 'VETTE OR FERRARI. BUT BUY TOYOTA.



When Toyota set out to build a classic yet sporty, luxury GT car, they set out as they have for over forty years, to build perfection. With Supra, they have succeeded.

A classic is born. For 1979 Toyota has provided the world with a performance oriented luxury grand touring automobile that doesn't cost a small fortune. Nothing has been omitted: Like Porsche, Supra has an electronic fuel injected 6-cyl. engine. Like the Jaguar XJ-S, Supra has 4-wheel power disc brakes. Air conditioning is standard on the Supra while on the Corvette you will pay extra for this comfort. Supra has a standard 5-speed overdrive full synchromesh transmission as does the Ferrari. The point to remember is that Supra costs less than all of the other abovementioned "supercars."

State of the art. To qualify for this description an automobile should have power windows, power steering, quad speaker AM/FM Multiplex stereo radio, tachometer, quartz clock, driver seat lumbar support, low profile steelbelted radial tires, rear window wiper, reclining front bucket seats, tilt steering and much more. Supra has it all for less. The only option you might want is the 4-speed overdrive automatic. Only two cars in the world have this... the other is the Toyota Cressida.

The reason to buy. A luxury GT should offer more to the discriminating buyer than mere transportation. The incredible new Celica Supra offers more including formidable anti-rust construction and a 3 year anti-perforation warranty.

So the Celica Supra can take its place among the other tough Toyotas, built to take on the Canadian winter and win.

Limited edition. Your Toyota dealer suggests that you see him very soon in order to marvel at and perhaps purchase the amazing Celica Supra.

Supplies will be limited. Your Toyota dealer would hate to disappoint you.

RECIPES & FOOD TIPS

Easter Bread with Almond Filling

Easter Bread

- 1 envelope active dry yeast
- 1 tsp. sugar
- ¼ cup lukewarm water, (100 to 115 degrees F.)
- ¾ cup milk at room temperature
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- ½ tsp. grated lemon peel
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- 3 egg yolks
- 2 cups all purpose flour
- 4 tbsp. butter, softened
- 1 egg, lightly beaten with
- 1 tbsp. milk

Dissolve the sugar in the warm water. Sprinkle in the yeast. Let stand for 2 to 3 minutes until the yeast dissolves. Set in a warm draft-free place for about 5 minutes or until the yeast has begun to bubble and has almost doubled in volume. Combine the yeast solution, milk, vanilla, lemon peel, sugar and salt. Stir in the egg yolks 1 at a time and then beat in the flour ½ cup at a time. Beat the soft butter into the dough a tablespoon at a time. Knead the dough on a floured surface for about 10 minutes or until the dough is smooth and elastic, sprinkling more flour on the dough or working surface if either becomes sticky. Place in a greased bowl turning once to grease the top and let rise in a warm draft-free area for about 1 hour or until double in bulk.

Almond Filling

- 4 tbsp. butter, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg yolk, lightly beaten
- ½ cup finely grated almonds
- 1 tsp. grated orange peel
- ½ cup raisins
- ½ tsp. vanilla extract

Cream the butter and sugar. Beat in the egg yolk and gradually stir in the almonds, peel, raisins and vanilla. Blend thoroughly. Set aside.

Turn the dough out on a floured surface, knead it again for a minute. Roll the dough into a rectangle about 9 inches wide and 13 inches long; it should then be about ¼ inch thick. With a metal spatula spread the almond filling over the rectangle of dough leaving an unspread border of ¼ inches on each side. Starting with the 13 inch side, roll the dough up like a jelly roll. (Do not close ends.) Place the roll seam side down on a lightly greased baking sheet. Brush the top and sides of the roll with the egg-milk mixture. Let it rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled in bulk (about 45 minutes to 1 hour). Brush it again with the egg-milk mixture. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven 40 to 45 minutes or until it is a light golden brown.

SELECTION.QUALITY AND VALUE

Western Boom In Next Decade Forecast in Report

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The continuing economic boom in Alberta and other western provinces is attracting Canadians to the new jobs resulting in a gradual westward shift of the population from the central provinces.

This trend to western Canada for people and employment opportunities is noted in the Canada-Japan trade and investment study issued last month and now made public.

The western provinces will attract over 44 per cent of Canada's total population growth in the 1980's. This would increase western population from 6.5 million in 1978 to 7.8 million by 1988, or approximately 30 per cent of all Canadians, it found.

The study, commissioned by the Canada-Japan Trade Council, deals with the patterns and prospects of Canadian international trade and economic development, with particular reference to this country's links to the burgeoning Japanese economy.

The study found that industrial activities based in the west have generally better growth prospects than those elsewhere in Canada.

Some of the poorest prospects are for industries traditionally based in Ontario and especially in Quebec.

The destinations of people on the move between 1976 and 1991, based on Statistic Canada reports, indicate the following rough flows of internal and external migration:

Alberta gaining 30,000 each year, Ontario gaining 24,400, British Columbia 12,600 and Saskatchewan 4,000 annually.

Quebec would lose 23,500 each year, Newfoundland 2,200 and Manitoba would lose 1,000 annually.

The study said there are already indications of these demographic shifts. All the data examined suggested that these trends will intensify in the next decade.

The influxes will strain social infrastructures in the recipient western provinces, especially in Alberta, but there is little doubt that the provincial governments will have the funds to cope with the problem. Both Saskatchewan and Alberta continue to run budget surpluses with prospects for mounting resource-drived revenues which could be used to develop the towns and cities to accommodate the new residents.

These changes should provide an inviting environment for the prospective Japanese investor, according to the study. Japanese investment in Canada has ranged over many activities, but has demonstrated regional specialization.

The expansion of the western economy and the revitalizing of the Atlantic fisheries will offer improved regional prospects for the foreign investor. The outcome of industrial adjustments necessary in Ontario and Quebec could also greatly improve their current economic environments.

But to achieve industrial reorganization these efforts will have to be successfully and efficiently carried through. A financially strengthened and internationally competitive Canadian manufacturing sector would obviously have more appeal to offshore investers.

'Public Must Feel Pinch'

MONTREAL (CP) — Strikes in the public sector are a fact of life, but they should be eased in to prevent the forming of a crisis mentality, says a former chairman of the British Columbia Labor Relations Board.

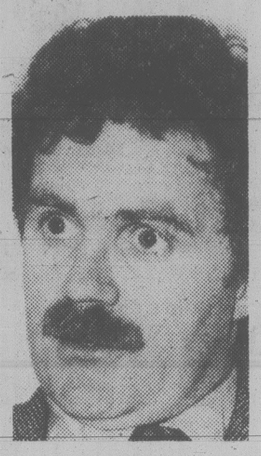
Paul Weiler told a labor relations seminar at McGill University on Monday that in a phased-in, or graduated strike, public-sector workers would start off by walking out a day or two at a time, then escalating pressure tactics if negotiations didn't succeed.

"For example, teachers could close the schools, or subway operators shut the rapid transit system down, for only one day in the first week of an impasse," he said.

"If a negotiating dispute was not resolved by the end of that week, then the trade union would have the right to escalate its work stoppage another notch for the next week."

In this way, the community "will not inevitably have inflicted on it all of the damage that comes from a total shutdown," he said.

"Some pressure would build up on both sides. Each day that they are on strike, the employees lose some earnings and the general public loses some services which they'd like to have."



WEILER
. . . tread softly

Not infrequently in public-sector strikes, said Weiler, the parties in a public-service strike tend to adopt a harder line in bargaining because of the public outcry against a full strike. The worse the sense of crisis, the less productive negotiations may become.

"As a result, the strike cannot play its intended role, which is concentrating the minds of the parties on fashioning a reasonable compromise as quickly as possible," added Weiler, now Mackenzie King Professor of Canadian Studies at Harvard Law School.

The former B.C. labor relations chief said the public should not expect to play the role of innocent bystanders. As taxpayers, they are a party to the negotiations.

"The public must feel the pain which will make its representatives a little more accommodating at the bargaining table," he noted.

If the public isn't ready to put up with some inconvenience short of physical harm, it is denying the workers access to real collective bargaining, he said, adding that government intervention should only be used in lengthy strikes.

A strike by garbage collectors "can and should be tolerated as the price of an effective system of free collective bargaining," at least until the garbage starts to rot and the public is endangered, he said.

Toronto Bomb Panic

TORONTO (CP) — Bomb threats temporarily halted proceedings at the Ontario legislature and disrupted classes at an elementary school on Monday.

In the legislature, Speaker Jack Stokes ordered an evacuation after an anonymous caller said a bomb had been planted in the legislative chamber.

Stokes called an adjournment and asked MPPs and visitors in the galleries to proceed "in an orderly fashion" from the second-floor chamber to a lobby downstairs.

Security guards immediately began a search of MPPs' desks and the offices in the press gallery, but found nothing.

The legislature was reconvened after a 40-minute delay and Attorney-General Roy McMurtry, who also holds the portfolio of solicitor-general, told the legislature that a thorough search of the chamber and its surroundings by legislative security staff, Metropolitan Toronto police and Ontario Provincial Police revealed nothing.

A police spokesman said the bomb threat at D'Arcy McGee separate school was telephoned shortly after the scare at the legislature.

Bill of Rights Claimed As Postal Strike Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's back-to-work order to end the postal strike last October should be declared invalid on grounds it violates the Canadian Bill of Rights, defence lawyers for postal union president Jean-Claude Parrot said Monday.

The Canadian Bill of Rights, adopted by Parliament in 1960 guarantees the right of the individual to equality before the law and protection of the law, labor lawyer Paul Cavalluzzo told Mr. Justice Gregory Evans of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The back-to-work bill, which took effect Oct. 19, violates the Bill of Rights because its provisions treat members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers more harshly than other members of the federal public service.

Cavalluzzo said that when Parliament passed the Bill of Rights, it gave the courts responsibility to "act as the guardians of our civil liberties."

The back-to-work order, Bill C-8, amended a section of the Public Service Staff Relations Act to provide harsher penalties for CUPW members only, said Cavalluzzo.

The Public Service Staff Relations Act provides a fine of not more than $100 for public servants engaged in unlawful strikes. But the back-to-work bill for CUPW members would provide fines of $100 a day for each day the strike continued.

Non-CUPW officers counselling members to strike illegally would be subject to a fine of not more than $300 under provisions of the Public Service Staff Relations Act. The back-to-work bill amended that to a fine of $2,500 plus $250 a day in the case of postal workers, said Cavalluzzo.

Generally, the Public Service Staff Relations Act requires the federal government to get permission from the Public Service Staff Relations Board before initiating criminal proceedings against public servants. That is not required for the postal workers under the back-to-work bill.

Under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, the postal workers had an obligation to choose arbitration or conciliation and strike as the method of resolving their contract dispute with the government. They chose the conciliation-strike route.

After 18 months of negotiation and a conciliation board failed to resolve their dispute, the union exercized its legal right to strike Oct. 16, said Cavalluzzo.

"It is clear that the right to strike of members of CUPW was taken away in midstream."

He said that earlier testimony showed the post office strategy was to do anything in its power to avoid a strike.

A Good Time Had by All After Crisis

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Four men stranded on the shore of Hudson Bay overnight dined on fresh rabbit and had a good night's sleep in a hunting cabin before being rescued Monday.

The men, whose light plane flipped over during an emergency landing north of Churchill, wrapped themselves in down-filled sleeping bags to ward off the bone-chilling cold.

"I guess the temperature must have dropped to -25 Celsius," said Harold Hanson, 43, who spent the unexpected night out with pilot Peter Ingebrigtson, 36, his son Terry, 15, and John E. Wilson, 28, all of Churchill.

The men were returning Sunday afternoon from Hyde Lake to Churchill when the engine of the ski-equipped Cessna 180 began to sputter, said Hanson.

"We had a couple of minutes or less so we picked out the best spot and laid down on a little lake at the mouth of the Seal River (about 55 kilometres north of here).

"As we were crossing the lake, we hit a soft snow drift. The plane nosed in and flipped over," he said.

Peter Ingebrigtson and Wilson, the co-owners of the plane, each suffered a separated shoulder in the accident. Hanson and Terry Ingebrigtson received cuts and bruises. None required extensive hospital treatment.

When the plane flipped over, the four men scrambled out, dragging three sleeping bags and some rations with them.

"There was a goose-hunters' camp about four kilometres away. We hoofed it over there," said Hanson. "We had food and some chocolate bars and one of the boys shot a hare, so we had a real good supper."

Since the men had only three sleeping bags, the two smallest shared one.

"That was me and Terry," said Hanson. "With body heat from the two of us, that made it all the warmer. I slept real good."

A Hercules aircraft from the Canadian Forces rescue co-ordinating centre in Edmonton flew to Hyde Lake early Monday morning but searchers found no sign of the men who had gone there to re-locate a geological survey camp.

At daylight, crews flying two Canadian Forces Twin Otters took up the search and the men were spotted shortly after the morning sun burned away fog which had enveloped their camp.

Hanson said the newly-purchased $35,000 Cessna is a total wreck.

"As soon as we can round up another plane, we'll be going back to Hyde Lake," he said.

By JOHN MARSHALL

VANCOUVER (FP) — There's more than one Liberal leader entering the third week of media-event electioneering, a lot more.

It's impossible to tell when the real Mr. Trudeau stands up.

There's the firm one. To a heckler: "Just be quiet for a minute and I'll tell you."

And there's the fatuous. To a young woman with a rose for him he murmurs, "Super," and "Can I warm your hand?" he kisses it.

There is the philosopher relaxing before a warm and receptive audience of about 1,000 at Terrace. "The ways of people and the ways of God are sometimes difficult to understand." (He indicates they are both on the side of the Liberals.)

And, though it's Joe Clark who has been given the reputation, there's Trudeau the fumbler.

Reply: "I'm a girl."

Moving right along — "Well, you're a big strong girl."

And there are times when even some of his pat anti-Tory lines drone in confused circles, as though, bored with repetition, he's not listening to himself with enough care. He awakes with the light if there's a heckler. So does the audience.

But then there's Trudeau the passionate, catering to the anti-social welfare backlash. Dueling with jobless hecklers, and presumably referring to unemployment insurance, he says "some people think if they get a blank cheque they get the future for free." And he tells the demonstrators, "get off your ass," — tells another one to stop drinking and he'll get a job.

The prime minister's attacks on the "little man" are a jarring element in the more statesmanlike "tough guy" image campaign organizers are promoting.

Other party speakers pit that portrayal of him against what they see as the weaker vacilating nature of Mr. Clark.

At the most basic campaigning levels, there is Trudeau, the consummate mingler, a permanent smile on his face, an old-time politician ready to pat a child, shake a hand.

And there is Trudeau the aloof. He, understandably, brushes off a press conference question about his wife's book, Beyond Reason. It is not an election issue he says.

He encourages no casual questioning from the press and has held only three press conferences since the campaign began, the last one too brief for many areas to be covered. But on one flight — after a particularly successful rally — he broke precedent and walked part way back in his campaign plane into the press section. He joked and did a little imitation of Charlie Chaplin.

On stage, Trudeau the comedian, is a lesser role. That character's main contribution is to direct barbs, political not personal, at Joe Clark. Among other things he says, Clark is the man who used to be called a pink Tory but who now — in reference to his deficit policies — is the red ink Tory.

At least one woman admires all of the Trudeaus. In the crush of a B.C. crowd she showed him a neatly folded handkerchief in a plastic envelope. "I still have your handkerchief from 12 years ago," she gushed.

Now Brascan Under Takeover Gun

Times News Services

TORONTO — Flush with money, Brascan Ltd., the big Toronto-based multinational, became a hunter under siege Monday as the takeover craze of recent months continued unbated in the Canadian market.

Brascan had no sooner got Easter week under way with an announcement of a $1.12 billion bid, in U.S. funds, to buy all of U.S. retailer F. W. Woolworth Co. when it was itself the object of a deal.

With a whiff of Bronfman money in the air, Edper Equities Ltd. announced it was considering an offer, jointly with Dutch-controlled Patino N.V., to acquire half of the 26,039,763 common shares of Brascan for $28 a share.

"The hunter is being hunted," a Brascan spokesman commented wryly, although chairman J. H. (Jake) Moore and other high company officials knew last week that Edper would be making the offer.

Moore, in New York Monday to make the announcement, visited the head office of Woolworth, which has 526 stores in Canada and operates as the largest variety chain store in the U.S.

An Edper spokesman, apparently taken somewhat by surprise by the Woolworth bid, said the company would still consider the deal for Brascan but "in a new light."

Edper regards Brascan's move as a defensive manoeuvre against its own deal.

The double move, with Brascan in the centre follows a spate of takeovers and takeover bids in recent months, the most noteworthy being the current battle being waged for Hudson's Bay Co. by newspaper baron Kenneth Thomson and food retailer George Weston Ltd.

Brascan's coffers are overflowing with $380 million from the recent sale of its major electric utility, Light-Servicos de Electricidade S.A., otherwise known as the Light, of Brazil.

Edper said its bid would depend on payment of a $170 million U.S. promissory note to Brascan from the Brazilian government for Light and "upon no action being taken by the board of directors or senior officers of Brascan or by anyone else that would affect a material change in the affairs of Brascan."

Ironically, Brascan's annual statement was released Monday, showing the company with slashed 1978 profits of $128.3 million compared with $145.2 million in 1977.

Bay Control Fight Sours

TORONTO (CP) — As bitterness began to creep into the battle for control of Hudson's Bay Co., one of the suitors, George Weston Ltd., announced Monday it would not sweeten its offer in an attempt to out-bid the family interests of newspaper baron Kenneth Thomson.

Food retailer Weston announced it has decided not to amend its offer of $40 a share, apparently paving the way for a takeover by the Thomson family.

It said that because the Thomson offer for 75 per cent of the shares at $37 a share expires April 17 "and because our offer remains conditional on the acceptance of at least 45 per cent of the Bay's shareholders, many shareholders will prefer to accept the Thomson offer."

In the absence of a better offer, Weston said shareholders should tender their shares to Thomson.

The battle for the retailer, popularly known as the Bay, has been raging for weeks but it was only during the weekend that bitterness appeared.

The stage was an unprecedented Sunday hearing of the Ontario Securities Commission to consider a proposal by Weston for an escrow arrangement to help Bay shareholders having difficulty deciding which bid to accept.

Lawyers for both sides jousted verbally about the arrangement under which shareholders would have been able to deposit shares with Weston's depository, Canada Trust Co. If it appeared the bid would fail, the shares would either be returned to the shareholder or be tendered to Thomson before the Thomson bid expired.

In a decision handed down Monday, the commission ruled that there was nothing illegal about the arrangement.

However, a commission official said now that Weston has apparently dropped out of the takeover fight, an escrow arrangement was not an issue.

Resource Row 'Cheap Politics'

TERRACE (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett's confrontation with the federal government over control of British Columbia resources smacks of cheap politics and reveals a "me generation philosophy" that could split the country, says federal sports minister Iona Campagnolo.

Battling for re-election in the northwestern B.C. riding of Skeena, Mrs. Campagnolo has devoted most of her electoral war attacking the provincial government, virtually ignoring her federal campaign foes.

She said in an interview that Bennett deliberately sought a confrontation in a recent dispute over timber-cutting near a salmon spawning stream in the Queen Charlotte Islands in her riding.

She also criticized the province for reneging on commitments to negotiate Indian land claims and failing to provide passenger ferry service to the Queen Charlottes despite $17 million in federal payments to B.C.

While making the criticisms, she had little to say about her federal campaign rivals, Progressive Conservative Rod Cousins and New Democrat Jim Fulton.

When Premier Bennett announced the provincial election for May 10, he said one of the chief issues would be whether B.C. or Ottawa would manage the province's resources.

Earlier, when Prime Minister Trudeau called the May 22 federal vote, he said that energy was too important a resource to be left in the hands of one province, referring to Alberta.

She said the confrontation over the timber rights was unnecessary because the federal government was not interested in a show of force either for political reasons or to test the law.

For Bennett to turn the dispute into an issue was a "cheap form of politics," she said.

Clark Goes Public for First Time

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Joe Clark's campaign to become Canada's next prime minister took a new turn Monday night when he appeared before a public meeting attended by 1,000 persons.

It was the largest turnout of Clark's challenge to unseat Prime Minister Trudeau and it came in the southwestern Ontario area Conservative organizers consider vital to a party majority in the May 22 general election.

Until Monday Clark — fighting his first campaign as Conservative leader — had run a cautious campaign, appearing for speeches before party workers and in carefully controlled circumstances.

The public was invited to Monday night's meeting. Party officials later said they were happy both at the enthusiasm of the crowd and the confident and relaxed manner Clark spoke to it.

Conservatives say they have a good chance of winning the three Commons seats in the London area — one of them held by Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan in the last Commons.

Clark gave much the same speech as he has been delivering elsewhere. He said Trudeau is attacking Canadians instead of the problems of the country.

He got enthusiastic response when he accused the government of high spending and when he said the Trudeau cabinet has become too old to face the challenges that face Canadians.

Clark spent the day on a bus travelling around the London-Windsor area that largely depends of farming, hitting Leamington and Strathroy.

In visits to greenhouses he was told of the dependence on migrant workers and the high cost of energy and immigration policies.

He made much of the cost of heating, telling a news conference it is vital for farmers in this area to have a Canada self-sufficient in energy.

He praised farmers and owners of small businesses, saying his government would return tax money so they could spend the money more wisely.

He congratulated them for the willingness to work hard, relating it to his own upbringing in rural Alberta.

Just outside Windsor, where he had coffee with farmers, he lauded them as nation builders.

A week ago Trudeau said in Quebec farmers were professional complainers but in his time in western Ontario he had not heard one complaint.

But he understood their concerns about lack of research on developing Canada's potential for feeding the world's hungry.

It was disgraceful that the country is not doing more to export food.

TV touch-up for Joe Clark

Pepin Ads Against The Law?

OTTAWA (CP) — Weekend newspaper advertisements in Ottawa identifying Jean-Luc Pepin as a candidate for the Liberal party nomination appear to violate federal laws governing advertising in the May 22 election campaign, a spokesman for the elections commissioner said Monday.

The weekend ads named Pepin.

Under the elections act advertisements at this stage in the campaign can say no more than a meeting is to be held.

ELECTION 79

Broadbent Still After Debate

By PAUL WHITELAW

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I. (FP) — Caustically accusing Joe Clark of another "flip flop," NDP Leader Ed Broadbent says the TV networks should go ahead with plans for a single campaign debate even if the Conservative chief continues his refusal to take part.

But Broadbent also told reporters here he is "prepared in principle" to go along with the Tories' call for a debate series pitting the three major federal party leaders in one-to-one confrontations, "if it's the only alternative left."

Clark has turned thumbs down on a proposal for a May 13 debate that would include Broadbent as well as Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

He insists he wants to tackle the PM head-on.

Broadbent said a single debate, to which he and Trudeau have agreed, is the "best" way for people "to form a serious judgement" about how to vote in the May 22 election.

"It's an important test of leadership," Broadbent stated.

"It's by no means the exclusive test but it's an important one to see how we react under pressure and I regret Mr. Clark's decision to back away from this."

The NDP leader said a oneshot debate would let voters see the three principle leaders "in contention without any assistance from aides."

Claiming Clark had done socalled flip-flops on the future of PetroCanada and the medicare issue, Broadbent charged: "He's now done a flip-flop on the important issue of a leader's debate between (sic) the three contenders for the Prime Minister's position in this country."

The NDP leader said he hopes Clark "will change his mind."

An opportunity to meet Trudeau and Clark in debate — either on the same show or a series of head-on confrontations — would boost Broadbent's image as the leader of a "major" party rather than merely a perennial "also-ran."

While both the Liberals and Conservatives have wavered in the past over their keenness for a televised confrontation among the leaders, the NDP has consistently pushed the idea.

Broadbent, who arrived here late Monday afternoon on a campaign swing through the Atlantic Provinces, was guest speaker at an evening dinnerdance sponsored by the Prince Edward Island NDP.

However, he cancelled plans to stay overnight and flew on to Sydney, N.S. last night because an ice storm approaching the island threatened to ground his chartered Air Canada campaign jet.

River Traffic Cut

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Officials closed the Elbe River to international freight traffic after continuing rains raised the river more than three metres above normal, the government reported.

Carney Wins Again

Economist Pat Carney, who won the Conservative nomination for the federal Vancouver Centre riding but later resigned for financial reasons, was re-nominated Monday.

She withdrew last month saying her business consultant's firm demanded too much time.

Carney said Monday that she re-entered the race because the Conservatives have a job to do — to defeat Prime Minister Trudeau.

The riding was held by former justice Minister Ron Basford in the last Parliament.

Burnaby — Betty Griffin.

Comox-Powell River — Sy Pederson.

Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands — Ernie Knott.

Fraser Valley West — Vi Swann.

Mission-Port Moody — Jim Beynon.

New Westminster-Coquitlam — Rod Doran.

North Vancouver-Burnaby — Eric Waugh.

Richmond-South Delta — Homer Stevens.

Vancouver East — Fred Wilson, and Vancouver Kingsway — Jack Phillips.

Chretien Estimate 'Too High'

OTTAWA (FP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien is "about 300 per cent too high" with the $7.5 billion price tag he put on Tory campaign promises, according to the man who could succeed him in the finance portfolio under a Tory government.

Conservative MP Bob de Cotret, a noted economist who has played a key role in formulating Tory economic policy, described the Chretien estimate as "absolutely ridiculous" in an address Monday night to the Italian-Canadian Businessmen's Association of Montreal.

In the speech, a text of which was released in Ottawa, de Cotret suggested the inaccuracy of the Chretien estimate was no surprising.

CLC Waits

Trial Told of Drug Arrests

Three of five men accused of conspiracy to import marijuana were arrested on the vessel Weatherly July 15 about 12 miles south of Obstruction Island where 439 bales of marijuana were found, a county court jury was told Monday.

The three were identified by Const. Lou Goulet of Courtenay RCMP as Ronald Cecil Spurrell, 31, of Surrey, Frank Piersanti, 28, of Montreal and John Mobley Doss, 25, of Dillon, Colo., formerly of Newfoundland.

The trio, along with Garth Clarence Vincent Joseph Sexton, 28, and Frederick Charles Scott, 28, both of Vancouver, are accused of conspiracy to import marijuana with 14 named persons and persons unknown between April 1 and July 16, 1978; importing marijuana between the same dates; and possession of marijuana July 15 for the purpose of trafficking.

The 14 persons named but not charged in the indictment are Nilo Batista, Maurice Pereira, Neil Maxwell Kennedy, Terrance Gerard Trainor, Kevin Gerard Gushue, Robert Sherman Miller, Gordon Barlow Tait, Frederick MacKintosh Tait, Allen Valenti, Patrick Joseph Murphy, Edwin Floyd Terry also known as Philip Stanley Ward, Melville Douglas Balfour, Jillian Penney and Vicki Hann.

Goulet said eight other persons were arrested on the Weatherly when it was intercepted by RCMP: Ian Maxwell Kennedy, Gordon Tait, Frederick Tait, Robert Miller, Patrick Murphy, Murray Balfour and Allen Valenti.

The interception occurred just north of Vargas Island, he said.

RCMP Const. Gary Appleton described surveillance he conducted in Ucluelet, Tofino, Port Alberni and Victoria between May 25 and July 15.

His observations included the vessels Sunfish and Weatherly and the comings and goings of various people he said were known to him as Spurrell, Miller, Gordon Tait, Frederick Tait, Gushue, Doss, Sexton, O'Brian and Ward.

He said he saw Spurrell, Gordon Tait and Gushue painting the Weatherly in Victoria June 17, located the boat in Port Alberni June 21 and leaving June 26.

He next saw the Weatherly at Tofino June 30 with a Zodiac boat aboard. On July 2, with other policemen, he went by boat to Riley Cove north of Tofino where he saw the Weatherly anchored and also located the Sunfish with its poles down indicating it was fishing.

Appleton also said he saw boxes of groceries being loaded on to the Weatherly June 26.

At a campsite near the mouth of the Megin River, across Shelter Inlet from where the bales of marijuana were found, he located two Zodiacs, two tents, air matresses, sleeping bags, clothes, two boxes of foodstuffs, rubber boots, binoculars and other items.

In cross-examination, he agreed that in his notes written at the time he identified various men as Unknown Male followed by a number and that someone else gave him names to go with the numbers.

He also agreed that at the preliminary hearing he wrongly identified Murphy as being Doss.

Appleton said the boxes were loaded on to the Weatherly in a normal manner and that the comings and goings surrounding the Weatherly were consistent with ordinry maintenance, were ordinary activities and were not suspicious activities.

He also said that a number of exhibits from the Megin River campsite were destroyed by a fire at a Co-Ordinated Law Enforcement Unit warehouse in Victoria last summer.

Appleton said he boarded the Mexican vessel Toernyn, which other witnesses have said brought 13.5 tons of marijuana from Colombia, on July 15 and did not see any of the five accused men aboard.

Const. Murray Clark, a drug analyst at the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver, identified samples from three bags, said by earlier witnesses to have been thrown from the Weatherly just before it was apprehended July 15, as containing marijuana.

He also said that 10 samples, taken at random by an earlier witness from some of the 439 bales found on Obstruction Island, contained marijuana.

Before The Judge

A 24-year-old Esquimalt man described by his lawyer as so sensitive to noise that even a refrigerator motor would irritate him was given a suspended sentence and probation by Judge Blake Allan in Victorial provincial court Monday.

Larry Morgan pleaded guilty last Wednesday to two counts of wilful damage and was remanded until Monday for a doctor's examination.

Morgan was at his parents' fifth-floor suite at 707 Esquimalt on March 31 when he became violent and punched a hole in the wall, threw furniture around and finally picked up a 35-pound concrete block and hurled it through a window onto a parked car, causing $300 damage to the vehicle.

Defence lawyer James Main told the court his client's mother was suffering shoulder pain on the night of the incident and was screaming, which caused Morgan stress.

The judge said it was a medical problem before suspending sentence and placing Morgan on a year's probation. Allan also ordered Morgan to seek counselling and therapy as recommended by his physician and ordered him to make restitution for the damage to the parked car.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith told Allan that Trevour Traboulay, 3590 Hamilton, Coquitlam, was found in a room at the Westwind Motor Inn in Colwood with another man and three juveniles July 17.

Smith said the father of the 16-year-old girl reported to RCMP that his daughter had been missing for three hours and officers went to the room about midnight and found the five persons there.

Traboulay admitted to police he took the girl there on his motorcycle, gave her some vodka and orange juice and passed her a marijuana cigarette. Smith also said there was "sexual activity" in the room.

Asked by Allan to explain what the last phrase meant, Smith asked for a brief adjournment before stating that RCMP meant sexual intercourse took place.

Defence lawyer Sheldon Goldbery of Vancouver stated that his client denied any sexual intercourse took place and said a co-accused man, who was given a one-year probation and a suspended sentence in Coquitlam provincial court, provided the marijuana cigarette.

Goldberg said his client, whose father is a high school teacher, said the 16-year-old girl appeared quite mature.

Allan said probation was inadequate in this case and ordered the fine.

Incinerator Go-Ahead

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Valley Regional District's $1,079,000 incinerator project has been given the go-ahead by the provincial government without a referendum of area ratepayers.

The incinerator, to serve North Cowichan, Duncan and Ladysmith, was delayed last December when the municipal affairs department withheld approval pending a vote. But in the interem costs rose approximately $33,000.

The referendum order was rescinded following meetings between CVRD Chairman Leo Kuta and administrator Ralph Keir and Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

If the order had been delayed again, costs would have increased at least another $36,000.

Both the Duncan and south lanfill site on Koksilah Road and the Herb Road incinerator handling North Cowichan garbage had been condemned by Pollution Control Board officials.

First Fashion Hit Close-Knit Affair

MILAN — The Missonis, who have elevated knitted clothes to a form of art, scored the first big success of the fall ready-to-wear shows here. The Italian fashion openings will be followed by market weeks in London, Paris and, toward the end of April, New York. The shape of next winter's clothes will be established long before summer sets in.

The Missoni coats were outstanding in three-dimensional stitches that looked almost like fur and in abstract patterns that resembled modern paintings. Some were knitted in squares to look quilted and reversed to glazed cotton linings that were quilted. Evenings styles were shot with glitter, including the pants, of which there were many for day and night.

The most unusual shape was knickers. The rest of the clothes had a classic, timeless quality which is what Rosita Missoni was referring when she said, "We're not really fashion." What she meant was the clothes have a style of their own and do not develop a new character every six months.

In the other showings so far, the "retro" character, introduced a year ago with giant padded shoulders and skinny skirts, has been somewhat subdued and an occasional full skirt shows up.

It was fitting that the Missonis — Ottavio, called Tai, takes care of the knitting, and his wife, Rosita, does the designing — should have brought the audience to its feet since they were as responsible as anyone for turning this industrial city into a fashion centre.

Since they decided to introduce their collections in Milan a few years ago — their factory is in nearby Sumirago — the main fashion action was in Florence or Rome. Now retailers from as far as Australia and Japan come here, establishing Milan as a European fashion mecca second only to Paris.

The north of Italy has long been a production centre for fashion as well as industrial goods. Now designers from Rome come here to show their wares. Some 52 houses schedule major shows during the six days of the fall market week which started Saturday. Countless others show informally in their offices and hotel rooms. The city is engulfed in fashion.

Like other knitwear producers here, the Missonis, who celebrated their 25th year in business last year, started making styles anonymously for stores or even for French designers. As their skill increased, so did their longing for their own name on the label. To call attention to themselves as creators, many houses made exaggerated styles which worked out better in loose clothes than in tight, structured ones. For fall, they seem to have relaxed a bit.

Sportmax, which has just begun to sell to American stores, is a case in point. While shoulders are still broad, coats look soft as sweaters and wrap easily around the body. They often cover jumpsuits with narrow legs, wrapped middles and a space-age look.

Andre Laug strengthened the case for suits with a variety of styles ranging from ultra-fitted to slightly relaxed. They were accompanied by soft blouses, with bows at the neckline rather than shirts. Jackets ranged from bellhop styles that dipped in points below the waist to long, narrow styles that covered the hips. Skirts were narrow or pleated.

Laug, who works in Rome and has a following in the United States, also has a penchant for marabou coats which he tossed over some suits. In mottled brown or black with white, the coats resembled fur but were much lighter. "They'll love them in Palm Beach," said Martha Phillips, who runs the Martha stores in New York and Bal Harbour, Fla.

Are You Cooking Yourself?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A plastic surgeon from Oklahoma City, Okla., would like everyone to take the egg test.

"Fill your bathtub with hot water and drop an egg into it," said Dr. Paul Silverstein. "I bet you any money it will poach."

The point of the test, he said, is to demonstrate that the temperature in water heaters in most homes is so high "you can literally cook in a bathtub."

It is hot enough to cause third-degree burns, said Dr. Silverstein, medical director of the Baptist Medical Burn Centre in Oklahoma City.

He was in Windsor to speak to about 110 doctors, nurses and para-medical staff at a seminar on burns at Windsor Hospital.

In an interview, the surgeon said most homes have their hot water heaters set between 140 and 160 degrees fahrenheit (60 to 70 degrees Celsius). That's hot enough to scald and damage skin tissue and would require plastic surgery and skin grafting.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the third grader who wanted to give out 23 invitations to her birthday party when there were 29 in her class:

Bless you, Abby, for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let her give out the invitations at school unless everyone in the class was invited. (You said, "The pain of having been left out will remain with those six who were uninvited long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.")

You are so right, Abby. I'm 29, and I still get pains in my stomach when I recall how one popular girl in my sixth grade class invited everybody but me and another girl to her Halloween party. She gave out printed invitations, then, the day before the party, she must have realized that we knew about it and felt hurt, so she "invited" us, but told us the wrong time.

My mother hurriedly made me a costume and dropped me off at the girl's house. I kept ringing the doorbell for the longest time. When nobody answered, I walked home crying.

PAINFUL MEMORIES

DEAR MEMORIES: I received a surprising number of letters from others who also had some painful memories:

I remember when a girl in my class had a sweet-16 party and I wasn't invited because I wore a heavy brace on my leg as a result of polio.

I'll never forget this heartless girl telling me to my face that she really liked me, but didn't invite me to her party because there would be dancing and I wouldn't have a very good time sitting and watching everyone else dance. J.W.D.

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column certainly jogged some unhappy memories of my school days. When I was in the eighth grade, a girl in my room had a birthday party and invited everybody in the class but me and another girl. Her party as held on a Friday night and I skipped school that day because I was so humiliated I didn't think I could face my classmates without breaking down in tears.

That was 53 years ago, but I remember it as though it was yesterday. CELIA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let a student pass out invitations to a party. I am a retired schoolteacher who frequently had to fight the same battle with some of my students' mothers. You would not believe how insensitive some people could be.

Some kids would have parties and exclude all the Jewish kids . . . or the black kids . . . or the Indian kids.

Small wonder some of those youngsters grew up to be bigots. They were carefully taught at home that anybody who was "different" was inferior. Thank heavens things are different now. FORMER TEACHER

DEAR ABBY: When I was in fifth grade, we moved out of state and I had to change schools. Being very shy, I didn't make friends very easily at my new school, so when the popular boy in the class had a party, he invited everyone except me and a very fat boy. I felt terribly hurt.

One of the kids in our class liked the fat boy, and refused to attend the party unless he was invited, too. The fat boy in turn said he wouldn't go unless "the new kid" (me) was invited. So as it turned out everyone in the class went and had a good time. S.L.

He Slipped Away After 33 Years

elizabeth forbes

With the retirement earlier this month of Cmdr. Gar Dixon as Government House secretary, 33 years of dedicated effort came to an end.

He left office quietly, refused to be publicly feted and turned thumbs down on any final interviews that might lead to farewell stories in our newspapers.

If plans have materialized as expected, he and Mrs. Dixon are now in France.

They left Monday by air for Paris where they will spend a short time before going on to Montreux to live for perhaps a year while they travel here and there throughout Europe.

Despite his wishes, I can't let Gar and Lorna Dixon slip away from Victoria without wishing them health, happiness and good fortune while they are overseas.

In all the years he was in Government House, Gar (as he was known to thousands of British Columbians) was never too busy to answer my questions, to put me straight on protocol and to help me with his knowledge and expertise whenever I needed that help in my work with this newspaper.

It was back in 1946 that Cmdr. Dixon (a Cape Breton Islander) first came to Government House as assistant secretary. A few years later, when Capt. J. G. Cromack retired, he stepped into the No. 1 position.

Since then he has masterminded and co-ordinated plans for hundreds of receptions, dinners, balls and garden parties and helped arrange protocol for royal visits and for visits of heads of state.

He has accompanied lieutenant-governors on their travels throughout B.C. and to other places in Canada. And he has answered questions for and acted as liaison between thousands of British Columbians and Government House.

Each year at the opening of the provincial legislature — with one exception — he has been with the lieutenant-governor in the procession to the floor of the house.

That exception was in 1971 when he was convalescing from an illness that had confined him to hospital, and his doctor would not hear of him going back to his office in time for the opening of the state ball and state dinners that were — and still are — a part of the pomp and ceremony of the occasion.

In that procession to the floor of the House it was Gar's responsibility to carry the Speech from the Throne, hand it to the lieutenant-governor at the appointed time and take it back into safekeeping at the conclusion of the address.

There were years when Gar went on with the lieutenant governor's party to receptions in the Empress Hotel where former premier W.A.C. Bennett and his cabinet ministers were hosts.

This would be followed by a quick return to Government House to see that everything was in readiness for the ball, and then, later in the evening, to assume responsibility for ushering guests through the receiving line, watching that they had their right supper sittings and making sure no last-minute snarls marred the occasion.

During the past decade school children from other parts of British Columbia have visited Government House in increasing numbers in the course of conducted tours of this capital city.

Always Gar was there to welcome them and, with other key staff members, to take his turn at showing them through the vice-regal residence.

He established a routine for every important occasion, small or large. He went over those routines, time and time again, quietly checking out any flaws to make them more efficient and easier to implement.

Those routines will no doubt be used, in full or in part, for many years to come.

Earlier this year Gar was named an Officer of the Order of Canada but was unable to attend the presentation ceremony at Rideau Hall in Ottawa because of an unusually heavy schedule of events in Government House here.

Now he and Mrs. Dixon hope to be in Ottawa on their way back from overseas early next year when the 1980 presentations are being made. If that plan materializes he will very likely then receive the honor officially from Governor-General Ed Schreyer.

Status of Women — Norrie Preston, a B.C. representative with the federal Advisory Council of the Status of Women (ACSW), received word on the weekend that Doris Anderson of Toronto, former editor of Chatelaine magazine, has been named president of the council to replace Yvonne Rosseau, recently appointed a senator.

DIXON
. . . now in France

At the same time, Hon. Marc Lalonde, minister responsible for the status of women, appointed Lucie Pepin, Montreal, as vice-president.

He also announced that Win Loewen of Winnipeg and Suzanne Findlay would join Anderson and Petin to increase the executive committee to four members.

This, he made clear, was to reinforce and increase the council's strength in dealing with governments and the private sector and its leadership role across Canada.

A meeting of the ACSW with Mrs. Anderson in the chair is in session now at Hamilton, Ont. Mrs. Preston left to attend that meeting on Sunday.

By L. L. Coleman, MD

One of the most advanced medical and sociological ideas is now gaining wide acceptance — the value of a second opinion.

When a medical or surgical exigency arises, both the doctor and the patient become aware of the need and value of a consultation with another doctor. Unless there is mutual understanding, any expression of the desire for another opinion on the part of the doctor or the patient may momentarily challenge faith in each other.

The anxious patient, pressured by friends and family, often does not know exactly how to approach this delicate matter without endangering his rapport with his doctor. He wants that second opinion, but too often dares not express his desire.

In an effort to avoid this difficult confrontation, the patient and family are often compelled to resort to subterfuge and seek that additional opinion without revealing it to their own doctor.

When that second opinion substantiates that of his own doctor, the patient may feel embarrassed and still not reveal it.

If the second opinion is at variance with that of his own doctor, confusion and irrational behavior may disrupt that which was formerly a stable, valuable relationship.

In order to bypass any unpleasantries, medical insurance companies, such as Blue Cross, have now begun a program by which they themselves request a second opinion when any important surgical procedure is contemplated.

A panel of doctors is formed in each community, recognized by their training and certification. Each one represents a medical specialty. A specialist is asked to give an opinion on each impending operation. If there is agreement between the doctors, the patient gains much assurance from this approach and is spared the embarrassment of confronting his own doctor when he has questions about the operation.

In many instances, the doctors confer with each other in order to arrive at a conclusion which obviously is best for the ultimate interest of the patient.

Doctors have been remarkably co-operative in this new venture. They all acknowledge the right of a patient to another opinion, especially when the level of anxiety is high. By this co-operation, the doctor lays the groundwork for arriving at the best possible solution to the total problem.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Saul Levine, psychiatrist; Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Dr. Levine: I am 16 years old. I've been depressed and having a lot of problems lately — especially my parents. For the last two weeks I've been drinking almost every day in the morning just before my first class and again just before I go home. I know if I don't stop I'll turn into an alcoholic. I'm pretty fed up with life right now — myself included. There's absolutely no one I can talk to.

ANSWER: I'm sure that you've heard all the dangers of alcohol abuse, but I'm going to list some of them anyway. Alcohol is a dangerous and highly addictive substance; it can cause a whole variety of serious physical and emotional problems.

You are well on your way. Drinking alone in the morning daily before school is behavior that can only lead to destructive consequences. If you truly feel that you can't talk to your parents — that they are part of the problem — or to your friends, then you must talk to someone. And that's just a first step.

I'm not coming down on you as a moralist but as someone who is very concerned about what you are doing to youself. You must get help from someone who is trained in this area (specialists in adolescent medicine, school counsellors, addiction specialists, etc.). Otherwise, the reasons for your drinking will become less important than the terrible effects that the alcohol is going to have on your body and mind. Booze never solved personal or family problems.

★ ★ ★

Dear Dr. Powell: If you have never had your period, and you have intercourse, can a doctor tell you have had intercourse?

ANSWER: After intercourse, the opening of the vagina is usually larger and more relaxed. However, this can be the result of other things. There is a rim of skin at the entrance or opening of the vagina, called the hymen. This is stretched or torn at the time of first intercourse. It has no relation to whether you have started to menstruate.

If the doctor examines you, he or she will be able to tell whether the entrance to the vagina is very small and tight, or more relaxed, but unless you tell him there will be no way for him to know how this occurred. You may be asked whether you have had intercourse and you can answer or not as you wish, but you have to realize that this entrance in a very young girl is usually small and tight. When the vagina is relaxed the doctor will likely suspect you have had intercourse.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I am a 17-year-old girl and I have a boyfriend who is 21. I can discuss anything with him except money. Since we have been going out (seven months) he has always paid for me. When he tells me he is going to buy me a present I feel guilty because I haven't the money to buy him a gift. What should I do to get over feeling this way?

ANSWER: What we give to each other we should give because we want to and because we like the other person. Your boyfriend is giving you presents because he likes you. It does not mean that you have to give to him in the same way. You do not have to spend as much money as he does. You can be creative and think of gifts you can make yourself, or you can cook him a special meal. Giving should not have a price tag fixed on it.

Fun Game Of Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — A Hamilton, Ont., hospital employee has invented a game to educate children about hospitals.

The idea behind the game, called Community Hospitals, is to help children understand the various departments and medical terms.

The rules are called hospital policies; a roll of the dice is known as a medical decision, and the object of the game is not to win but to recover.

Oswald Berkely, director of audio-visual and medical photography at St. Joseph's Hospital, says he began designing the game about five years ago when his sons Russell, then 9, and Rennick, then 7, expressed interest in medical terminology.

The game, which can be played by up to six persons, begins at a square marked Admitting. Players advance by a roll of the dice until they have circled the 40-square board seven times.

Each circuit represents one day in hospital and no patient can stay more than seven days, Berkely says, because today's hospital stay is shorter on the average than it was a decade ago.

During the course of the game, players only land on an "infection control" square, or may hit a disaster plan when all players go to the emergency department to respond to a crisis.

If a player falls on a square marked X, he is entitled to an x-ray and a card revealing the diagnosis. If the player has scoliosis (curvature of the spine), he is sent for treatment to a square called physiotherapy.

Berkely says the board game generally follows the structure of hospital departments. However, he omitted the morgue ("Too gruesome."), pediatrics ("I didn't want a player to be kidded about being a child patient."), and obstetrics ("Too complicated to explain.").

A player functions both as patient and a doctor entrepreneur able to buy his way into a job such as chief surgeon and charge other players for services.

Dog Biscuits Do the Trick With Pet Pig

If Bill and Majorie Paraniuk could only teach her to bring home the bacon they'd have it made.

Bill, a 41-year-old carpenter, started training Penny for about an hour a day after he discovered she would sit on command like a dog for a treat.

"It was the easiest trick to teach her because it was the most natural."

Another command and she turns it off.

"As long as you have dog biscuits to feed her she's okay," Bill said.

On command, she will also roll a log across the Paraniuk's garage floor, and seems to enjoy riding and pushing a wagon Bill made only this week.

The Paraniuk's three boys like Penny, but six-year-old Greg admits he would rather had a dog.

After all, who has ever heard of a boy and his pig?

Renowned Carver Works in Prison

Moses was sentenced to four years in jail in 1969 for shooting an acquaintance during a party at Frobisher Bay.

Released on parole two years later, he was convicted of assault causing bodily harm and sentenced to one year plus the remainder of his first sentence.

Following his second release, Moses pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced to nine years without freedom.

Moses will be released in 1984 — if his heart holds up. He underwent three open-heart operations in an Edmonton hospital last summer.

The sculptor has an assured market. His carvings are purchased by persons throughout the world.

He also is teaching younger prisoners about the carving skills he has acquired.

Computerized Journal 'Very Exciting'

The writing and editing of articles, editorial conferences and delivery to subscribers all are to be done on computer terminals linked by a satellite with a central computer.

He said recently that he hopes all scientific journals eventually will be electronic.

"An article can be published in the morning and be all over the world by lunchtime — very exciting."

Words typed on the terminal's keyboard appear on a small screen similar to that of a television, and messages can be sent more quickly than through the mail.

Mennonite Colony on Ropes

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Special to the Times

WASHINGTON — A community of Mennonites with Canadian roots which has been eking out a bare existence on 10 square miles of dry northwest Texas farmland since 1977, suffered a bitter blow recently when a bank foreclosed on their property.

The seizure climaxes nearly two years of rugged work on soil that already had cost the community several hundred thousand dollars. The action is expected to fragment the community of 160 families, if they can avoid deportation.

A Canadian official in Dallas said in an interview that the Mennonites — many of them descended from church members in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and southern Ontario — are likely to "evaporate and disappear into west Texas society."

The cotton-growing land they bought in 1977 for about $1.7 million, with a down payment of $425,000, reverted to the original owner this week after the community defaulted on the annual payment.

Few members of the old colony of Mennonites — distinctive for their simple dress, strict code of behavior and strong sense of community — have proper immigration status.

With the loss of their 6,400 acres, they become, in theory, even more vulnerable to deportation.

The Canadian consulate in Dallas is struggling to put their papers in order, and it's becoming a bureaucratic nightmare.

"It's a difficult thing," Vice-Consul Doug Patterson said in a telephone interview. "They are totally innocent and naive. Many of them don't even have birth certificates or wedding documents."

If the consulate can establish that they are "depressed" Canadians, it could then provide them with free transport to Canada in the event of deportation.

Lawyers for the bank which bought the land at a public auction for $1 million say the community was the victim of poor leadership and ignorance of farming conditions in Texas. "It's not at all like growing tobacco in Canada," attorney Ed Fulbright remarked.

The old colony, by the way, won't get a dime of this million dollars. The money goes to the original owner, rancher Dennis Nix. The colony forfeits the money it has invested so far — about $575,000 — as well as the homes and remaining farm equipment.

In many ways, the Mennonites are people without a homeland. Most of them are descended from members of a Canadian sect who moved to Mexico in the 1920s in search of cheap land.

They established a farming colony in the Chihuahua region and raised large families. Over the years, relatives from Ontario and the Canadian Prairies drifted down to the community, which swelled to a population of 125,000.

In the early 1970s, however, deteriorating social and political conditions threatened to disrupt their communal lives.

Three years ago, their bishop, Henry Reimer of Leamington, Ont., went out to scout possible sites for a settlement in the American Midwest. He found the Texas ranch, near the town of Seminole, signed the papers, and went to Mexico and Canada to tell his people about their prospective new "home."

In time, more than 100 families made the trek, telling customs officials at the borders that they planned to stay for no more than 60 days. They were given visitors' visas.

Reimer, who has since fallen into disgrace because of a drinking problem, has been blamed by some of the Mennonites for signing a bad deal. For one thing, the homesteaders did not have water rights on the land. These rights wer held by oil companies who drilled on the property.

For another, he was accused of not forewarning the church members of the immigration problems they would encounter.

Church sources say the settlers were told that they could remain in the U.S. as long as they owned and worked at least an acre of land.

In recent months, more and more of the families, frustrated by the harsh unyielding soil and the lack of irrigation, moved off the land and drifted into neighboring towns.

When the Lamesa, Tex., National Bank picked up the land this week, in the name of Dennis Nix's estate, only a handful of the settlers still were working the land.

Nevertheless, it was a common heritage that the church members had paid dearly for.

Bank attorney Ed Fulbright insisted in a telephone interview that there was no alternative to seizure. He said the Mennonites still owed $81,000 for 1978, and when the 1979 payment of $225,000 came due on Feb. 15, "they didn't pay us a penny and advised us that they had no prospects."

Fulbright said that last year, despite their claim of poverty, the settlers produced at least $150,000 of cotton and received government subsidies of another $100,000.

"It's very upsetting to me," he added, "that some members of the press have tried to make heavies and scapegoats of the sellers in this deal. In my judgment, the sellers have bent over backwards to help these people."

The Bentsen bill lists ths names of 653 Mennonites, including several dozen who came directly from Canada, whom he feels should be granted permanent U.S. status.

"I will not stand idly by," the senator said when he introduced the bill on March 21, "while the U.S. government, which has so much trouble deporting Iranian students and others who have shown a violent disregard for our laws, prepares to kick out of our country members of a peaceable, hard-working community."

If the bill is rejected by his fellow legislators during this session of Congress, the Mennonites, landless and desperate to preserve their unique sense of community, could be rudely ejected from the U.S.

Migratory Instinct Rekindled in Land-Locked Salmon

NEMURO, Japan (Reuter) — Japanese scientists have awakened the deep-sea migratory instinct in a species of salmon which has lived for about 10,000 years in two landlocked freshwater lakes.

They have shown that artificially hatched parr (young) of the kokanee species, when placed in a river, will swim hundreds of kilometres into the Pacific Ocean and return, like their ancestors, to the same river after several years to reproduce.

Initial results of the painstaking experiment, which started in 1967, have excited marine biologists by proving such an instinct could be reactivated after thousands of years.

The kokanee, an American Indian name, is known as hime-masu in Japan. It is a freshwater relation of the red salmon, whose flesh has won international acclaim as a delicacy. It inhabits lakes Akan and Chimikeppu on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido. It also is found in landlocked lakes in the United States, Canada and the Soviet Union.

Scientists believe the kokanee developed in Japan more than 10,000 years ago when volcanic convulsions sealed two lakes containing red salmon. Over the centuries, the salmon adapted to purely freshwater life.

Normally, young red salmon hatched in free-flowing rivers swim into the sea, where they remain for several years before returning to their headwaters to spawn and end their days.

For unexplained reasons, red salmon never ventured up Japanese rivers to reproduce — until the kokanee experiment began more than a decade ago.

Their home rivers, however, lead into the Pacific and they are found in Canada, Washington and Alaska, the Soviet peninsula of Kamchatka and the Soviet-held Kurile islands north of Japan.

The Japanese experiment started with marine scientists taking kokanee eggs from a lake near Sapporo in which the fish have been introduced, hatching them artificially and then releasing parr into Hokkaido's Hishibetsu River.

The first signs of success came in 1969 when about 220 adult kokanee with red salmon characteristics were caught in the river.

Tetsuo Kobayashi, a government fishery official at Sapporo's salmon hatchery institute, says 100,000 parr had been released annually over the last 12 years in the hope that they would return and reproduce.

But he says the experiment has not been totally successful. Biologists still are having to use kokanee eggs, as not enough red salmon have returned.

Several thousand red salmon returned to the river and its vicinity five years after the experiment started. But the number has been decreasing steadily and only a few now are being captured each year in traps four kilometres from the mouth of the Hishibetsu River, he adds.

The decrease was mainly because the thoroughness of checks was not maintained in fishermen's nets in offshore areas where chum and pink salmon also were caught.

But Kobayashi says he believes there may be other reasons for the decrease, including releasing parr that were too young and placing them in wrong areas of the river.

He says the hatchery institute will continue efforts to make red salmon one of Japan's major fish resources like other salmon species which lay eggs in Japanese rivers.

The other species are the chum and pink salmon, also found in U.S., Canadian and Russian rivers, and the sakura masu (cherry) salmon, which lays eggs only in Japanese and other Far Eastern rivers.

More than 12 million parr of these salmon are hatched artificially and released each year into Japanese rivers. Millions are caught later by local fishermen.

The fishery agency also has launched a project to persuade silver salmon to stay in Japanese rivers, and last year it imported 500,000 eggs to hatch in Sapporo.

Japan, which relies on the sea for more than 50 per cent of its protein, has been hit exceptionally hard by the new zones.

The fishery agency also has been helping the Chilean government to introduce chum salmon.

Opening lead - six of spades.

A gambit, in chess, consists of deliberately sacrificing a piece in order to gain a long-term advantage. Bridge has its gambits also. Declarer sometimes deliberately sacrifices a trick in order to increase his chances of making the contract. The opportunity does not arise often. When it does, declarer should seize it with both hands.

South neglected to meet the challenge in this deal where West led a spade against three notrump. Declarer played low from dummy and won East's king with the ace. When South now led a club, East took his ace and returned a spade. West very properly allowed dummy's ten of spades to win and declarer then had to go down one. West scored three spade tricks and East scored his two aces.

Declarer would have made the contract had he ducked East's king of spades at trick one and then played his jack on the spade continuation at trick two. This would have cost declarer a spade trick — he would have made only one spade trick instead of two — but the trick he lost would have come back with interest. South would have lost two spade tricks and two aces, but no more.

It is not difficult for declarer to conclude that East, for his opening bid, has the two missing aces and also that West's spade lead probably came from a five-card suit.

Once declarer reaches this conclusion, it follows that the opportunity to make two spade tricks ranks second in importance to the opportunity to make the contract. Refusing to take East's king of spades with the ace may seem self-injurious, but it is clearly the right play to make under the circumstances.

SOLUTIONS WEDNESDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological forecast for Wednesday, April 11
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasize your needs, make clear that you are not looking for a dispute . . . but you won't run, either. You gain allies by taking a stand. Money matters, legal permissions, partnership commitment and marital status all command attention.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Maintain low profile. Attend to basic services, issues. Pisces, Virgo individual figure prominently — and so does the number 7. Give yourself an emotional respite. Gather thoughts, forces. Being alone is not same as being lonely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check tendency to act on impulse. Demonstrate sense of responsibility. Love, children, speculation, creative projects crowd busy agenda. You'll feel fulfilled — and on brink of greater self-discovery. Your position is strong — know it and be confident.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your natural abilities, special talents become evident. You close deal in admirable fashion. You receive praise from one you respect. Now you can build on solid base and enhance security. Aries plays key role. You reach more people . . . and receive favorable "notices."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Utilize sense of drama, showmanship. Set your own, independent pace. Strive for fresh concepts, new contacts. Ideas are plentiful. Pursue the most original — lead rather than follow. Avoid lifting heavy objects. Take special care in traffic. Relative will "make you laugh."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spotlight on collection, deciding what should be discarded. Key is to streamline — refuse to be possessed by possessions. Family member who constantly moves responsibility to you . . . should be brought up short. You have a life of your own to live. You deserve to smell the flowers!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take advantage of high lunar cycle — assert yourself, express views, make personal appearances and appeals. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. You no longer are restricted. Know it, expand horizons, articulate aspirations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Break through red tape, haze of doubts and suspicions — your "opposition" has nothing solid behind it. State case in firm manner. Imprint your own style. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons figure in fascinating scenario.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on friendships, special relationships, creativity, "romantic links." Express yourself — perceive potential. Recent investment pays dividends. Prestige is on upswing. You gain added recognition, perhaps promotion or civic honor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Obtain hint from Sagittarius message — make effort to see as is, not through haze of self-deception. One "in command" calls on you to outline course, to define terms, to accept more responsibility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get aid from Sagittarius, Capricorn persons. Read their messages for today! You bridge age, language, educational barriers. Sense of communication is heightened. Avoid brooding — what you want is coming up — it is just over the horizon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The number 8 figures prominently. Accent on mystery, taxes, leases, rentals, reaching legal agreement that will remove emotional pressure. Partner, spouse and money are part of your personal scenario. Do plenty of listening, observing.

IF APRIL 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you learn by teaching. You are a psychologist, sensitive, loyal and you have tendency to brood, especially where family and security are concerned. Cancer, Aquarius persons play key roles in your life. You get rid of a burden before this month is finished. You make valuable, new contacts in May. December could be one of your most memorable months of 1979, a year featuring change, creativity, travel, variety, a relationship that could lead to a "permanent arrangement." Social life accelerates in July. You know when something of importance is to occur — you detect clues, subtle nuances. You can be stubborn and temperamental, but when chips are down you respond in splendid fashion.

Ghostly Treasure Gathers Dust

ROME (Reuter) — One of the finest private collections of Roman sculpture in the world is in three basement rooms near the river Tiber, unseen for more than 30 years.

Ghostly statues of gods and men, stern busts of the emperors, sarcophagi and bas-reliefs of the long-dead — 620 of them — wait in the darkness for the Romans of today to settle the squabbles that keep them imprisoned.

The collection is the property of Prince Alessandro Torlonia, 53, heir to a family of French extraction whose ancestor, Jean Tourlonais, became wealthy by supplying republican troops during Italian unification a century ago.

His son, Alessandro — grandfather of the present prince, turned banker and made another fortune by supplying Italian lire in exchange for the gold sovereigns of visiting English lords.

With a taste for archeology, he spent the money on digging up Roman remains in Rome and on the 35,000 acres of family land Jean had bequeathed him.

This hobby was the foundation of the present collection, which includes sculptures once owned by the families of two Roman emperors — Constantine and Justinian.

While dreaming of a permanent museum, old Alessandro kept his treasures in a family villa in Trastevere, across the Tiber from central Rome and not far from the Vatican.

He distributed them among 77 rooms of the villa and in 1883 a catalogue, the first and only record of the collection, was prepared.

Its compiler wrote in awed terms of the series of portrait busts of the emperors as "superior in number and beauty to the collections in the Vatican and Rome's Capitaloline museum."

Few people since then have had the chance to see the treasures because the old prince on his death left his sculptures to the present Don Alessandro, who chose not to put them on public display.

For 30 years, the Torlonia museum has remained closed, seen only by a few scholars including the former director of the antiquities and fine arts department who, legend says, dresses himself as a cleaner to trick the guards and catch a glimpse of the hidden treasure.

The collection's very existence was forgotten until two years ago when a Roman magistrate surprised the city by sequestering the lot.

The reason, he said, was that a licence had been issued for necessary repairs to the museum and under cover of this the prince had restructured the building into 93 mini-apartments bringing him an annual rent totalling more than $350,000.

The work, which began in 1972, had been completed and tenants moved in long before anyone realized what was going on.

Once the affair had come to light, national and city authorities not previously noted for their interest in Italy's heritage suddenly became passionate defenders of the arts.

But predictably, no action followed and Don Alessandro's lawyer, Pietro Nocita, successfully argued that the collection had not been removed or damaged or sold abroad, and thus obtained de-sequestration last January.

This not only restored to the prince the statues and the 93 mini-apartments but also unblocked the bank account containing the two years' rent from the tenants.

"How to lose a museum through intertia," said a headline in the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, which had published a series of articles on the affair written by Antonio Cederna, vice-president of Italia Nostra — the country's leading organization for preserving its own heritage.

Cederna asked why the culture ministry or Rome's city council had not acted, pointing out that Rome's Communist mayor, Giulio Carlo Argan, is himself an art historian who knows the value of the collection.

Argan made haste to reply, saying he can assure Romans, Italians and foreigners alike that he and his council are "not ready to tolerate the Torlonia collection remaining hidden."

They intend, he said, "to

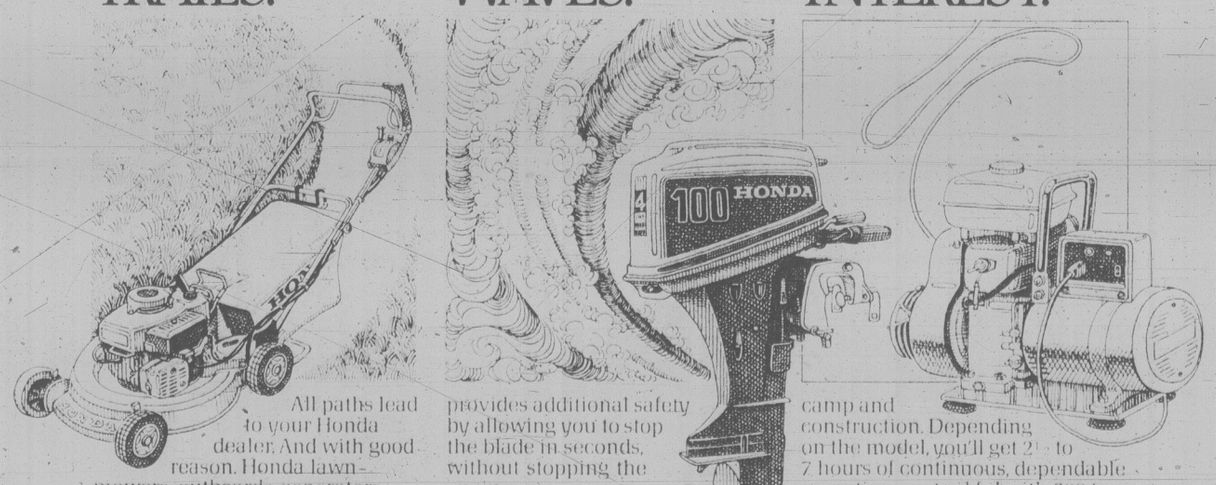
BLAZING TRAILS. MAKING WAVES. GENERATING INTEREST.



All paths lead to your Honda dealer. And with good reason. Honda lawnmowers, outboards, generators, tillers, General Purpose engines and water pumps are making news as powerful, economical alternatives to the competition.

That's because at the heart of every Honda power product is the world famous Honda engine. But we don't stop there. All major parts are Honda parts. Unlike some other manufacturers.

The result: maximum efficiency, reliability and long life.

Take our lawnmowers. Our exclusive Roto-Stop™ clutch system provides additional safety by allowing you to stop the blade in seconds, without stopping the engine.

The cast aluminum deck is specially designed to create the utmost suction for cleaner cutting. And yet, they're surprisingly easy to operate.

Honda 7.5 hp and 10 hp outboards are equally outstanding. We offer the only 4-stroke water-cooled engines in Canada. Using regular gas, they require no oil mixing. Very efficient. Very clean. Very quiet. Very dependable.

Honda portable generators are great for home, cottage, farm, camp and construction. Depending on the model, you'll get 2½ to 7 hours of continuous, dependable operation per tankful with 300 to 3500 watts of power.

Honda tillers are super powerful yet quiet, with chain drive transmission, power take-off, safety clutch and folding handle.

He Almost Tangoed With a Mamba

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Snake-sitter Peter Snyman, after avoiding an attack by a deadly mamba snake, spent a third day with his venomous companions Monday, hoping to break the world record of 36 days for sitting inside a cage with poisonous snakes.

Jack Seale, curator at the Hartebeespoort Snake Park in South Africa, said Snyman just missed receiving a fatal bite from a black mamba Sunday.

"He thought there was a fly on him and he became quite annoyed with it, as he has to sit absolutely still inside the cage," Seale said. "He was going to give it a quick smack when he realized that it wasn't a fly at all, but the flicking of a black mamba's tongue."

Snyman entered the cage at the park, about 80 kilometre's from here, on Saturday, pledging to stay inside the three-metre by three-metre cage for 40 days.

The record of 36 days was set by another South African, Trevor Kruger, in the same cage in 1975. Kruger was killed in a car crash several weeks later.

With Snyman in the cage are 24 poisonous snakes: six black mambas, six puff adders, six Egyptian cobras and six tree snakes, which are called boomslangs in South Africa.

Seale said Snyman became nervous during another incident Sunday afternoon when the snakes were given food.

"About half of them ate, but there were still little white mice and toads hopping around inside which hadn't been eaten," Seal said. "This can be very distracting for the snakes."

Egypt Would Fight Israel on Golan

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egypt's new relationship with Israel showed signs of strain today after the Cairo government said it would back Syria in a possible war over occupied territory.

The declaration by Premier Mustapha Khalil is the first serious difference between the two countries since they signed a peace treaty in Washington two weeks ago.

The reports of Khalil's remarks last week before members of parliamentarian committees have brought a protest from Israel which said they are a violation of the peace pact.

The premier said Egypt would "stand at Syria's side" if that country went to war with a recalcitrant Israel over the Golan Heights, says an official source quoted by Egypt's official Middle East New Agency, MENA, Monday night.

Khalil said it would be Syria's legitimate right to fight to recover the Golan Heights if Israel refused to withdraw after negotiations within the framework of the Camp David, Md., summit meeting accords, MENA said.

The MENA report came as the Egyptian parliament resumed debate to ratify the peace treaty. A referendum is expected to be held Sunday in a bid to show Arab states the treaty has widespread support.

The parliament debate has been criticized by opposition members who said it does not serve the cause of peace in the region.

Khalil said Egypt considers the Camp David accords concluded with the United States and Israel last September to be a framework for other Arab governments directly involved to negotiate a peaceful settlement with Israel.

MENA reported that Khalil said if Syria began negotiations with Israel, it had the right to reach the same results as Egypt — Israeli withdrawal, exercise of sovereignty, elimination of Israeli settlements and security arrangements to be agreed upon by the two parties based on the Camp David accords.

Khalil said: "If Israel expressed obstinacy and refused to withdraw . . . the liberation of occupied territories according to the UN Charter is considered a legitimate act of defence and Egypt will stand at Syria's side in implementation of the joint Arab defense pact," MENA added.

MENA said Khalil arlier had told a meeting of the parliamentary committee of the governing National Democratic party (NDP) that if Israel accepted these conditions and "Syria starts the aggression, this aggression will not be considered within the framework of the joint defence pact and does not commit Egypt to enter into war on Syria's side."

Syria has rejected the Camp David accords as well as the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The Israeli foreign ministry said Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan had sent a letter on the subject of Khalil's reported remarks to the U.S. government.

It added that Prime Minister Menachem Begin had sent a copy of Dayan's letter to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accompanied by a personal note.

Egypt denied Monday night that it had received the Israeli protest and MENA said the Cairo government would reject it when it arrived.

Firing Squad Still Active

Times News Services

TEHRAN — An Islamic court sent another royalist official to the firing squad early today but the revolutionary tribunals showed their first leniency by giving a police torturer a prison sentence instead of death and freeing 16 others on probation.

Col. Houshang Tavana, a former martial-law administrator in Tehran, was the 20th official of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's regime to die since executions resumed last Thursday after a three-week suspension.

This brought the total of confirmed executions to 83 since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces overthrew the last royal government two months ago. But unconfirmed reports said four policemen were put to death in Behbahan.

The first leniency by one of Khomeini's special courts was reported by Pars, the official news agency. It said Mohammad Ilkhain, accused of torturing prisoners of SAVAK — the shah's secret police — was sentenced to three years in prison and that was reduced to one year because he repented.

The report said 16 other defendants were released after "very careful investigation" of their cases and were required to post bonds as guarantees of good conduct in the future.

Meanwhile, Khomeini attacked the flourishing black market in butter, cigarettes and other scarce commodities with a statement warning merchants his courts would punish them if they did not stop profiteering.

"I request all sellers, especially those who deal in items of everyday need, to stop profiteering and instead implement true Islamic tenets," said the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader of the revolution.

Khomeini also stressed the need for improved housing, called on large landholders to make land available for new housing and announced the opening of a special fund to accept donations for housing.

Meanwhile, the revolutionary government has asked the United States to cancel all remaining weapons orders concluded by the regime of the deposed shah, and Washington is seeking to sell some of the Iranian arms to Israel, according to informed sources.

The Israelis stand to get 55 fighter planes now being built by General Dynamics as part of a $3.5 billion order by Iran for 160 of the aircraft.

Saudis Curb Oil Production

WASHINGTON (WP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Monday that Saudi Arabia, the world's leading oil exporter, is reducing its production, which could further tighten world oil markets and add some upward pressure on prices.

The Saudis "are now engaged in cutting back production to 8.5 million barrels a day," Schlesinger told a House Appropriations subcommittee.

Saudi Arabia, leading oil producer in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), produced up to 10.5 million barrels of oil a day in January.

Energy Department officials said the reduction is expected to cut the Saudis' average production during the second quarter to 8.5 million barrels a day, down 1 million from March production levels.

While the reduction will take some slack out of the world oil market, it will not result in significant added spot shortages, officials said.

British Get Clear-Cut Choice in May 3 Vote

By LEONARD DOWNIE

LONDON (WP) — The campaign for Britain's May 3 national election, which begins in earnest this week will offer voters the clearest ideological choice between the two major parties here in many years.

Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party, which enters the campaign with a strong lead in public opinion polls, intends to reduce taxes, public spending, government intervention in the economy and the power of labor unions.

Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor Party, which has been in power 12 of the last 15 years, wants to increase government involvement in setting wage levels, government investment in a variety of industries, and redistribution of income through the tax structure and government social welfare programs.

If the Conservative Party, which Thatcher has moved considerably to the right during her four years as leader, wins a sizable majority in Parliament, the election could be pivotal for British government. The only other postwar elections to mark such significant shifts in direction for the country were the big Labor win in 1945, the start of 11 years of Conservative rule in 1951 and the beginning of Labor's present dominance in 1964.

If Labor somehow overcomes the disadvantage of a weary winter of labor strife and rising inflation to regain a working majority in Parliament, it would give the party's strong left wing the opportunity to push for further expansion of the government's role in Britain's mixed economy.

It is precisely this spectre of steadily increasing socialism that motivated Thatcher to wrest her party's leadership from the last Conservative prime minister, Edward Heath, and painstakingly lay the groundwork to make this election campaign her crusade for capitalism.

"I felt, and the Conservatives who elected me presumably felt," Thatcher said recently, "that the next leader of the party must clearly stand up against the direction in which the country had been moving under both previous governments.

"We had moved too far toward a society controlled by the government, too far toward what wasn't, and isn't, my idea of a society that can flourish."

She went on in a lengthy, revealing interview in the Sunday Observer to say that "the free enterprise societies are very much better off materially" and "must be kept better off morally."

"Moral responsibility will not keep going if government steps in and makes all the decisions for you, decisions which you ought to make for yourself. And it is because so many people believe this, that my kind of conservatism is striking a chord way, way, way beyond my own party."

Talking to voters since then, she has argued repeatedly that taxes must be cut not only to give each family more money to spend at its own discretion, but also to increase individual and corporate initiative that could rescue the nation's sagging economy and morale.

This makes hers a moral crusade that includes strengthening Britain's military defense and maintaining "law and order" inside the country. She has said this means controlling not only common criminals, but also runaway labor unions that infringe on the rights of others through closed shops, secondary boycotts and picketing, and other forms of "legalized intimidation."

Callaghan is not a crusader. He is a pragmatist who gained and survived the top jobs of British parliamentary government, which Thatcher has never held, by following the will of his party or its leaders at the time, rather than rebelling or becoming an ideological leader himself.

As prime minister during the past three years, Callaghan did move his party's government closer to the centre. He also tried to force on the unions, his party's power base, strict limits on wage increases that were accepted for two years and helped bring down soaring inflation.

This past winter, however, union members got tough with him because their wages' purchasing power was continuing to shrink. Long, nasty strikes led to bigger pay raises and a rising cost of living, while productivity and Britain's growth rate continued to fall.

So, just to bring its own supporters back into the fold, Labor now must campaign from the left. Government, Labor argues, must be the partner of unions, not their adversary. Government investment in business is necessary to protect threatened jobs and to create new ones. Government spending cannot be cut without threatening free health care, free education through graduation from college, child and housing allowances, sick benefits and old-age pensions.

Labor is blaming much of the high cost of living on the Common Market, which many on the Labor left never have liked anyway. Britain, one of the European Economic Comunity's poorer nations, in terms of per capita gross national product, now pays more money into it than any of the other eight members.

Callaghan and his aides have made much political capital lately by railing at other EEC members in Brussels meetings and threatening to stip or cut British payments to the Common Market budet. Labor will try to turn British voters' dissatisfaction with high food prices against the Conservatives, who have always been more committed to the European Community.

Elsewhere in foreign affairs, the Conservatives, who have always been more sympathetic toward the white-minority governments of Rhodesia and South Africa, will try to capitalize on the Labor government's failure to win approval from Rhodesian government and black guerrilla leaders for joint U.S.-British settlement proposals.

Thatcher has told voters that a Conservative government might find this month's Rhodesian elections, from which the guerrillas are excluded, to be the most fair that can be held under the circumstances. She is sending a Conservative Party delegation to observe the elections, raising the possiblity that as prime minister she might lift sanctions against Rhodesia and recognize the new government there, which will include a disproportionate number of whites, who will control some key ministries.

Snow, Ice Rack U.S.

United Press International

A spring snowstorm dumped almost a foot of snow in New York state, tornadoes and severe thunderstorms caused widespread damage in the Deep South and an ice storm left nearly 200,000 Detroit-area residences without electricity today.

Seven deaths were caused by the ice in Detroit, officials said, five in automobile accidents on glazed streets. A woman and her 6-year-old daughter died in a fire in their powerless, candle-lit home.

The National Weather Service said storm-weary New Yorkers, who had a taste of spring in March and then were socked with winter-like weather the past week, can look forward to almost seasonal conditions for the next few days.

The storm Monday dumped nearly a foot of snow in the Rochester area and brought the state's third largest city close to an all-time mark for April.

Snow and sleet fell around the rest of the state early today as the storm moved into the Atlantic.

Rochester's 19.9 inches of snow for April surpassed the 1975 mark of 14.9 inches and brought the city within striking distance of the April 1901 total of 23.8 inches. The city has had 138 inches for the winter season, far exceeding Buffalo, usually snow champion among the state's large cities.

"This is highly unusual for April. It's a perplexing storm, an oddball," said Peter Chaston, chief meteorologist at the NWS Rochester office. "We could exceed a foot in this storm, and there's plenty of time left in April for us to break the record."

Winter storm watches also were posted for the mountains and foothills of Colorado and Wyoming, where the NWS said a low pressure system could build into a major snowstorm today.

Spring turbulence produced thunderstorms that battered Alabama and Georgia Monday. Numerous power outages were reported in Alabama. A tornado cut a swath of destruction through the southwestern section of Savannah, Ga., injuring at least 10 persons, none seriously. Property damage was extensive.

Civil Defense director Ralph Kelly said early estimates of $500,000 worth of damage to homes, businesses and a volunteer fire station were "conservative."

A-G Indicted On Tax Charge

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott, the most popular Republican vote-getter in the state, has been indicted on five counts of income tax evasion following a two-year investigation he insists was a political witch hunt.

Scott, who built a reputation during more than a decade in office as a pollution-fighter and consumer advocate, maintained he is innocent and said U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Sullivan, who announced the indictment Monday, has a conflict of interest in the case.

Despite the widely reported federal grand jury investigation, Scott was re-elected to a fourth term last November by a plurality of more than 1 million votes over a Democrat backed by the Chicago machine. On Feb. 22, Scott announced he would run for the Senate seat being vacated by Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill.

Scott attracted national attention in prosecuting General Motors Corp. for switching engines in its cars without telling customers, although an appeals court earlier this year was sharply critical of the way he handled the suit. He also has fought the dumping of nuclear and toxic chemical wastes at sites in Illinois.

Rhodesia Planes Rake Guerrillas

Times News Services

Rhodesian warplanes bombed and strafed at least two black guerrilla bases on the outskirts of Lusaka at dawn, hitting a headquarters area and causing a number of casualties.

White Rhodesians, meanwhile, vote today in the first stage of general elections which the government hopes will lead to international recognition for the militarily- and economically-bealeaguered country.

White Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian Front (RF), which has ruled since 1962, is expected to win all 20 seats open to whites, Asians and mixed race candidates.

Only four seats are being contested, all by independents who have little chance against the RF party machine.

A spokesman for Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African Peoples Union confirmed that the camps — including ZAPU's main headquarters — had been hit, but declined to give any details.

Zambian President Kenneth Kuanda said, however, that at least one ZAPU officer was killed and several wounded in the raid. Doctors at local hospitals said the wounded totaled less than two dozen.

Radio Zambia interrupted its regular programs to broadcast urgent appeals for blood donors, but did not report the attacks whose bomb blasts could be heard in Lusaka itself.

The ZAPU headquarters is located about 10 miles west of the capital near several farms operated by Europeans. One of the farmers' wives said the six planes attacked just as the sun was rising.

"They must have dropped bombs because the house shook and shook," she said. "While two of the planes were attacking the camp the other four circled above. They took it in turns to come down."

Immediately after the raid the Zambian army sealed off the area with roadblocks and refused to allow newsmen near the scene.

A number of ambulances and private cars carrying wounded were later seen speeding towards various hospitals.

The second camp hit was near Makeni six miles southwest of the capital. Diplomats said they also had heard of a third camp being hit 25 miles west of the city, but this could not be confirmed.

In announcing the raids, Kaunda said the attacks would make no difference on the war in Rhodesia.

"They can bomb Lusaka a thousand times," he said. "We will fight to the bitter end. Victory is assured," he told reporters.

The raid, the first attack against guerrilla targets inside Zambia by Rhodesian forces in more than a month, followed an announcement by Nkomo's group that it was preparing a general offensive in an all-out effort to wreck Rhodesia's elections next week when 72 black seats will be contested.

Pyramid Plans Discovered

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — An East German architect during restoration work in the Sudan has unearthed a 2,000-year-old plan for a pyramid — believed to be the first time such a building plan has been discovered.

The East German ADN news agency said Monday that Friedrich Hinkel caught sight of the half-buried document while working in the biggest pyramid in the north Sudanese village of Begraviya, site of a cultural centre called Meroe from 300 BC to 300 AD.

The faded 1.6-metre-long plan shows exact details of the outlines and angles of the pyramid in which it was found and contains a design for a platform at its summit.

Hinkel said it could be the key to far greater information on how the pyramids were planned and built than was known at present.

GM Canada Runs Airlift

Times News Services

General Motors of Canada Ltd. is flying in automobile parts from the United States in order to continue production during a shut-down in the U.S. trucking industry, a company spokesman says.

"It's costing us a big buck, but it's worth it because our cars are really selling," said Bob Fry, GM transportation director in Oshawa.

The company is flying in up to 45 planes a day and the airlift should keep 12,000 assemblers at the Oshawa plant on the job until at least Friday, Fry said.

He said the planes are chartered from both Canadian and U.S. companies to fly automobile parts from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, New York and even California.

A lockout in retaliation to selective strikes by 235,000 members of the Teamsters union has resulted in layoffs of more than 95,000 auto workers and cut shifts for 60,000 more across North America.

Chrysler of Canada shut down Monday, laying off 11,500 workers, and 9,000 assemblers at Ford Motor Co. of Canada plants in Oakville, Ont., and St. Thomas, Ont., are working half-shifts.

Meanwhile, the Teamsters union and the trucking industry resumed contract talks in Washington today, and union president Frank Fitzsimmons said he hoped the two sides could reach agreement before the end of the day.

"We made some progress (Monday) and we hope to complete it today," Fitzsimmons said before talks got under way on a new contract that would end a 10-day shutdown of the trucking industry. The work stoppage has hit the North American auto industry particularly hard.

Federal mediators kept the two sides bargaining for 11 hours before the talks were recessed after midnight Monday night.

'Overt Action' Cited On Tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration said today that a tape recording of cockpit conversations between the crew members of the Trans World Airlines jetliner that barrel-rolled twice and went into a dive last week had been erased "by overt action."

A TWA official in New York said flight crews routinely erase such tapes when they land safely.

However, FAA official Dennis Feldman said deliberate erasure in a case such as this is a violation that could lead to revoking a crew member's certificate to fly, and a $1,000 civil penalty.

Feldman said the agency did not know who erased the tape or why, and was investigating. But he said that investigators have determined that "it was done by pushing a button and electronically erasing the tape."

"It is a violation to erase the tape if there is an incident involved, and there certainly was an incident in this case," Feldman said.

The Boeing 727 was en route to Minneapolis from New York last Wednesday when it went into a barrel roll and plummeted about eight kilometres before the pilot, Harvey Gibson of Las Vegas, managed to bring it under control over Flint, Mich., by lowering the landing gear. He made an emergency landing at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

FAA investigators said the plane appeared to have exceeded the speed of sound in the dive. If so, it would be the first known case of an airliner not designed for supersonic speed to exceed the speed of sound and survive, the FAA said.

Jerry Cosley, TWA's vice-president for corporate communications, said the airline did not know whether the tape was erased by the crew, whether there was a malfunction, or whether the force of the eight-kilometre dive was responsible.

Cosley also said the absence of a tape recording was of "no great moment" to the investigation, because the crew was available to tell investigators what happened.

Tito Clamping On Dissidents

BELGRADE (WP) — Yugoslavia has launched a drive against domestic dissent with tough police warnings delivered recently to several prominent dissidents, including the country's former vice-president, Milovan Djilas, and a tightening of official controls over press and radio.

So far, however, the campaign has been kept within strict limits. While denunciations and self-criticism have become commonplace, no one has been arrested or purged. Western diplomats caution against reading too much into the crackdown, interpreting it as just one more stage in the zig-zag course pursued by President Tito since he came to power in Yugoslavia after the Second World War.

The relatively harsh new political climate in Yugoslavia is not necessarily connected with Tito's current attempts to mend fences with Moscow but will inevitably be welcomed by the Soviet leadership as a step in the right direction.

Djilas said that his recent criticisms of Soviet expansionism in newspaper interviews was one of the points taken up with him when he was summoned to a meeting with Yugoslav police last week.

Warning that "the most energetic measures" would be taken against him and his friends if he persisted in his activities, a plainclothes policeman said attacks on foreign countries weakened Yugoslavia's position and were also punishable.

It was the first time that Djilas had been called to see the police since 1972 at the height of a previous campaign against liberalism and nationalism.

Several other dissidents with whom Djilas has been in touch, including the Serbian writer Dragoljub Ignjatovic, have had their homes searched or have been briefly detained by police over the last few weeks.

Bill, Jean and Ollie.

309 IN MEMORIAM

HANSEN — In loving memory of a wonderful husband, dad and granddad, Erik V. Hansen, who passed away from us on April 10, 1970.
A wonderful husband, father, grandfather laid at rest;
For each of us he did his best.
His place on earth no one can fill;
We miss you, Dad, and always will.
Although we smile and make no fuss,
Always rembered by us.
—Mom, Jack and Joan, Jerry and Denise, and grandchildren.

HANSEN — In loving memory of our dad and granddad, Erick V. Hansen, who passed away April 10, 1970.
To hear his voice and see his smile,
To sit and talk with him awhile,
To be together in the same old way,
Would be our dearest wish today.

SMITH — In loving memory of Betty Smith who passed away on April 10, 1976.
To hear her voice, to see her smile
To sit and talk to her a while
To be together in the same old way
Would be our dearest wish today.
Dear Lord, forgive a silent tear
A constant wish that she were here
Others are taken, yes we know
But she was ours, and we loved her so.
—Deeply missed by her husband (Jim), son (Ronald) and daughter-in-law (Arlene).

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

A Sound Alternative To Rotating Crops

The rotation of vegetable crops in the home garden is usually good for a full chapter in gardening books. The theory is basically sound because each vegetable takes certain nutrients from the soil and leaves others.

Rotation, which is the planting of a certain vegetable in a different place each season, is designed to prevent the build-up of some soil nutrients and the depletion of others.

It is also considered to be a pest and disease control, preventing the increase of pests and diseases which favor one kind of crop through a form of starvation.

The basic rotation plan calls for the division of the vegetable garden into four distinct plots. Then follows a list of four groups of vegetables which are to be rotated each year.

Illustrations are freely used in the text, and the first thing we notice is the size of the home vegetable gardens; 50 ft. by 100 ft. being a commonly quoted area.

This gives four plots approximately 25 by 50 feet, usually divided by perennial vegetables such as rhubarb, asparagus, or possibly a few fruits similar to strawberries, gooseberries, or currants.

At this point we see the gulf that lies between theory and practice. The illustrated vegetable gardens are almost the size of a standard city lot. With the building line 25 feet from the front property line and a one-thousand square foot house, we have lost about 55 ft. of the original 110 foot length.

When we come to lay out the portion we feel able to allot to vegetables it is often less in area than one of the illustrated rotation plots.

We cannot reasonably divide a plot this size into four distinct parts plus an area for the perennial plants.

Another factor is that few home gardeners grow, or need to grow, the variety of vegetables shown in the illustrations. Most of us grow only the few we use frequently or enjoy most, to the exclusion of others. Therefore we do not have the variety of crops for the rotation theory to function, nor can we find sufficient space to isolate next year's crop from where it grew this year.

The theory of complete rotation of top crops one year, root crops the next, then the cabbage family followed by potatoes, is impossible to follow in a small plot.

Since rotation is basically a soil building program, the home gardener can overcome the adverse effects that result from the lack of rotation by improving the condition of the soil every year. This is something few gardeners consider essential, not realizing that the nutrient value of any vegetable they grow is no better than the nutrient value of the soil in which the vegetables are grown.

Improving the soil does not mean replacing it with so-called "top-soil." It is simply a matter of replacing the humus which has been converted to nutrients and used by the previous crops.

Humus is decomposed plant parts, cow or horse manures, or mushroom compost, the first coming from the compost heap in the corner of the garden, the other sources from advertisers in the daily newspaper.

While the theory of rotation may be difficult, if not impossible, to practice in a small vegetable plot, the theory of maintaining a fertil living soil is within the reach of all home gardeners, and the cost is far less than needed to overcome pests and diseases which appear when the soil is worn out.

Hikes In Oil 'Little Effect'

CALGARY (CP) — A doubling in the price of oil, natural gas, coal and electricity would have a "surprisingly slight" effect on the consumer price index, says a study by the Canadian Energy Research Institute.

The study, released Monday, was designed to determine the effect of energy price increases on industry and the economy as a whole.

It concludes that industries most affected would include hydrocarbon refining, iron and steel, pulp and paper, aluminum and food processing.

The institute, sponsored by the federal and Alberta governments, the University of Calgary and the private energy research association, says a doubling in the domestic and import prices of oil would result in an increase of two per cent in the index, while a similar increase in electricity prices would result in an increase of 2.5 per cent.

Total effect of the doubling would be a 4.8-per-cent increase.

The index, which rose to 184 in February, is used by Statistics Canada to measure inflation.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

Golden Age Over Gold Miners Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — The golden age of gold mining is over, says Malcolm Taschereau, president of Dome Mines Ltd. of Toronto. The outlook for new mine development and expansion remains uncertain despite high gold prices.

"It seems fair to assume that most of the easy-to-find surface deposits have in fact been found," he told a recent mining conference.

"To explore for and find gold ore at depth is a difficult and very expensive task. Unlike other metals, there have been no geophysical methods yet developed to assist in gold exploration.

"These technical and geological challenges, coupled with tax disincentives and securities regulations, have turned off the individual prospector and the small investor, a proven source of discoveries in the past."

From peak production of 5.3 million ounces in 1941, Canadian gold output has fallen to about 1.7 million ounces. The number of producing mines fell to 23 today from 122 in 1949.

Although predicting that Canadian production would improve somewhat in the next decade, Taschereau stressed the physical, economic and governmental restraints on the industry.

It is tough enough, he said, to find and extract gold from erratic quartz veins that range from a fraction of an inch to a few feet wide. In addition, the unpredictable veins give an extremely limited indication of the eventual yield.

"This factor remains unchanged and remains a serious constraint to the development of new gold deposits."

Nor did he see much hope in periodic predictions that higher prices will lead to re-opening of abandoned mines:

"That is not to say that here and there we will not see an old mine reopened but I am afraid this is largely a myth. No matter what the metal price, you cannot get ore out of a depleted mine."

And only slight increases in production could be expected from expansion of producing mines, he added.

"Most of the existing gold producers in Canada were only a few years ago marginal operations and their present profitability is largely dependent upon maximized tonnage throughput, no major plant expenditures and only normal levels of mine development.

"We cannot count on expansion from these existing producers to add significantly to Canada's total gold output."

The recently announced 30-per-cent expansion at Campbell Red Lake Mines, he noted, will add only 30,000 ounces a year to Canada's production.

Economic problems included a 213-per-cent increase in labor costs since 1965 and comparative cost increases for exploration and development.

On the other hand, property and income taxes have increased "at a horrendous rate."

Male Date Ban Goes to Court?

CUMBERLAND, R.I. (UPI) — A 17-year-old youth who was refused permission to bring a male date to his junior prom may take his precedent-setting case to court, a civil liberties lawyer and a gay rights activist said today.

Michael B. Dollinger, executive director of the Rhode Island chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the ACLU's legal screening committee would discuss whether to take on the case of the Cumberland High School junior.

Cumberland students are not allowed to go to the prom alone and are required to furnish the names of their dates when they buy the tickets, Dollinger said.

Principal Richard Lynch refused to let the youth — identified only as Paul — go to the dance with his male date. Paul appealed to the School Committee.

A Rhode Island representative of the National Gay Task Force said the youth has received threats from fellow students.

"He has an awful lot of guts. He's absolutely standing by his decision to fight this. He is not backing down at all," said Charles Noice, who was contacted by Paul after school officials refused him the tickets.

"We're not aware of any other case similar to it and it's unlikely that anything like this has happened," Noice said.

"If we can go to court, we will," Noice said. "We will certainly appeal the decision if it's 'no.'"

Dollinger said Paul's parents did not agree with his views, which might complicate ACLU's decision on whether to take the case.

"My impression is that his parents did not want all sorts of publicity, but that they are aware of and accept the fact that he's gay," Dollinger said.

"That's certainly an important complication. Then there's the question of allocation of resources. And there's a question of the importance of the case in the large frame of things."

"Everybody should be entitled to go to a prom and take whomever they wish," Dollinger said.

Noice said the high school had also been threatened.

He said if it is decided that Paul can take his date to the prom, "the problem will be getting him there and providing protection for him."

Dredging Trial Finally to Jury

TORONTO (CP) — After 11 days of reviewing evidence and explaining the law at a Toronto dredging trial, Associate Chief Justice William Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court ordered the jury sequestered Monday.

The trial involves 11 men and nine companies charged with defrauding public agencies of $1,279,000 by rigging bids on dredging contracts between 1969 and 1975.

B.C. Can Appeal Tax Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal gave the provincial government permission Monday to take a multi-million dollar tax case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Ed Turner, director of consumer taxation in Victoria, said he expects the province will lose more than $8.5 million in government revenues if earlier court decisions are not overturned.

The case involving Pacific Petroleum Ltd. centres on a 1973 amendment to the colored gasoline tax act introduced by the then New Democratic Party government which ensured the company paid tax on natural gas used in stationary equipment.

Hospital Lockout Ends

COQUITLAM (CP) — Employees at three private hospitals ended job actions Monday which began late last week.

Members of the Hospital Employees Union at Como Lake Nursing Home here were ordered Friday by the British Columbia Supreme Court to end a management lockout which began that morning.

Shutdowns at two Surrey hospitals — King George and Florence Nightingale — which began Saturday also ended when union employees were delivered a restraining order Monday by the B.C. Labor Relations Board, a union spokesman said.

Mountie Pleads Not Guilty

The charges were laid against the former corporal in March after an internal audit of exhibits in the Vernon RCMP detachment showed sums of $148 and $475 were missing.

Reiger elected trial by judge and will appear July 30 in provincial court here for a preliminary hearing.

Victim Set Fire

TERRACE (CP) — One of two girls who died in a fire here last month, which also claimed the life of their uncle, accidentally set the blaze, a provincial fire marshal said Monday.

Fire marshall Ron Pollard said in his report that one of the girls accidently set the fire in boxes of wool in the living room of the home.

The report said it is believed the girl — there is no indication which one — then ran out of the trailer but re-entered to get her sister and uncle.

Scarborough was asleep in a bedroom of the trailer. He was found unconscious in the bathroom and police believe he awoke and tried to make his way out but was overcome by smoke.

No other persons were in the trailer.

Assault Charges Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Charges of common assault against prison rights activist Gay Hoon were dismissed Monday in provincial court.

Hoon was charged March 15 after she was arrested outside a Hotel Vancouver ballroom where Prime Minister Trudeau was scheduled to speak to a Liberal fund-raising dinner.

Hoon, 32, was among a group of demonstrators handing out copies of press clippings which detailed how a prisoner gouged out his eyes while in solitary confinement.

Crown Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Crown will appeal a three-month jail sentence imposed last week on George Arthur Falkner, the founder of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws.

Falkner, 53, was sentenced in county court after pleading guilty to conspiracy to traffic 270 pounds of marijuana in 1975 and 1976. The Crown said the sentence was too light.

In sentencing Falkner, the judge hearing the case said he was taking into account Falkner's age, poor health, and community service.

Endako Strike Gets Nasty: Goons and Arson Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Goon squads, sabotage and arson have become part of a strike at Placer Development Ltd.'s Endako mine near Fraser Lake in north-central B.C., the two sides in the dispute charged Monday.

A spokesman for the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers accused the company of hiring what he called goon squads to spark trouble.

Bob Merrill said the RCMP who are policing the dispute are being controlled by the company.

Placer vice-president A.J. Petrina retorted that the strike has been characterized by violence and illegal activity by the union, which represents the 600 striking workers. He called the accusation about the RCMP disgraceful.

Contract talks are stalled on wages with the union asking a 44-per-cent raise over 26 months and the company offering 26 per cent over three years. The strike began Feb. 16.

Petrina also denied a union accusation that the company management is illegally shipping molybdenum from the mine. Molybdenum is an ore used in the production of steel.

He said company trucks were shot at and stoned and drivers were injured. A section of the bridge on the road to the mine was destroyed by fire, fresh water pumps were sabotaged, transformers shot at, windows in the homes of senior staff employees smashed and threats of arson were made against staff homes, he said.

Petrina noted that B.C. laws allow Placer to continue producing and selling molybdenum and management staff has kept the mine operating at 40-per-cent capacity.

Merrill said the situation is getting tense, adding that hundreds of families are moving away from the area and business in Fraser Lake is down 60 per cent.

The municipality has asked Labor Minister Allan Williams to intervene.

PWA Delays Fare Hike

CALGARY (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines said Monday it will wait until after the Easter holiday weekend to increase its fares.

The Canadian transport commission announced its approval for carriers to increase fares by five per cent, immediately.

Brian Johnson, a PWA spokesman, said PWA will apply the increase April 17.

Crash Lawsuit Argued

LOS ANGELES (UPC) — United States District Judge Mariana Pfaelzer took under advisement Monday arguments in a lawsuit launched by survivors and the families of victims of last year's fatal airplane crash at Cranbrook.

The plaintiffs are seeking to sue three companies involved in the manufacture of a Pacific Western Airlines Boeing 737 that crashed in February, 1978 killing 42 persons and leaving seven survivors.

A federal report released last month named thrust reversers on the plane, which accidently deployed in flight as the pilot tried to abort a landing, as one of several reasons for the crash.

Named in the suit are Rohr Industries Inc., involved in designing the thrust reversers, the Boeing Co. and McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

A spokesman for the plaintiff's San Francisco lawyer, Jerry Sterns, said the companies are seeking a change of jurisdiction for the lawsuit. She said the companies probably want the suit heard in Canada "because damages are lower there."

No sum has been placed on the damages sought by the plaintiffs, the spokesman said. "Under California law no amount is named. You get what you prove."

No date was immediately set for a future hearing.

Tel Bids To Buy Supplier

OTTAWA (CP) — The British Columbia Telephone Company has formally applied to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) to purchase the firm from which it now buys much of its telephone equipment, it was announced Monday.

B.C. Tel — a subsidiary of GTE International Incorporated , an American firm — wants to buy GTE Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd., another GTE subsidiary, the CRTC said in a statement.

The commission said a public hearing into the bid will be held June 5 in Vancouver unless it is satisfied by submissions it is now taking from the public that the purchase is in the interest of B.C. Tel subscribers.

A commission spokesman said the relationship between B.C. Tel and Automatic Electric has been a contentious issue for years.

Some have questioned the quality of the equipment the phone company purchased from the Brockville, Ont.-based Automatic Electric, its brother subsidiary, the spokesman said.

Questions have also been raised about B.C. Tel's buying practices in general, he said. Why did B.C. Tel always buy its equipment from Automatic Electric?

The statement said in part: "In the commission's view, the effects of the proposed acquisition on this relationship must be carefully examined."

The purchase will also result in increased American ownership, the commission spokesman said. As part of the purchase offer, B.C. Tel has proposed to give GTE about five per cent of its shares, now unissued.

That would increase GTE's shareholdings in the telephone company to about 56 per cent from 51, the spokesman said. About 45 per cent of B.C. Tel is owned by other individuals and institutions, mostly Canadian-owned.

By purchasing Automatic Electric, B.C. Tel would also acquire Lenkurt Electric of Burnaby, a firm which manufactures transmission equipment and related components.

Daring Eaton Heist

Bandits Get $377,000

VANCOUVER — In one of the most daring daylight robberies in Vancouver history, two men held up two armed guards and made off with $377,000 in cash and cheques from the downtown Eaton's store Monday afternoon.

The two bandits, one armed with a submachine gun, the other with a revolver equipped with a silencer, captured the two Loomis Armored Car Service guards and an Eaton's employee shortly before 3 p.m. in the store at 701 Granville.

Vancouver police Insp. Frank Rayner said the holdup was "obviously the work of real smoothies . . . they knew exactly what they were doing."

Police said that of the total amount taken $150,000 was in cash and the remainder was in cheques.

The Loomis couriers had just picked up a bank deposit on the fifth floor of the store and were taking the freight elevator to the ground floor when two men suddenly appeared from behind some boxes at the back of the elevator.

"They really had the drop on our men," he said.

The robbers disarmed the couriers and handcuffed them to the floor of the elevator, covering them with a plastic tarpaulin.

Rayner said as the elevator was descending it stopped at the second floor where store employee Steven Erdelyn stepped in, ignoring warnings from the man at the control not to enter. When the door closed the man pushed his revolver into Erdelyn's face and ordered him to get on the floor where he was handcuffed beside the other two.

Rayner said the elevator stopped again at the main floor where another employee, Bob Sutherland, 23, was waiting.

Sutherland told police two men came out, each carrying leather sample cases, and asked directions how to get out of the store.

Eaton's loss prevention manager Frank Battershill said the deposit bag contained about $150,000 in cash, the rest in negotiable cheques. The pickup was one of several Loomis couriers carry out each day at the store.

Eddy said it was only the second time in the 49 years Loomis has been in Canada it has been the victim of a successful robbery. The other occurred in Vancouver, too, several years ago.

The suspects are described as between 35 to 40 years of age. One was heavy set and wore a dark brown suit with open collar.

Doug Peden, sports editor of the Victoria Times and rated as one of the most versatile athletes in the history of Canadian sport, has been elected to the Canadian Sports Hall of Fame.

Others honored in the announcement Monday by Hall of Fame chairman Harry E. (Red) Foster are diver Beverly Boys, jockey Nick Wall and two builders. — Howard Firby, one of the founders of the Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver and now coach of the Juan de Fuca Cohos Swim Club of Victoria, and the late George Beers, recognized as the father of lacrosse.

Peden excelled as a professional in three sports but earned titles and respect in at least six others.

As a bike racer, he teamed with brother Torchy in the six-day races of the 1930s and helped his brother set a world record for victories in those events.

The Peden brothers won six times and placed second nine times in the 35 races they entered together. He partnered Torchy in all but two races. Doug, who set a record by finishing all 37 races he entered, won another race with American star Cecil Yates as a partner.

Individually, he won the Canadian pro sprint championship in 1939.

In basketball, he was on two Canadian championship basketball teams, the 1934-35 Blue Ribbons and the 1945-46 Dominoes. He led Canada to a silver medal in the 1936 Olympics and then played professionally with Buffalo Bisons of the Eastern Pro League in 1940-41, and Vancouver Hornets from 1947-48.

He also played baseball professionally and was considered a major league prospect by Pittburgh Pirates, who signed him to a contract in 1942 before the Second World War interrupted a

City Jobless Down Slightly

Statistics Canada figures released today showed a jobless rate of 9.6 per cent, down from 10.4 per cent in February.

Local Canada Employment Centre manager Wally Pickering said the trend was normal for Victoria at this time of year.

Employment prospects will increase faster than the provincial rate during the warm months, he added.

In B.C., the total number of unemployed declined in March to 104,000 from 112,000 the previous month.

Country-wide, the number of unemployed in March rose to 976,000 from 954,000 in February.

But the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate — which takes seasonal employment patterns into account — remained unchanged from a month earlier at 7.9 per cent.

Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark and NDP Leader Ed Broadbent pointed to the higher numbers of unemployed and criticized economic policies of the Trudeau government.

But Bud Cullen, minister of employment and immigration, said the unchanged unemployment rate is evidence the country has come through the tough winter months without the problem worsening.

Clark said in a statement from southern Ontario

Times-VI*90 Prize In Judges' Hands

And this morning the judges of the *Victoria Times-VI*90* radio Visit the Stars contest were feverishly checking through more than 5,000 entries to find winners eligible for the grand prize of a weekend for two in Hollywood — travel via CP Air, stay at a first-class hotel and tour of the Universal Studio.

Those who chose Jane Fonda as best actress, John Voight as best actor and The Deer Hunter as best film will be eligible.

The grand prize winner will be selected in a draw at a theatre party Wednesday at the Towne Cinema with the audience made up of entrants in the contest whose names were drawn at random. Five runner-up prizes of a night on the town — dinner for two at the Empress and tickets to the Towne Cinema — will also be drawn from entries with the correct choices in the three categories.

Israelis Hit Back After Bomb

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli planes streaked into southern Lebanon and pounded two Palestinian guerrilla bases today, just hours after a terrorist bomb blast killed one Israeli man and wounded 22 other persons in an open-air market in Tel Aviv.

The raid was Israel's first against Palestinian targets in Lebanon since the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty March 26.

An Israeli army official said the planes struck bases at Damour and Ras el-Ain, near Tyre, and that all returned safely.

There were no reports on casualties in the air attack.

The Israelis often launch air strikes into southern Lebanon in their eye-for-an-eye war with Palestinian guerrillas who infiltrate across Israeli borders to plant bombs in populated areas.

The Tel Aviv bomb exploded at a fishmonger's stall in the open-air Carmel market, crowded with shoppers preparing for Passover, which begins Wednesday. Five of the injured were severely wounded, police said.

Officials said the blast, latest in a new wave of bombings in apparent retaliation for the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, was almost prevented.

A municipal inspector noticed a suspicious package under the stall at the Carmel market and asked whether it belonged to anyone, "but before they checked it out, there was an explosion," said Tel Aviv Mayor Shlomo Lahat.

Police commander Moshe Tiomkin told Israel Radio that about 15 Arabs have been detained — he called it "preventive arrest" to protect them from angry Israelis as well as to investigate them as suspects.

A Palestinian spokesman in Beirut, meanwhile, claimed that Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese leftists fought a battle with Israeli gunboats along the southern Lebanese shore Monday night and foiled an Israeli attempt to land amphibious troops.

Barking Dogs Get Limit

If Saanich dog owners want to stay within the law they'll have to ensure their animals don't bark for more than nine minutes, 59 seconds.

One second over and the dogs would have used up their legal quota and be liable for prosecution, under an amendment to Saanich's noise suppression bylaw recommended by the bylaw enforcement committee Monday night.

Committee members weren't unanimous in backing the 10-minute rule.

Ald. Irene Block said the period of grace is too long because five minutes of interrupted sleep at 3 a.m. is as much as any resident should have to endure.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier wanted to extend the time to 15 minutes, to reduce the possibility of quarrelsome neighbors abusing the bylaw and bringing petty prosecutions against each other.

The latest Saanich move against barking dogs is modelled on a Richmond bylaw, but in that municipality mutts can woof away for half an hour before a charge is laid.

Municipal solicitor Chris Nation said the advantage of the system is that anyone, a police officer, poundkeeper or single resident, can testify a dog barked for the required period.

There would be no need to prove that the dog had actually disturbed the neighborhood, he stressed.

Previously, for a charge to succeed the testimony of at least two neighbors was required.

200 Reported Dead In Blaze

Witnesses saw people jumping from third-storey windows of the five-storey structure, and there were unconfirmed reports that at least 200 people were either dead or injured.

Government officials did not disclose any details on the number of those killed or injured. But witnesses said they saw scores of ambulances rushing victims from the scene.

Witnesses said the blaze may have been caused by welding work on the store's second and third floors. Others reported a malfunction in the motor of an escalator. The fire quickly spread to the upper floors of the store's five stories, witnesses said.

Fire Department headquarters rushed all available engines to the building on one of the city's busiest intersections, across from the Romanian Bank for Foreign Trade.

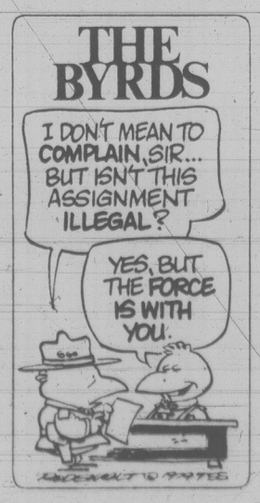
Residents Still Out

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of northwestern Florida residents were barred from returning home for the third consecutive day as disaster crews tried to salvage wrecked railway tank cars laden with deadly chemicals.

Twenty-eight tank cars derailed Sunday morning as a 116-car Louisville and Nashville (LN) train passed through an area six kilometres west of this city.



Stephens to Bare Tory 'Rot'

There's something rotten in the federal Tory campaign in B.C. and provincial leader Vic Stephens said today he's no longer going to sit idly by and watch it contaminate his campaign.

Stephens has called a press conference for Wednesday when, he says, he's going to name the names of those in the federal Tory party whose loyalty is suspect.

Today, Stephens would only say: "I'm going to lay the facts on the table and people can draw their own conclusions."

The parallel federal and provincial election campaigns — the province votes May 10 followed by the national ballot May 22 — have created problems for all parties, but none so serious as for the Conservatives.

Much federal Tory support comes from those who are Socred provincially, and Clark and his federal candidates apparently don't want to alienate those voters by openly backing Stephens.

Because of that, Stephens has been somewhat on the defensive recently. But he indicated today he's going to come out fighting.

"I'll admit I've not been happy with myself this past week. I got a shock when I met with Joe Clark that I could have done without."

Stephens said he has always tried to be outspoken on issues he believes to be true and he's no longer going to bear the burden of silence on this issue.

He said it won't be easy for him because of the loyalty he feels towards the party he's worked with for so many years.

The Oak Bay MLA said the problem lies with Clark's workers — the ones who are not Tories.

One of the people Stephens says he will be talking about at Wednesday's press conference is federal Prince George Tory candidate Lorne McCuish, who earlier said all that Stephens is accomplishing provincially is ensuring an NDP victory.

McCuish said most federal Conservative supporters are happy voting for the Socred party provincially.

"Words like conspiracy don't do much for me. They may be true, but that's not my language."

Stephens said the problem is Clark's, not his.

The provincial Tories plan to try and field candidates in 10 of the 50 ridings.

"We've never been stronger and we've never been more united, so if Joe Clark has his problems, I'm

Offspring Retrace Roots To View Artist's Work

Farflung descendants of a pioneer Victoria artist whose canvases captured many familiar local landscapes have retraced their roots to see an exhibition of his paintings at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Kin of painter Thomas Bamford came from as far afield as Houston, Texas, and San Diego and Ventura, Calif., for the exhibition which opened Feb. 28 and runs to April 15, assistant gallery director Robert Amos said Monday.

Born in Liverpool, England, Thomas Bamford emigrated to Boston and travelled to Oregon before settling in Victoria in 1882.

Amos said there has been keen interest in the 65 works exhibited, which are mostly in local private ownership and came from more than 20 different sources.

"As far as prices in this town are concerned, I rarely heard previously of one being sold for more than $35, yet a number of people have told me they would willingly pay much, much more today for the pictures they own."

TOWN TALK

Very puzzling was the real estate ad in the morning paper under the commercial-industrial property section.

With the heading "Harbor View" it reads: "Office building with harbor view for sale. Former head office of Mining, Forestry and Resource firm. Also business office of many Social Service organizations. Possible heritage designation. 501 Belleville. Dan Campbell agent. 387-6200."

Three points to note: The address given is that of the Legislative Buildings, the phone number is Premier Bill Bennett's and Dan Campbell works out of the premier's office, responsible for inter-governmental relations.

Until the provincial election campaign, Elwood Veitch's devastation of the English language was fairly well hidden up in the legislative precincts.

"Under Social Credit, everyone can strive for success with nothing to hold us back but our own volition."

And looking ahead, Elwood said "tomorrow is here, now, in British Columbia."

A couple more :"We've got to develop the programs that are planned and that development plans on you."

"I know you're going to be fitting to the task. I know you're going to spread put your arms with all other British Columbians and sweep the field."

And finally:"As it happens in London, the more we rebuild the city the less they forget the war."

Despite what it says on the application form, children will still be allowed to participate in the Victoria Day parade this year.

Complaints began to come into city hall today when it was discovered that application forms for the parade stated that all participants who were to walk the route must be at least 15 years old.

However, Ald. Robin Blencoe, who checked into the matter, said the statement on the form is an honest mistake, and anyone over the age of six can take part in the parade.

Included in the so-called paracourse are such things as a balance beam, "log hop" and chin-up and vault bars.

Work on the 18-station circuit is to start immediately and it is hoped the course will be ready for use by July 1, the parks and recreation committee was told Monday night.

Aldermen thanked the service club for providing the facility.

Two committee members, Ald. Howard Sturrock and Ald. John Mika, said they had used similar fitness circuits in North Vancouver and Port Alberni and found them excellent.

Veteran federal enumerator Elaine Larose has some questions about the provincial enumeration. What she wants to know is where the provincial government is getting its list of registered voters.

She duly received a card in the mail on Monday, saying her name was on the list and telling her where to vote. However, she also received a card to the same address for her son, who hasn't lived there for months, and one for her married daughter who has never lived there at all.

With such efficiency, she wonders, can cards for those who have died be far behind?

The Election Hot Line Is Busy, Too

At least they named it appropriately.

The so-called Victoria hot line for voters to check whether their names are registered for the provincial election is so hot most of the time it's almost impossible to get through.

Callers have to have superhuman patience and determination and/or lots of time.

A Victoria Press switchboard employee who wanted to find out whether her own name was on the list tried all day Saturday, each attempt frustrated by the busy signal.

And the Times has fielded several angry calls from other Victorians who have been trying in vain to call 387-5909 or 387-1953, 54 and 55 before the voters list is shut off Wednesday.

But — you guessed it — his line was busy all day Monday.

The office, at 933 Yates, is open until 11 p.m. tonight and midnight Wednesday.

Those eligible to vote are Canadian citizens or British subjects resident in B.C. for six months and 19 years old and up on May 10.

The chief electoral officer said the voters' list, complied in a house-to-house enumeration in the fall of 1978, is being updated and will be closed off at midnight Wednesday.

Morton said nominations would close at 1 p.m. Thursday, April 26, and the advance poll would be from May 3 to 5.

The vote is restricted to Canadian citizens by birth or naturalization, or British subjects, who will be 19 years old or over by election day, and who have been residents of Canada for a year and in B.C. for six months. About 1.6 million voters had been enumerated.

Sign Workers Walk Off Job

Management and union representatives were meeting today in a bid to end a walkout by employees in the highways ministry's signs shop in Langford.

The employees, members of Local 1001 of the B.C. Government Employees Union, were parading outside the shop on Jacklin Road.

The unidentified employee was origianlly given a three-day suspension.

The picketers refused to return to work today after the suspension was shortened to one day.

A spokesman for the 11 workers said the incident is only one of several which have caused poor working conditions in the shop.

Man Held In Rooftop Break-In

Police went to the co-op after the caretaker reported a man with a ladder on the roof shortly after midnight.

A police spokesman said the man entered through a skylight and used the ladder to drop to an upstairs storage area.

He made his way into the co-op office where a safe had been broken open when officers converged.

The suspect gave himself up without struggle. He was to appear in provincial court later today charged with breaking and entering and theft.

Area Schools In Crummy State: Trustee

As far as Victoria school trustee Mark Fisher is concerned the state of the schools in the district is "crummy, crummy, crummy," and likely to remain that way to the year 2000 unless the public wakes up.

Fisher told a board meeting Monday the only way the problems will be solved is , if some schools are closed.

He said planners are forecasting a drop of 10,000 in enrolment in the district over the next 10 years and if this happens, a third of the school facilities will become redundant.

"Until the people of Victoria are prepared to accept the concept that some schools should be closed, we'll go on spending our $15 million in a piddly way," he said.

"We'll continue to have crummy schools with crummy washrooms with each individual school having crummy blacktop and dirty driveways."

Board chairman Carol Pickup, however, reiterated the majority position of the board to keep neighborhood schools open.

"If (the people) want neighborhood schools, it's obviously going to cost more," she said.

Their comments came after two school groups appeared before the board to complain about school conditions.

A student delegation from Lambrick Park secondary led by Heather Alexander asked the board for more support in getting provincial funds for improvements to their school, including a second floor of classrooms which was included in the original building design.

They were followed by a parents' group from George Jay elementary school who complained that the school district is neglecting proper maintenance and renovations at the 70-year-old school.

The Lambrick Park students said the school's inadequate heating and ventilation system is so bad the smells from chemistry experiments nearly drive the whole school outdoors.

They said the 550 member student-body lacks a lunch room.

"Our cafeteria at present is a small table."

The library quarters are so small an ordinary class of 30 can bearly fit in, they said. And the temporary annex at the back of the school is inaccessible to students with physical handicaps.

The board sympathized with the students but several trustees pointed out a request for capital funds had been turned down by the provincial ministry of education and because of that, their hands were tied.

The board, however, agreed to investigate George Jay complaints of leaking gutters, peeling plaster and a heating system that parents' association spokesman Jean Taylor described as antiquated, inefficient and wasteful.

Pair Held After Chase

The men are to appear in provincial court charged with breaking and entering and theft and possession of stolen property. The 26-year-old driver also faces charges of dangerous driving and driving without a driver's licence.

An Oak Bay police spokesman said the truck, owned by the federal department of health and welfare, was stolen overnight from Dunsmuir Shell Service, 1321 Yates.

The chase began when an Oak Bay officer noticed the pickup speeding on Foul Bay Road at 12:45 a.m. and tried to pull it over.

A second Oak Bay patrol car joined the pursuit and followed the truck down Oak Bay Avenue and onto Fort. The driver of the truck attempted to turn onto Morrison but lost control and crashed into a tree.

Police said the driver and a 19-year-old passenger received minor cuts and were treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital before being lodged in police cells.

Angry Exodus Over Septic Dump Plan

Times Staff

About 150 angry View Royal residents stormed out of a public hearing Monday night after telling the Capital Regional District they won't stand for septic tank dumping in their area.

The walkout came after former regional director Pat Massey asked how many residents have to go on record as opposing the proposed dumping facility at 58 Helmcken Road before the regional board was convinced.

The mass exodus was triggered by one man who stomped out, saying, "View Royal is not in favor of this damn thing."

The unidentified man said it was unfair after residents had voted for adequate sewers and a new hospital to have a garbage dump foisted on them.

From the time the meeting began the crowd was belligerent and determined.

"How stupid do you think the people of View Royal are?" said one man who described himself as a landscaper.

"It's going to take five to 10 years before you get anything that looks like that. Meanwhile, people driving up and down the road and people going into the hospital are looking at that stinking hole in there and knowing what it is for."

When Howard said he did not think the facility would affect property values the CRD was accused of block-busting.

The CRD was accused of ignoring the Advisory Planning Commision and View Royal regional director Al Beasley's objections to the proposed single-storey building that would house storage tanks for septic tank effluent prior to dumping into the Macauley Point system.

The CRD has an option on 1½ acres across from the proposed hospital site, just off the Trans-Canada Highway.

Beasley said after the meeting he will resign if the regional board continues processing the rezoning bylaw over the overwhelming opposition of View Royal residents.

Numerous briefs were presented.

One from R.E. Preece, 18 Stillwater, said: "This is prime residential land. We who were pro-sewer advocates have fought for years to have sewers installed with the enthusiastic encouragement of the CRD and, whem we were finally successful, to have the CRD propose this obscenity is worse than a slap in the face."

The crowd applauded when Thelma Dawson said: "The arrogant disregard of the View Royal community plan shows the public how powerful regional boards have become. Were I the minister of municipal affairs I would be watching most carefully to see that my authority was not being undermined. It seems to me that the Capital Regional Board, who are supported by our taxes, are not supporting our interests."

She said if the bylaw is passed View Royal residents are prepared to take their case to the cabinet of the provincial government.

Loud Putter Noises On Quiet One's Return

Among the Victoria professionals who have chased after money on the golf trails, Bob Beauchemin stands out as the quiet one.

Very opposite to Bill Wakeham, the unabashed extrovert who now runs things at Cowichan, and unlike Cec Ferguson, who sprinkled confidence with meticulous organization when he set out.

If you want to measure his personality with another, then "The Beau" is more like John Morgan. Like Morgan, Beauchemin went after the gold ring without much fanfare.

Whereas Morgan, Ferguson and Wakeham all started touring with sponsors, Beauchemin began with only his money in his pocket. That's the hardest way to go but the 24-year-old southpaw survived.

"I didn't make much money," Beauchemin said shortly after his return from Australia at the weekend, "but then I didn't lose much."

His second visit to the Australia-New Zealand circuit was satisfying.

In 10 tournaments, he finished fourth twice and was fifth in another pair. He finished in the top 10 in six tournaments all told and missed the top 20 only once.

"I was pleased with my consisteney," said Bob. "While I didn't win any tournaments, I was always there."

The Beau also was pleased when he received the "Order of Merit" from the Australian PGA. That means Beauchemin is exempt from qualifying for any tournament next winter, if he decides to return.

Beauchemin, who picked off medallist honors in the Vancouver Island Open's qualifying test at Glen Meadows on Sunday, is undecided about his future, "except that I'll stick around here for a few months."

"There's a lot more to being successful on tour than just hitting a long ball," he said. "And I feel a learned a lot in Australia."

There is more to learn, he inferred, and he hasn't given up on the idea of giving the U.S. tour a try.

If the putting touch he enjoyed Sunday stays with him, he might try for his (USPGA) Approved Players' Card sooner than even he expected.

In capturing Sunday's medal with a two-under-par 70, Beauchemin displayed superb control of his drives, except for one instance, but was most happy with his putting. He had seven one-putt greens, 29 in all, and that was one aspect of his game that did not please him "Down Under."

"I had problems putting," he said, "but if I putted like this in Australia, I'm feel I would have had a chance to win a tournament or two."

City Rowers Win Silvers in U.S.

SAN DIEGO — Two oarsmen from Victoria were on the list of British Columbia medal winners at the San Diego Crew Classic rowing regatta here at the weekend.

Bruce Ford and Pat Walter of the Victoria City Rowing Club finished second to two former United States national team members in the double sculls while crews from Vancouver won and placed second in two eights events.

Burnaby Lake Aquatic Club won the gold medal in the women's event and Vancouver Rowing Club finished second in the men's race.

Baseball Trade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers have obtained pitcher Jerry Reuss, 29, from Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for pitcher Rick Rhoden, 25, in a National League baseball trade.

Trottier, Dionne Take Major Scoring Honors

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders, the first player from a National Hockey League expansion team to win the individual scoring title collects $1,000 as over-all winner and $500 as first-half leader.

Trottier, a 22-year-old native of Val Marie, Sask., ended the season with 134 points, including a league-leading 87 assists. He had a four-point lead over runner-up Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings.

This marks the first time since 1974-75 that the scoring leader was not either the second-half leader or runner-up. Dionne led in the second half with 69 points. He was also the leader in 1974-75 when Bobby Orr won the title.

Dionne collects $500 as over-all runner-up, plus $500 as second-half leader, while Lafleur receives $250 as first-half runner-up.

Bossy became the first rookie to score at least 50 goals in a season last year when he scored 53. This season he was tops in the league with 69. That was the second-highest total recorded.

Phil Esposito recorded 76 while a member of Boston Bruins in 1970-71. Included in Bossy's total were a league-leading 27 power-play goals, one shy of Esposito's 1971-72 record.

Four players reached the 50-goal total. In additiona to Bossy, Dionne has 59, Lafleur 52 and Guy Chouinard of Atlanta Falmes 50.

Seven players attained 100 or more points, including Denis Potvin of the Islanders. Potvin became the second defenceman ever to reach or better that mark. He had 101 points, including 31 goals. Orr reached the 100-point mark six straight seasons while with the Bruins.

The other 100-point scorers were: Bossy 126; Bob MacMillan, Atlanta 108; Chouinard 107. The last time there were as many players with at least 100 points was in 1975-76 when nine reached the figure.

The Vezina Trophy was won for a fourth straight season by Montreal Canadiens.

Ken Dryden, who led the league in shutouts with five and had the best personal goals-against average of 2.30, has now had his name on the Vezina five times, one short of the record by two former Canadiens, Bill Durnan and Jacques Plante.

Dryden and Michel Larocque, who shared the award with Dryden the previous two seasons, combined to give Montreal a goals-against total of 204 — 10 goals fewer than Glenn Resch and Bill Smith of the Islanders.

The winners share $1,500 as over-all champions, plus $250 for each half in which they led. Resch and Smith share $750 as over-all runnersup.

A's Take Third Big Six Title

Bryan Preston scored at 19:36 of the second sudden-death overtime period Monday at Memorial Arena to give Victoria Athletics a 4-3 win over Western Homes Buckaroos and the South Island Big Six Hockey League playoff title.

The win, which gave Athletics their third consecutive playoff crown, came during the deciding game in a best-of-seven series.

John Entzminger scored two goals to lead the Athletics and the other single was added by Gord Neilson.

Steve Leatham, Norm Allen and Murray Kennett scored for Buckaroos, who were ahead 2-1 going into the final period of regulation time.

Saanich Clubs Find Success

Hornets, sparked by the three-touchdown performance of Doug Waldic, trounced Oak Bay 42-12, Vampires edged Nanaimo Trojans 14-6 in the Up-Island centre and Juan de Fuca downed Cowichan Patriots 21-1.

Willard Takes 'B' Squash Title

VANCOUVER — Dale Willard of Victoria Racquet Club collected the British Columbia men's "B" class title by defeating Vishnu Singh of the host Vancouver Racquet Club 3-1 at the weekend.

Esks Sign Back

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League have announced the signing of import running back Jimmy Rogers, 23, formerly with the University of Oklahoma. Rogers is 184 pounds and stands five feet 10 inches tall.

Juan de Fuca Club Tackles French Team

International rugby will make its first-ever appearance at Juan de Fuca Recreation Centre on Saturday.

Appearing at the Colwood pitch will be Maison La Fitte, a touring French side that will tangle with Juan de Fuca Vampires, who are playing their first season in the second division of the Vancouver Island Rugby Union.

Game time is 2 p.m.

IF YOU NEED A PERSONAL LOAN FOR A CAR, OUR BANK CAN HELP.

If you're planning to borrow for a car, consider a personal loan from the Commerce. And while you're thinking it over, pick up your free copy of Our Bank's helpful booklet on personal loans at any Commerce branch across Canada. It contains basic information about loan eligibility and the range of Commerce personal loans. Here's just a sample of the information in our booklet:

THE COMMERCE TREATS PERSONAL LOANS PERSONALLY.

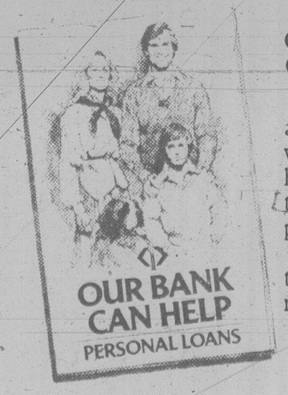
Every Commerce manager or Loans Officer is trained to judge your eligibility for a loan on the basis of your individual situation. We'll ask you some basic questions about yourself, such as, how long you've lived at your present address, worked at your job, whether you rent or own your home, if you have any outstanding loans or accounts and, of course, the purpose of your loan. This kind of information helps us select the best type of Commerce personal loan for you.

DON'T DISQUALIFY YOURSELF.

Don't prejudge your eligibility for a personal loan. Whether you're married or single, male or female, you're treated as an individual. Our policy is simple and straightforward. What we look for is your ability to manage the loan you need; to make the required payments while still meeting your other commitments.

DON'T LET THE IDEA OF A CREDIT RATING UNNERVE YOU.

We'll ask your permission to check your credit rating. Keep in mind that a credit rating is simply a point of reference. The decision to lend you the money you need is based on careful consideration of every aspect of your situation.



THE COST OF A COMMERCE PERSONAL LOAN.

Together we'll work out repayment terms suited to your budget, so that you don't get in over your head. For example, the repayment plan, and interest rate on your loan will be established according to the type of collateral offered and your cash flow. Interest rates on Commerce personal loans are competitive and, in most cases, life insurance, at no extra cost, will be a feature of your loan.

YOUR CAR MAY BE USED AS COLLATERAL.

You may pledge the car you purchase with your loan as security on the loan, itself. Or you may have stocks, bonds, equity in your home or another form of approved collateral to pledge against a personal loan for a preferred interest rate. However, the most important "security" on the loan is your personal commitment to repay it in accordance with the terms of the loan agreement.

HOW LONG DOES IT TAKE TO GET A LOAN?

If it's a Carplan loan, in most cases, you can have the money that day. Or if we've agreed that another type of loan makes more sense for your situation, it may take slightly longer. In either case, you can take the money with you in the form of a cheque or have it deposited in your Commerce account.

WHETHER OR NOT YOU'RE A COMMERCE CUSTOMER, COME IN AND TALK OVER A PERSONAL LOAN TODAY.

Buying a car is just one good reason to talk over a personal loan with us. If you need to borrow for any worthwhile purpose, a Commerce personal loan can help. Our Bank will welcome you at more branches than any other bank in Canada. And don't forget to pick up a copy of our booklet.

We make it our business to help you meet your financial needs in every way we can.

First Fashion Hit Close-Knit Affair

MILAN — The Missonis, who have elevated knitted clothes to a form of art, scored the first big success of the fall ready-to-wear shows here. The Italian fashion openings will be followed by market weeks in London, Paris and, toward the end of April, New York. The shape of next winter's clothes will be established long before summer sets in.

The Missoni coats were outstanding in three-dimensional stitches that looked almost like fur and in abstract patterns that resembled modern paintings. Some were knitted in squares to look quilted and reversed to glazed cotton linings that were quilted. Evenings styles were shot with glitter, including the pants, of which there were many for day and night.

The most unusual shape was knickers. The rest of the clothes had a classic, timeless quality which is what Rosita Missoni was referring when she said, "We're not really fashion." What she meant was the clothes have a style of their own and do not develop a new character every six months.

In the other showings so far, the "retro" character, introduced a year ago with giant padded shoulders and skinny skirts, has been somewhat subdued and an occasional full skirt shows up.

It was fitting that the Missonis — Ottavio, called Tai, takes care of the knitting, and his wife, Rosita, does the designing — should have brought the audience to its feet since they were as responsible as anyone for turning this industrial city into a fashion centre.

Since they decided to introduce their collections in Milan a few years ago — their factory is in nearby Sumirago — the main fashion action was in Florence or Rome. Now retailers from as far as Australia and Japan come here, establishing Milan as a European fashion mecca second only to Paris.

The north of Italy has long been a production centre for fashion as well as industrial goods. Now designers from Rome come here to show their wares. Some 52 houses schedule major shows during the six days of the fall market week which started Saturday. Countless others show informally in their offices and hotel rooms. The city is engulfed in fashion.

Like other knitwear producers here, the Missonis, who celebrated their 25th year in business last year, started making styles anonymously for stores or even for French designers. As their skill increased, so did their longing for their own name on the label. To call attention to themselves as creators, many houses made exaggerated styles which worked out better in loose clothes than in tight, structured ones. For fall, they seem to have relaxed a bit.

Sportmax, which has just begun to sell to American stores, is a case in point. While shoulders are still broad, coats look soft as sweaters and wrap easily around the body. They often cover jumpsuits with narrow legs, wrapped middles and a space-age look.

Andre Laug strengthened the case for suits with a variety of styles ranging from ultra-fitted to slightly relaxed. They were accompanied by soft blouses, with bows at the neckline rather than shirts. Jackets ranged from bellhop styles that dipped in points below the waist to long, narrow styles that covered the hips. Skirts were narrow or pleated.

Laug, who works in Rome and has a following in the United States, also has a penchant for marabou coats which he tossed over some suits. In mottled brown or black with white, the coats resembled fur but were much lighter. "They'll love them in Palm Beach," said Martha Phillips, who runs the Martha stores in New York and Bal Harbour, Fla.

Are You Cooking Youself?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A plastic surgeon from Oklahoma City, Okla., would like everyone to take the egg test.

"Fill your bathtub with hot water and drop an egg into it," said Dr. Paul Silverstein. "I bet you any money it will poach."

The point of the test, he said, is to demonstrate that the temperature in water heaters in most homes is so high "you can literally cook in a bathtub."

It is hot enough to cause third-degree burns, said Dr. Silverstein, medical director of the Baptist Medical Burn Centre in Oklahoma City.

He was in Windsor to speak to about 110 doctors, nurses and para-medical staff at a seminar on burns at Windsor Hospital.

In an interview, the surgeon said most homes have their hot water heaters set between 140 and 160 degrees fahrenheit (60 to 70 degrees Celsius). That's hot enough to scald and damage skin tissue and would require plastic surgery and skin grafting.

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the third grader who wanted to give out 23 invitations to her birthday party when there were 29 in her class:

Bless you, Abby, for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let her give out the invitations at school unless everyone in the class was invited. (You said, "The pain of having been left out will remain with those six who were uninvited long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.")

You are so right, Abby. I'm 29, and I still get pains in my stomach when I recall how one popular girl in my sixth grade class invited everybody but me and another girl to her Halloween party. She gave out printed invitations, then, the day before the party, she must have realized that we knew about it and felt hurt, so she "invited" us, but told us the wrong time.

My mother hurriedly made me a costume and dropped me off at the girl's house. I kept ringing the doorbell for the longest time. When nobody answered, I walked home crying.

PAINFUL MEMORIES

DEAR MEMORIES: I received a surprising number of letters from others who also had some painful memories:

I remember when a girl in my class had a sweet-16 party and I wasn't invited because I wore a heavy brace on my leg as a result of polio.

I'll never forget this heartless girl telling me to my face that she really liked me, but didn't invite me to her party because there would be dancing and I wouldn't have a very good time sitting and watching everyone else dance. J.W.D.

DEAR ABBY: A letter in your column certainly jogged some unhappy memories of my school days. When I was in the eighth grade, a girl in my room had a birthday party and invited everybody in the class but me and another girl. Her party as held on a Friday night and I skipped school that day because I was so humiliated I didn't think I could face my classmates without breaking down in tears.

That was 53 years ago, but I remember it as though it was yesterday. CELIA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for siding with the teacher who wouldn't let a student pass out invitations to a party. I am a retired schoolteacher who frequently had to fight the same battle with some of my students' mothers. You would not believe how insensitive some people could be.

Some kids would have parties and exclude all the Jewish kids . . . or the black kids . . . or the Indian kids.

Small wonder some of those youngsters grew up to be bigots. They were carefully taught at home that anybody who was "different" was inferior. Thank heavens things are different now. FORMER TEACHER

DEAR ABBY: When I was in fifth grade, we moved out of state and I had to change schools. Being very shy, I didn't make friends very easily at my new school, so when the popular boy in the class had a party, he invited everyone except me and a very fat boy. I felt terribly hurt.

One of the kids in our class liked the fat boy, and refused to attend the party unless he was invited, too. The fat boy in turn said he wouldn't go unless "the new kid" (me) was invited. So as it turned out everyone in the class went and had a good time. S.L.
